THE TRANSLATOR'S PREFACE

THIS book treats of two different though kindred subjects, the Persian Press, more particularly Persian Journalism, and the political and patriotic poetry of Modern Persia; in other words, with two aspects of Persian literary activity in recent years, especially since the Proclamation of the Constitution in 1906. It falls, therefore, into two distinct parts, of the first of which I am the translator, and of the second the compiler. Of each of these two parts something must now be said.

Part I (pp. 1-166) contains as complete a list of Persian newspapers, with particulars concerning each, as it has been possible to compile, preceded by a Preface and Introduction (pp. 1-6 and 7-26), and followed by a brief essay on some of the more important products of the Persian Press other than newspapers, especially such as conducted, directly or indirectly, to the "Awakening of Persia" (pp. 154-166). The whole of this portion is translated from a Persian treatise, at present unpublished, entitled, for reasons explained by the Author, Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán "Tarbiyat," at p. 5 of his Preface, "A Page from the History of the products of the Persian Press"; and all that I have done besides translating it is to add a few explanatory foot-notes (the majority of which, however, are the Author's) and to append to the description of each newspaper in smaller type some additional particulars concerning its size, price, etc., derived from the inspection of copies in my own possession, of which, thanks to the generosity of Mr H. L. Rabino, whereof I shall shortly speak, I have a fairly extensive collection. It is important that the reader should bear in mind that these paragraphs in smaller type are added by myself to the original articles, in order that he may not be puzzled by occasional discrepancies which appear between them and the paragraphs in larger type which precede them; for on the one hand I have not thought it right to modify (save in a few cases of evident inadvertence) the sense of the Author's statements, and on the other I have indicated, whenever reference to a copy of the paper in question was possible, the result of my own observations, inasmuch as the Author wrote in exile, for the most part from memory and scanty notes, and, as he has explained in his Preface (pp. 1-3), was unable to refer to the rich material which he had collected for the compilation of this work, and which is now, unhappily, lost beyond recall.

The Author's work, as he has explained in his Preface, was prior in conception, though subsequent in execution, to that of Mr H. L. Rabino, who was, until about two years ago, British Vice-Consul at Rasht in Persia, and is now at Saffi in Morocco. Mr Rabino, whom I have never had the pleasure of meeting, is one of those consular officers who take delight in devoting the time which they can spare from their official duties to the careful study of the language, history, literature, antiquities, customs and resources of the country in which they find themselves, and it is a matter of profound regret rather than of surprise that one so well acquainted with and so sympathetic to the Persians, and so well instructed in all that concerns them and their country, should have been removed thence to a distant and (I imagine) uncongenial post. At all events he made the best use of his time in Rasht, which has in many ways been fruitful of valuable results, especially in the domains of history, geography and geology, and not least in this hitherto almost unexplored field of Persian Journalism. In 1911 he published at Rasht what is, so far as I know, the first systematic treatise on this subject, a Persian pamphlet of 29 large pages (measuring 35 x 22½ centimetres), printed at the 'Urwaṭu'l-Wuthqa Press, of which the full title, both in Persian and English, and some description are given at pp. 2-3 of the Author's Preface and in the foot-notes thereto. In a short Preface of two pages he sketches the history of Persian Journalism from its beginnings (in or about 1848) down to the time of writing (August 29, 1911). This Preface is followed (pp. 6-25) by a list of 243 papers, arranged alphabetically, published in Persian or in Persia¹. Each page is divided into ten columns, of which the first contains the ordinal number of the paper in the list, the second the title of the paper, the third the place of publication, the fourth the intervals of publication (daily, weekly, fortnightly, monthly, etc.), the fifth the method of production (print, lithography, or "jelly-graphy"), the sixth the date of inception, the seventh the date of conclusion, the eighth the political tendency, the ninth the name of the proprietor or editor, and the tenth and last any additional observations. Of the papers enumerated Nos. 1-226 are Persian, Turkish or Arabic, Nos. 227-230 French, and Nos. 231-236 Armenian, while Nos. 237-243 are additional Persian papers omitted in their proper place. Blank spaces are left, numbered 244-269, for additional entries, while the last two pages (28-29) contain a list of errata.

A French translation of Mr Rabino's Persian pamphlet by M. L. Buwat appeared in the Revue du Monde Musulman for 1913 (pp. 287-315). It was made, I believe, without Mr Rabino's knowledge or concurrence, and, by reason of mistranslations and omissions, is regarded by him as not wholly satisfactory. I possess a copy of these pages with numerous annotations and corrections in Mr Rabino's hand. One distinctive merit, however, it possesses, for foot-notes are added which give "les principales indications bibliographiques, les comptes rendus et les Traductions in extenso donnés par la Revue des journaux persans."

In English, so far as I know, little has hitherto appeared on the Persian Press, except a small brochure of my own, originally delivered as a lecture to and afterwards published by the Persia Society under the title of *the Persian Press and Persian Journalism*², which was practically a very brief résumé of this present work, and, like it, owes whatever value it possesses to the work of Mr Rabino and Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán "Tarbiyat." The Times, which, in pursuance of the reactionary and obscurantist policy which generally characterizes its views on Eastern politics, made some disparaging remarks on the "mischievous and dangerous" character of "the free Press of Persia" and "other Oriental lands" in its issue of July 2, 1908, published a short article on the subject on October 29, 1909¹; while the Standard of November 15, 1909, contained a good and sympathetic account of Sayyid Ḥasan, the editor of the daily Tīhrán Hablu'l-Matin, who had recently been imprisoned on the charge of speaking disrespectfully of the religion of Islām. Towards the end of May, 1910, the English daily press also contained some account of the protests evoked amongst Persian journalists by the suppression of the Sharq, and the violent scenes to which this high-handed measure gave rise in the National Assembly. The Times of June 28, 1910, again, contained some account of the printers' strike at Tīhrán. The Manchester Guardian of September 28, 1910, contained an article on "Persian newspapers and their work." Lastly, the almost complete suppression of the Press on December 26, 1911, two days after the forcible closure of the National Assembly, was chronicled in several English papers. A certain amount of information about Persian newspapers, together with several translations of articles from some of them, is also contained in my History of the Persian Revolution, published in October, 1910.

² The lecture was delivered on May 23, 1913, and was afterwards published for the Society by John Hogg, 13, Paternoster Row, London, at the price of one shilling. It contains 28 pages.

As one would expect, the fortunes of the Press in Persia follow very closely those of the Constitutional Movement. Before the granting of the Constitution by Muẓaffarū'd-Dīn Sháh in August, 1906, but few newspapers were published in Persia, and these were politically of no account, and only valuable, when they had any value at all, from the literary point of view, on account of the poems and critical articles which they occasionally contained. In the latter part of 1906 several important newspapers, printed with moveable types, began to appear, such as the Majlis (on November 25, 1906) and the Nidá-yi-Waṭan a month later. During the following year (1907) many more appeared, and the number continued to increase until the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, which marked the beginning of the period known to the Persians as "the Minor Despotism" or "Lesser Autocracy" (Istibdád-i-Šaghír), when the free Press was practically destroyed for the time being. As the Constitutional forces began to rally and make headway in Gilán and Iṣfahán, the Press also began to revive in these localities, until, on the triumphant entry of the victorious Nationalists into Ṭihrán and the deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí in July, 1909, it speedily attained a luxuriance even greater than during the "First Constitutional Period," and (save for a brief period in August, 1910, after the fighting which attended the disarmament of the fidá'ís in Ṭihrán, when for some days the Istiglál-i-Írán was the only paper appearing in the capital) continued in this flourishing condition until the forcible closure of the Second National Assembly and the violent aggressions of Russia during the last days of 1911. Since that time it has again been in abeyance: the only notable papers published in Ṭihrán since the beginning of 1912 are, so far as I know, the official or semi-official Aftáb ("Sun"), and the rather more independent Írán-i-Kunúni ("Present Persia")¹; while at Tabríz, Rasht and Mashhad Russian brutality has effectually extinguished not only the Press, but every other manifestation of Liberalism and national life. Two infamous reactionary and anti-patriotic papers, the Fikr ("Thought") and the Tawfíq ("Divine Favour"), were successively promoted and subsidized by the Russians in Tabríz, but to describe them as worthless would be to pay them too high a compliment.

Of the Persian newspapers published outside Persia, which are naturally much more independent of political events in that country than those published within its borders, the most important have been or are the Akhtar ("Star"), printed at Constantinople (1875-1895); the Qánún (1889-1890) in London; the Hablu'l-Matín (Calcutta) founded in 1893 and still continuing; the Thurayyá (1898-9) and Parwarish (1900), printed in Cairo; the Hikmat and Chihra-numá, founded in Egypt, in 1892-3 and 1904-5 respectively, and still continuing; and the Shams ("Sun") of Constantinople, founded in 1909 and still continuing.

During the greater part of the Constitutional Period I regularly received a certain number of the principal papers, such as the Majlis, Niddá-yi-Waṭan, Tamaddun, Šúr-i-Isráfil, Musáwát, Hablu'l-Matín and Šubḥ-i-Šádiq during the First Constitutional Period; and the Írán-i-Naw, Barq, Sharq, Ašr, Waqt, etc. during the Second. I also inherited a number of papers left by Shaykh Ḥasan of Tabríz, formerly teacher of Persian in this University, on his return to Persia. Yet my collection would have been very imperfect had it not been for the extraordinary generosity of Mr H. L. Rabino, who, on his transference from Rasht to Morocco, presented me with the whole of his extensive and valuable collection, which contained complete or almost complete sets of several papers, especially of those published in Rasht, such as the Nasím-i-Shimál, Kinkásh, Šadá-yi-Rasht, Gílán and Khayru'l-Kalám, and some specimens at least of nearly all the papers mentioned in his pamphlet. Thanks to this act of generosity, I believe that I possess the most complete and extensive collection of Persian newspapers which exists outside Persia, and this has been of enormous help to me in the preparation of the present work.

One notable feature of the modern Persian Press is the large amount of excellent verse which is to be found in it, especially in the Rasht papers enumerated at the end of the preceding paragraph, in the Bahár of Mashhad, and in the Šúr-i-Isráfil, Írák-i-Naw and other organs of the Tíhrán Press. Much of this verse is "topical," referring to the stirring events of the recent Revolution and the principal dramatis persone; or patriotic, inciting the youth of Persia to deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice; or satirical. It is, in my opinion, of great interest both from the historical and the literary points of view, and is often equally remarkable for its merit and its originality. As it has hitherto remained almost unnoticed in Europe, I have thought it desirable to include in this volume a selection of these recent patriotic and political poems, chosen more or less at random out of a great number contained in the bound volumes of newspapers in my possession, or supplied to me by some of my Persian friends and correspondents, to whom I here desire to tender my sincere thanks.

Part II of this book (pp. 167-308), which is devoted to these poems, is, therefore, an addition made by myself to the original book of which the translation constitutes Part I. Certain European students of Persian whose researches stop short at the period which, four hundred years ago, produced Jámí, the most celebrated of the later "classical" poets, and his contemporary Dawlatsháh, the most widely-read and one of the least trustworthy of their biographers, constantly assert, that there is no modern Persian poetry worth reading, a statement which I can only account for by supposing that they have not taken the trouble to look for it or read it, but which is nevertheless widely credited. In a lecture on the Literature of Persia which I delivered before the Persia Society on April 26, 1912¹, I spoke briefly of this modern poetry, and gave some specimens of it, and after the lecture several of those present expressed surprise at learning that there was any modern poetry to speak of. This determined me to devote some attention to the refutation of a pernicious error chiefly attributable to the rarity of intimate relations between the literary worlds of Europe and Asia, but fostered and encouraged to some extent by those who desire for political reasons to represent such Asiatic peoples as the Persians as entirely decadent and degenerate, whereas in fact they have during the last eight years shown a vitality which, under happier circumstances, had it been unimpeded by malignant external forces entirely beyond the control of the Persian people, would, I am firmly convinced, have ultimately effected the moral and material regeneration of the country.

Of this renewed vitality the modern Press and Poetry are a reflection and manifestation, and I venture to think that neither the originality nor the merit of the literary products of the Persian Revolution, whether in prose or verse, will be denied by any competent and unprejudiced observer. True literature is the mirror of contemporary thought and sentiment, and the alternating phases of hope and despair of the Persians during the last eight years (1905-1913) are well reflected in the ephemeral literature of that period. It is for this reason that I have, as far as possible, arranged the poetical selections which conclude this volume in chronological order, and have chosen specimens representative of all the principal types, ranging from the classical musammat, mustazád and mathnawí to the popular ballad (tašníf) often abounding in slang and dialect.

At this point it may not be out of place to insert a few particulars concerning some half-dozen contemporary Persian poets, most of whom are represented in Part II of this book, which were supplied to me in January, 1913, by Mírzá Husay'n Kázim-záda, to whose help the latter portion of this book owes much.

1. Bahár Maliku'sh-Shu'ará ("the King of Poets").

"He is a native of Mashhad, and is one of the attendants of the Shrine of the Imám Rizá. He is about thirty-five years of age. During the latter period of the Constitution he founded the newspaper Bahár ('Spring') at Mashhad. In No. 18 of the Calcutta Hablul-Matín of the present year was inserted a poem of his entitled 'A critical offering to His Excellency Sir Edward Grey'.

2. Árif of Qazwín.

"He is a man of dervish-like disposition, and often sings his poems to the accompaniment of music at public and patriotic meetings, where he is warmly applauded by all. On the occasion of a representation given in Tíhrán a month before² the heart-rending catastrophe of Tabríz by the Literary Circle of the Democratic Party under the title of 'the National Festival to commemorate the Victory of the supporters of the Constitution and the defeat of Muḥammad 'Alī,' 'Ārif undertook the rôle of minstrel, and, in a most charming and affecting manner, sung the poem which he had composed for this occasion, and which begins as follows :

پیام دوشم ز پیر میفروش آمد
بنوش باده که یک مالتی بهوش آمد
هزار پرده ز ایران درید استبداد
هزار شکر که مشروطه پرده پوش آمد
'Last night a message reached me from the old Wine-seller:
'Drink wine, for a whole Nation has come to its senses!
'Despotism tore away from Persia a thousand veils:
'A thousand thanks that the Constitution has come to replace these veils!'

"Most of 'Ārif's poems, which consist of ghazals (odes), have been printed², and are sung in public and private assemblies. In consequence of a verse³ offensive to the Regent he was imprisoned with other Democrats early in 1913, but shortly afterwards escaped to Iṣfahān.

3. Mirzā Mustafā 'Farhang.'

"He is a young man about twenty-eight years of age, who founded the newspaper Khāwaristān ('the Eastern Land') in Tīhrān during the first Period of the Constitution. During the second Period he was Chief of Police, first at Samnān and afterwards at Qum. He is at present studying in Paris.

4. Sayyid Ashraf of Gilān.

"He is about forty years of age. During the Second Period of the Constitution he founded the paper Nāsim-i-Shimāl ('Breeze of the North') at Rasht⁴. After the tragic occurrences

¹ "To tear away veils" here means to expose the nakedness or defects, and "to replace the veils" to restore self-respect.

² I possess a printed pamphlet of 13 pp. containing six of these poems, arranged for the use of singers. It is dated the 26th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1329 (= Oct. 20, 1911), and is described as "offered to the Literary Society in memory of the glorious Festival of the Victors," i.e. the Nationalists who captured Tīhrān in July, 1909.

³ This is the verse in question :—

آن کسی را که درین ملک سلیمان کردند، مالت امروز بفهمید که او اهرمن است.

⁴ See No. 354 (pp. 148-9 infra), from which it will be seen that this paper first appeared on Sept. 10, 1907, nine months before the destruction of the First National Assembly, and therefore during the First Period of the Constitution.

which took place there [in December, 1911, and January, 1912] he was compelled to leave that city, and his printing-press was destroyed [by the Russians]. The poems which he wrote criticizing the Mullás are much appreciated.

5. Púr-i-Dáwúd.

"He is a young man about twenty-five years of age. He studied French in Beyrout (Syria) and is now studying Law in Paris, where he has helped to found, and actively supports, the 'Literary and Scientific Society of the Persians in Paris.' He is especially skilful in the employment [in his poems] of old Persian words.

6. Ja'far-i-Khámna'í.

"He learned French surreptitiously in Tabríz, his father, a fanatical and old-fashioned merchant, having forbidden him to study foreign languages, or to write poetry, for which he shewed a natural aptitude. Hence his poems are, as a rule, unsigned."

Some twenty poems accompanied these brief biographies, of which the best are included in Part II (pp. 260-299). Other notable contemporary poets, of whose work I have not been able to give specimens here, are Malik-i-Sásání, Shúrída and Badí'u'z-Zamán of Shíráz, Adíb of Nishápúr, Husámu'l-Islám "Dánish," Ahmad Suhaylí of Tabríz (hanged by the Russians in January 1912), Husayn Khán Dánish, etc.

It seems natural at this point, for the sake of comparison, to say a few words about modern Arabic and Turkish patriotic poetry.

The best modern Arabic verse with which I am acquainted has been produced in Egypt. Of contemporary poets in that country Shawqí Bey and Háfız Ibráhím are two of the most famous. The former is essentially a Court poet, who writes graceful but insincere verses in praise of the Khedive or in description of State Balls and other Court functions. Háfız Ibráhím is a much more sincere and therefore effective poet, and his verses deal with a much wider range of subjects. Thus, to take at random a few of the poems contained in the second part of his Diwān (published at Cairo in 1907) we find two in praise of the Japanese; another addressed to the Empress Eugénie; another appealing for greater recognition of the Arabic language; another in praise of Victor Hugo; another on the victims of a fire at Mīt Ghamr; another on the dearness of food; a threnody (marthiya) on the late Muftí of Egypt, Shaykh Muḥammad 'Abduh; another threnody on Maḥmūd Sámí Pasha al-Bárúdí; another addressed to the late King Edward the Seventh on the occasion of his Coronation, etc. The two finest of his poems, however, were called forth by the lamentable tragedy of Denshawī (or Deneshwáy) in the summer of 1906, of which, both on account of the celebrity which it attained, and of the painful and humiliating reflections which it evokes, I shall say nothing more in this place¹. The first of these two poems (pp. 44-47 of the edition above mentioned) begins:

أَيُّهَا الْقَائِمُونَ بِلَأْمَرِ فِينَا هل نَسْتَمِرُّ وَلَا نَا وَ الْوُدَادَا

The second (pp. 102-104), which is the finer of the two, is addressed to Lord Cromer on his return to Egypt in the autumn of the same year, and begins:

قَصْرَ الدُّوبَارَةِ هَلْ أَتَاكَ حَدِيثُنَا فَالشَّرْقُ رِيْعٌ لَهُ وَ ضَجَّ الْمَغْرِبُ
أَهْلًا بِسَاكِنِكَ الْكَرِيمِ وَ مَرْحَبًا بعدَ التَّحِيَّةِ إِنَّنِي أَتَعَبْتُ

A line or two further on the poet finely says, addressing Lord Cromer:

عَلَّمْتَنَا مَعْنَى الْحَيَاةِ فَمَا لَنَا لَا نَشْرَبُ لَهَا وَ مَا لَكَ تَغَضُّبُ
أَنْقَمْتَ مِنَّا أَنْ نُحَسَّ وَ إِنَّمَا هَذَا الَّذِي تَدْعُو إِلَيْهِ وَ تَنْدُبُ

"Thou didst teach us the meaning of Life, and why should we not aspire to it, and wherefore shouldst thou be angry?"

"Art thou wrath with us because we have feelings [of patriotism]? It is even unto this that thou art wont to urge and incite us!"

This poem, which is written with equal power and restraint, undoubtedly expressed the deepest feelings of the Egyptian people, but it is to be feared that it was never read by him to whom it was addressed.

Another book of Arabic verse which created a great stir in Egypt, leading to the flight of the author to Constantinople, the prosecution and imprisonment of the Nationalist leaders, Muḥammad Ferīd Bey and Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Azīz Shawīsh, and the confiscation of the book, was a collection of patriotic poems entitled Waṭaniyyatī ("My Patriotism"), by Shaykh 'Alī al-Ghāyātī. Most of these poems are topical, referring to such events as Lord Cromer's departure from Egypt on May 6, 1907; the revival of the Press Law by Buṭrus Pasha on March 25, 1909; the assassination of Buṭrus Pasha by Ibrāhīm Efendi Nāsif al-Wardānī on February 20, 1910; the execution of al-Wardānī on June 28, 1910; Roosevelt's speech of March 29, 1910, at Cairo, and his Guildhall speech of May 31, 1910, both of which caused intense annoyance to the Egyptians, etc. Some of the earlier poems, composed in 1907, originally appeared in the paper al-Mu'ayyad, but most of the later ones were first published in the celebrated Nationalist organ al-Liṭwā ("the Standard"). Proceedings were instituted against the poet and against Ferīd Bey and Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Azīz Shawīsh (each of whom had contributed a preface to the little volume) on July 14, 1910. Ferīd Bey was at the time in Europe, and the poet Shaykh 'Alī al-Ghāyātī¹ succeeded, as mentioned above, in escaping to Constantinople, so that Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Azīz Shawīsh was left for the moment to bear the brunt of the prosecution. He was sent for trial on July 26, and on August 6, 1910, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, and Ferīd Bey on his subsequent return to Egypt suffered a similar fate.

So effective was the suppression of this little book Waṭaniyyatī that it cost me an infinity of trouble to obtain even the loan of a copy, and its rarity and inaccessibility may therefore excuse me for briefly describing it. It comprises 129 pages of 18 x 13 centimetres, and contains: (1) the Author's Preface (pp. 2-3); (2) his dedication of the work to the dead Nationalist leader, Muṣṭafá Kámil Pasha, and his living successors, Feríd Bey and Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Azíz Shawísh (pp. 4-5); (3) Feríd Bey's Preface (pp. 6-8) on "the influence of Poetry in the education of Nations"; (4) Shaykh Shawísh's Preface (pp. 9-11) on "Poetry and the Poet"; (5) an Introduction (pp. 12-32), apparently by the poet, dealing chiefly with the dearth of patriotic verse in Egypt at the time of writing, the history and influence of the Marseillaise, and a panegyric on the French Revolution. This concludes the preliminary prose portion of the book, which also contains signed portraits of the three collaborators. It is followed by the poems, forty-six in number (pp. 33-128), which are fully annotated to explain the circumstances under which each was written.

I have not at hand an account of the trial, but, so far as my recollection serves me, the prosecution was chiefly based on three poems (Nos. 15, 27 and 30), of which the first (published in the Liwa' on August 19, 1909) was addressed to Dingra (the murderer of Sir Curzon Wylie) who had been executed two days previously: the second dealt with the assassination of the Coptic Premier Buṭrus Pasha, who was shot by al-Wardání on February 20, 1910; and the third (a short poem of four verses) described the condemnation to death of al-Wardání, who was executed on June 28, 1910. The Prefaces contributed by Feríd Bey and Shaykh Shawísh contained nothing which would appear to justify a prosecution for sedition according to English ideas, but the writers seem to have been held responsible for the utterances of the poet whose work they thus in some measure endorsed, in spite of their contention that they had not read all the poems contained in the volume to which they placed themselves in the position of sponsors. In order to enable the reader to judge for himself how far the utterances of Feríd Bey and Shaykh Shawísh merited such draconic reprisals, and also because their remarks are of interest in connection with the general development of patriotic poetry in the East (a quite recent though widely-spread phenomenon), a complete translation of their two Prefaces is here given. Ferîd Bey's Preface is as follows :

"The Influence of Poetry in the Education of Nations.

"Poetry is one of the most active agents in awakening nations from their lethargy and in inspiring them with the spirit of vitality, even as it is one of the chief incentives to battle and inspirers of heroic endeavour and risking of life in war. Hence from ancient times we find such heroic poetry prevalent amongst the Arabs and other noble nations, such as the Romans, the Greeks, and so forth.

"No one will deny that the French song composed by the French officer, Rouget de l'Isle, and entitled 'the Marseillaise,' was one of the most potent causes of the victory of France over the kings of Europe, who had combined to extinguish the Spirit of Freedom on its first appearance.

"Hence some writers amongst us have written much on the necessity of composing patriotic elegies and songs, so that our children may learn them by heart and sing them in their leisure hours or recite them in their play-time, instead of the songs and verses which the street-children repeat, especially during the nights of Ramazân the Blessed. So likewise they have written on the necessity of changing the songs which are sung on festive occasions, all of which revolve round one point, to wit Love and the attribution to the Beloved of qualities 'which God hath not revealed anything to authorize!'

"One of the results of the autocratic government of an individual, equally in the West or in the East, is the destruction of heroic poetry, and the inducing of poets, by the means of gifts and favours, to compose insipid panegyrics and futile encomiums on kings, nobles and ministers, and to withdraw themselves from everything which can educate men's minds and implant in them the love of Liberty and Independence. So likewise another result of this despotism is the complete absence from the sermons delivered in places of worship of anything which might profit the hearer, since all of them revolve round the subject of withdrawal from the world, mingled with incitements to idleness and the patient expectation of daily bread without any effort or work.

Hence those nations which have undergone political subjugation, becoming apprized of this fact, make the production of patriotic poems and heroic verses (in the classical language for the educated class and in the common language for peasants, artisans and others of the uneducated classes) one of the first of their principles; and this becomes one of the most potent factors in inspiring all classes with a spirit of patriotism. And I rejoice that this auspicious Risorgimento has permeated our country, and that most of the poets have left off composing panegyrics on nobles and governors, and have turned their attention to, and used their gifts for, the production of patriotic poetry, and the employment of it to describe the political circumstances which engage public attention. The present work, Watanıyyatı, has appeared in the vanguard of this auspicious and righteous revival.

My joy is increased by the fact that village poets have composed verses and songs about the Denshawi affair and what grew out of it; about the late Muṣṭafá Kámil Pasha and his patriotic efforts; and about the Suez Canal question and the repudiation of its legality by the General Assembly¹; and that they have begun to sing them around their camp-fires and at their festivals to the accompaniment of their simple instruments of music. This, please God, is a movement full of promise, proving that the efforts of the patriotic party have borne fruit, and that their efforts have reached the depths of men's hearts in all classes of the people, promising a speedy deliverance, by God's permission, from the occupation and from the despotism of an individual.

It therefore behoves the poets to abandon the habit of composing laudatory poems and panegyrics on the occasion of notable anniversaries and recognized festivals, and to employ their lofty and God-given talents for the service and education of the people, instead of devoting them to the service of the rich and the flattery of nobles, or using them as a means to gain the favour of Ministers : seeing that the rulers pass away, while the Nation remains.

"Peace be upon him who heareth and remembereth, and who succeeds in serving his country and striving for it : 'Verily his striving shall be regarded, and God will reward him with an abundant recompense.'"

Here follows Shaykh 'Abdu'l-Aziz Shawîsh's Preface :

"Poetry and Poets.

"Some poetasters are wont to imagine that poetry consists merely in metrical sentences in which due regard is paid to the proper rhyme. Hence you see them as bold as can be in composing qaṣīdas (panegyrics) and in laying claim to poetic talent, relying herein on the ignorance of the majority as to the real nature of poetry, its essential qualities, and the conditions on which depend its correctness and perfection, and well aware of the rarity of persons of sufficient culture to discriminate between the bad and the good, or to comprehend the subtle differences which distinguish fruitful from barren verses. Especially is this the case at this time, when the faculty of properly wielding the Arabic language has grown weak, in consequence of the growth of foreign influences over the Arabs and the bad taste which accompanies this, so that the very construction of its phrases is in the utmost need of rectification.

"If you wish to know what good poetry is, put away from yourself metrical feet and undue regard for rhyming letters and elaborate verbiage, and pay heed only to the effect which it leaves in your spirit. For indeed the best poetry is that which possesses your heart until you put it aside, even as the finest pictures are those which hold your vision until they are hidden from it. If, therefore, you would know the difference between natural and artificial poetry, if you perceive when you hear it that the ideas which it expresses are, as it were, spirits which whisper to you, while its words come forth almost spontaneously from your mouth, that is natural poetry ; while if its motives enter your heart in diverse ways, and its exordium and arrangement do not harmonize when heard, that is artificial poetry¹, of the shallow outpourings of which none will drink the dregs save the ignorant poetaster or the hireling poet. For how can poetry be beautiful or sweet to hear when it issues forth from a heart unmoved and a soul unaffected ? Or is poetry aught else than a mirror wherein are seen the effects of psychical influences controlling the spirit of the composer ?

" 'Abdu'l-Malik once said to Artât ibn Suhayya², 'How is it now with thy poetry ?' 'By Allâh,' he replied, 'O Commander of the Faithful, I neither rejoice, nor am angry, nor desire, nor fear ; and poetry is not produced save as the result of one of these four emotions !'

"That is not poetry which results from the poet's contemplation of fantastic forms which transcend realities, or from his pursuing the path of exaggeration in praise and blame. Poetry is naught else than the depicting of the images which circulate in the mind ; and just as the most skilful painter is not he who combines incompatible elements or who portrays on his canvas something which does not correspond with any existing eternal reality, but rather he who turns his attention to something which does exist and portrays it with so fine a shading that it seems to him who gazes on it as though he were looking at its subject as something endowed with external existence, so likewise the most skilful poet is he who attains to true conceptions and judgments and sets them forth to the hearer in sentences which captivate his intelligence and impel him to act in conformity with their requirements.

"All that the poet has to do, therefore, after he has fully endowed his poetry with its due measure of sincerity and discriminating insight, is to clothe it in well-conceived sentences and emphasize the harmony of the ideas one with another. For the composition of poetry is only like setting words to music and adapting them to song; and just as melody is not pleasing to the ear except when its component parts harmonize, so also poetry, when its sentences do not harmonize and its ideas do not accord, is a mere deafening of the ears and a grief to the spirit of man.

² 'Abdu'l-Malik, the fifth Umayyad Caliph, reigned A.D. 685-705 (A.H. 65-86). Artâ was one of the most eminent poets who belong exclusively to the Umayyad period.

"If anyone would see a specimen of poetry which combines grace of words with wealth of ideas, and strength of structure with sincerity of diction, let him read a little of this book Wafāniyyatī; and let him who will enquire of its effects from these growing energies, and these ardent souls, and these loyal resolutions, for they are of its planting and of the fairest of its fruits."

As regards the poems of Shaykh 'Alī al-Ghāyātī, while it is impossible to ignore their spirit and vigour, or to deny that many of them contain only legitimate though sometimes caustic criticisms of men and measures obnoxious to the author's political creed, several of them are quite indefensible, especially the poem on Dingra, which, in spite of certain qualifications made by the author in his notes, does undoubtedly convey the impression that he condoned to a certain extent the terrible and tragic crime with which this man's name is associated. It may be questioned whether any murder in recent times has produced results so evil and so far reaching. The assassin had no grudge, personal or political, against his victim Sir Curzon Wylie, who, indeed, was known as a friend and benefactor of Indian students of a kind greatly needed and too rarely found in this country in the present day. This fact greatly increased the indignation aroused by a crime which seemed almost insane in its purposelessness, and this indignation manifested itself, illogically enough, in a widespread and indiscriminating alienation of sympathy from the whole body of Indian students, most of them hard-working, peaceable, intelligent and deserving men, who visit this country, and even tended to increase that unhappy antipathy which has grown up in recent years between the West and the East. The more one loves the East, appreciates its virtues, and sympathizes with its aspirations, the more must one deplore this unhappy event, and desire that it should be buried in oblivion rather than enshrined in verse.

How far, in English law, the writer of a preface is held responsible for the contents of the book to which it is prefixed is another question ; but neither of these prefaces, especially that of Shaykh Shawîsh, would appear to the unprejudiced reader to contain in itself any matter so seditious or objectionable as to deserve so harsh a punishment as was meted out to its author. There is moreover a certain irony in the general attitude assumed by the most powerful " Liberal " Government of modern England towards freedom of speech and freedom of the Press in its Eastern dependencies which constantly recalls to my mind the following anecdote concerning the above-mentioned Umayyad Caliph 'Abdu'l-Malik related in that delightful history of the Caliphate the *Kitābu'l-Fakhri*¹:

" 'Abdu'l-Malik before he succeeded to the Caliphate, was one of the pietists of al-Madīna, so that he was nicknamed 'the Mosque Dove,' because of his indefatigable reading of the Scripture. But when his father died, and he was acclaimed Caliph, he closed the Sacred Volume and said, 'This is a separation between me and thee!' "

When I read or recall this passage there rises before my mind's eye the form of a veteran " Liberal " statesman on the eve of the " Seven fat years " reading, marking, learning, and inwardly digesting John Stuart Mill's Liberty. To him enter his enthusiastic followers and admirers to announce the triumph of " Liberalism " and his elevation to the rank of Secretary of State and Cabinet Minister ; whereupon he lays aside the treatise on *Liberty*², saying, as 'Abdu'l-Malik said more than twelve hundred years ago, "This is a separation between me and thee!"

¹ There are three editions of this book (composed in the thirteenth century of our era), that of Ahlwardt (Gotha, 1860), that of Derenbourg (Paris, 1895), and the cheap but excellent Egyptian reprint (A.H. 1317). The anecdote here quoted occurs on p. 110 of the latter. A French translation of the text by Émile Amar has recently been published by Leroux of Paris.

² This is a quotation from the Sūratu'l-Kahf (Qur'ān, xviii, 77).

³ Not only in Egypt but also in India the Press Law is now (November, 1913) excessively stringent. A pamphlet entitled " Come over into Macedonia and help us,"

It would be out of place here to speak at length of the contents of Watanīyyatī, though most of the forty-six poems which it contains are interesting both on account of their intrinsic merit and because of their connection with recent political events. I will only mention two excellent ones (Nos. 33 and 34, pp. 108-112) addressed to Mr Roosevelt in remonstrance against the speeches he delivered at the Egyptian University in Cairo on Monday, March 29, 1910, and at the Guildhall in London on May 31 of the same year. I subjoin a score of verses from the first, which is at once the more spirited and the more graceful.

لعمرك لست بالرجل الهمام	إذا عدّ الهمام من الكرام appealing for help for the Turkish victims of the Balkan Crusaders, and published by Moḥammed 'Alī, the editor of the Indian Comrade, was confiscated; and the same fate has, I understand, overtaken my pamphlet entitled "The Reign of Terror in Tabriz," describing the cruelties perpetrated by the Russians at the beginning of 1912 in that unhappy city. The law is so stringent that it can, apparently, be employed to suppress historical statements of facts, even if unaccompanied by unfavourable comments and criticisms, as appears from the following paragraph from the Delhi Comrade of November 13, 1912: "Again, there is the question of the liberty of the Press, which has of late been rising in the scale of public notice. The Press Act of 1910 has given a rude check to the progress of what is known in the West as the Fourth Estate, and has almost choked the mouth of the Indian Journalist, who gasps at the freedom of writing which is practically enjoyed by the Anglo-Indian section of the Press in spite of the dreaded Act. The worst features of the Act have been signally brought to light by the judgment on the application of Mr Mohammed 'Alī, by a Special Bench of the Calcutta High Court, against an order of the Bengal Government declaring, under Section 12 of the said Act, a perfectly harmless pamphlet entitled Come over into Macedonia and help us forfeited to His Majesty. In the course of the judgment we have seen how the learned Judges have exposed the absurdity of Section 4, which condemns the printing and publishing of 'any newspaper, book or other document containing any words, signs or visible representations which are likely or may have a tendency, directly or indirectly, whether by reticence, suggestion, allusion, metaphor, implication or otherwise (the italics are ours) to bring into hatred or contempt any class or section of His Majesty's subjects in British India.'"

“By thy life, thou art not a magnanimous man, if the magnanimous man is reckoned amongst the noble!
The noble ones of mankind are the most truthful in their speech, and the furthest removed from the falsehoods of meaner men.
What ails thee that thou didst not stand up by the Nile save, to cause us to listen to vain words?
I perceive that thou regardest [other] countries with a different eye from that wherewith thou didst regard thine own country a year ago!
As though we were inferior to thy people in lofty qualities, and inferior to thee in the [use of] the pen and the sword!
Gently, O champion of history! For we hold a position which waxes with the days;
We combine [preeminence in] this world and in the Faith, and have been lords of creation since the days of Shem!

*Who are ye, what time the nations boast of glory high enthroned on the pinnacles of the pyramids?
We had what we have of ancient glory when you were not there amongst mankind.
If you will, ask history concerning us, for verily we illuminated it when you were still in darkness.*

*I see thee ignorant, and would that I knew whether thou seekest war or peace!
Thou breathest forth and sendest calumny amongst us, shooting at us with arrows which miss the mark.
Hath the nature of the wild beasts¹ passed over into thee, until thou frownest when thou art in a place where thou should'st smile?
Thou didst make a speech, and they gave thee a title without [thy having] any knowledge, and it was [a case of] 'a bow

Both men were fabricators of falsehood, but I consider Roosevelt the more deserving of blame.
Henceforth do not cast reproach on us, nor on the greatest of the burden which was added to our other great calamities!''*

⁴ The last verse is a quotation or "insertion" (ʿatf) from one of Shawqī Bey's poems.

Lord Cromer's work, Modern Egypt, called forth some angry verses, and although the poet exaggerates when, in a footnote on p. 36, he describes this book as "crammed with vituperation and calumny of Egypt and the Egyptians and Islám and the Muslims," it undoubtedly contains statements and expressions which are unnecessarily wounding to Egyptian and Muslim sentiment, and in some cases quite unjustifiable. One specimen of each kind may be given. In vol. ii, pp. 228-9, Lord Cromer says: "It should never be forgotten that Islám cannot be reformed; that is to say, reformed Islám is Islám no longer; it is something else; we cannot as yet tell what it will eventually be"; and he quotes the opinion of Sir William Muir in support of this view, which I believe to be incorrect, and which, thus baldly phrased, is certainly calculated to wound Muslim sentiment. This point, however, is susceptible of argument and discussion; but it is otherwise when Lord Cromer speaks (vol. i. p. 324) of "some illiterate Egyptian of the type of Arábi or Mahmúd Sami." 'Arábi Pasha, a simple soldier, had no pretensions to literary culture, though he was far from illiterate in his own language; but Mahmúd Sami Pasha was not only a great bibliophile but one of the most notable poets of modern Egypt, some of whose verses are included in every anthology of modern Arabic poetry¹. No doubt Lord Cromer spoke in perfect good faith, being obsessed by the idea "that there was only one true civilization in the world, and that was the civilization of Europe²"; but the very fact that he did not even know, after spending nearly a quarter of a century in Egypt, that so famous a man as Mahmúd Sami Pasha was a great poet amongst his own people shews better than anything else can do how far removed he was from any real sympathy with or interest in the higher manifestations of the intellectual life of that people concerning whose material circumstances he writes with such unquestioned authority.

Waṭaniyyatī is undoubtedly a remarkable book, deserving a

¹ See, for example, the anthology of Arabic verse published in A.H. 1322 (A.D. 1904) at Cairo by Amín 'Umar al-Bājūrī and Muḥammad Ḥasan Maḥmūd, pp. 248-252. Mahmúd Sami himself compiled an extensive anthology of Arabic verse, which has been published since his death (in A.H. 1322 = A.D. 1904-5) in four volumes comprising 1803 pages.

² Op. cit., vol. ii, p. 343.

fuller notice than can here be accorded it. If, on the one hand, it contained, as already admitted, certain things which had better have remained unwritten and unpublished, it also contained genuine poetry inspired by a fervent though indiscreet patriotism—poetry of the kind so well described by Shaykh Shawish as “that which possesses your heart until you put it aside,” and the ideas embodied in which “are, as it were, spirits which whisper to you, while its words come forth almost spontaneously from the mouth”; or which, in the words of a much older Oriental critic, the twelfth century Persian poet Nizámí-i-‘Arúzi of Samarkand, “by acting on the imagination excites the faculties of anger and desire in such a way that by its suggestion men’s temperaments become affected with exultation or depression, whereby it conduces to the accomplishment of great deeds in the order of the world¹.”

Patriotic poetry, as we understand it, hardly existed in the Muhammadan East until the most recent times. The nearest approach to it is to be found in such old Arabic poems as the Mu‘allaga of ‘Amr b. Kulthúm, who, writing in the “Days of Ignorance” or “Barbarism” (Ayyámu’l-Jáhiliyyat) before the advent of the Prophet Muḥammad, boasted of the prowess of his tribe in words which, mutatis mutandis, might, as my old friend the late Sayyid ‘Alí Bilgrámí used to say, have been written by Rudyard Kipling about the English, as where he says (to quote one verse only):

مَلَأْنَا الْأَرْضَ حَتَّى ضَاقَ عَنَّا ۖ وَنَحْنُ الْبَحْرَ نَمْلُؤُهُ سَفِينَا ۖ

“We have filled the earth until it hath become too narrow for us,
And the sea likewise we have filled with our ships.”

In Persia some four centuries later (early eleventh century of the Christian era) the great Firdawsí displays in the “Epic of the Kings” or Sháh-náma something of the same spirit of pride in his nation and race and that love of heroic deeds and high achievements which the Arabs call Hamása. Such poetry in ancient times is, however, so far as my studies go, always of the triumphant, victorious and imperialistic type; while of the more subtle and moving patriotic verse of the conquered and helpless nation (that verse wherein Ireland stands supreme¹), which can only strive to maintain its spiritual life under the more or less galling yoke of the foreign invader, and must sustain its sense of nationhood by memories of a glorious past and hopes of a happier future, there is hardly a trace in Persian or Arabic until this present century.

In this connection I may with advantage insert a translation of the Preface prefixed by Mīrzā Āqā Khān of Kirmān, one of the first "Martyrs of the Constitution,"² to his Sālār-nāma, a poem written in imitation of the Shāh-nāma, of which the suppressed portions have been lately rendered accessible in the Introductory volume of the Nāẓimū'l-Islām's "History of the Persian Awakening" (pp. 242—4):

"Having regard to the fact that I have made use in the compilation of this brief history of ancient monuments, old writings, and the substantial discoveries of contemporary historians, I have concluded the book also with an epic ending, after the fashion and method of the poets of Europe. Possibly some of the accomplished scholars and fortune-favoured men of letters of Persia may make me the object of attack on account of this, and may say, 'What sort of versification is this, and what kind of poetical composition, wherein, setting thyself in opposition to all the poets of Persia, thou hast come out from the circle of good manners and good sense, which it behoves all good tail-wagging trencher-lickers to observe, and, abandoning the straight and safe high-road of flattery and servility, takest upon thyself to speak words of so true and serious an import?' "Travel the road as previous travellers have travelled."

"To this I answer, trees must be known by their fruits, and deeds must be judged by their results. No one disputes the effectiveness or originality of the old poets and orators of Persia, nor does anyone contest the brilliancy and grace of their verses, while the insolent charm inherent in the poetry of many of the moderns is a matter on which all are agreed. But he must consider what sort of effect has hitherto been produced by the writings of our poets and men of letters, what kind of fruit has been borne by the tree which they have planted in the garden of song, and what results have been given by the seed which they have sown.

² Concerning Mīrzā Āqā Khān and his Sālār-nāma, see my Persian Revolution, pp. 93-96 and 409-415.

"The result of their exaggerations and hyperboles has been to concentrate falsehood in the simple natures of the people.

"The result of their praise and flattery has been to stimulate kings and ministers to the commission of all manner of vile and foolish actions.

"The result of their metaphysics and mysticism has been nothing but a crop of brutish idleness and sloth, and the production of religious mendicants and beggars.

"The result of their odes to roses and nightingales has been nothing but the corruption of our young men's morals, and the impelling of them towards smooth cheeks and red wine.

"The result of their satires and facetiae has been nothing but the diffusion of vice and immorality and the promotion of sinful and reprehensible practices.

"If we examine the history of the poets of Islám and the patrons whom they flattered we shall say :

"It was the poems and panegyrics of Abú Nuwás and others like him which plunged the 'Abbásid Caliphs into the folly of wine-drinking, mid-day slumbers, and other mischiefs.

"It was the qaṣídas of 'Unṣurí, Rúdagí, Farrukhí and others like them which destroyed and undermined the Royal Houses of Sámán and Ghazna.

"It was the 'Divine Metaphysics' and Mysticism of 'Iráqí and Maghribí and such as they which begot all these thriftless mendicants and worthless idlers.

"It was the flatteries of Anwarí, Zahrí [-i-Fáryábí], Rashíd [-i-Waṭwát] and Kamál [-i-Isfahání] which produced such tyrannical, worthless and arrogant Kings.

"It was the erotic verses of Sa'dí, Humám, and such as they, which utterly corrupted the morals of the youth of Persia.

"It was the satires and facetiae of Súzaní, Saná'í (sic!) and others which gave such currency to immorality and sin.

"It was the detestable obscurities of Kháqání and such as he which involved Mírzá Mahdí Khán [the historian of Nádir Sháh], and the Sáhib ['Alá'u'd-Dín 'Aṭá Malik-i-Juwaynî, the historian of the Mongols], and 'the Court Panegyrist' [Wassâf-i-Hazrat] in their senseless inanities of verbiage.

"It was the long-winded rodomontades of Šabá, the hair-splittings of Shiháb, and the Kuláh-julís and 'Alí-qulís of Qa'ání which have to-day entirely obliterated love of virtue and hatred of vice from the natures of the Persian nobles, plunging them into extraordinary vices and vilenesses: even as God Most High says [Qur'án, xxvi, 224], 'As for the poets, the erring follow them.'

"The poets of Europe have composed and do compose every variety of these poems, but they have brought poetry and the poetic art under so sound a scheme of arrangement, and have made their verses so conformable to the laws of Logic that they have no other effect than to illuminate men's ideas, dispel vain legends, endow their minds with insight, admonish the careless, educate the foolish, castigate the ignorant, incite men's souls to virtuous deeds, reprove and turn aside their hearts from vicious actions, admonish them and inspire them with zeal, patriotism and devotion to their people. This is the true meaning of 'Verily in poetry there is somewhat of wisdom.'

"Yes, the proper effect of poetry is the stirring of men's hearts, the moving of their compassion, and the quickening of their understandings and thoughts; but it must impel them to virtues, piety and moderation, not to vile, evil and mean deeds, and the like. Of the Persian poets the only one whom European men of letters praise is that same Firdawsí of Tús, the verses of whose Sháh-náma, although in some places they are not free from hyperbole, do nevertheless, in some degree inspire in the hearts of Persians patriotism, love of their race, energy and courage; while here and there they also strive to reform their characters.

"I trust that the result of my own worthless verses may also shortly become evident and apparent in the world of humanity, and may hereafter be, alike to the eloquent and effective writer, a model and exemplar leading them to imitate the poets of Europe, so that they may realize that such poetry as does not convey some moral or lead to some philosophical conclusion is merely of the nature of empty phrases and idle tales and vapourings."

The views here advanced by Mírzá Áqá Khán are, of course, a monstrous exaggeration of the real facts, and I have only quoted them to illustrate the development amongst Persians also of a demand for patriotic poetry and for a note of greater sincerity and higher purpose in verse. His disparagement of the great classical poets is, in my opinion, ill-considered and unjustifiable: the noble mysticism of Jalálu'd-Dín Rúmi, the tender passion of Háfiz, and the practical wisdom of Sa'di will never be superseded so long as the Persian language is spoken and studied. But this passion for the Fatherland is a new thing in Asia, or at any rate in Western and Central Asia, and it is perhaps natural and inevitable that its votaries should be impatient of the centuries of poetical talent devoted to other, and, in their eyes, less worthy objects.

Curiously enough it was the Ottoman Turks, a people far less original and talented than either the Persians or the Arabs, who, so far as the Near East is concerned, introduced the hitherto unknown ideas of "the Fatherland" (Watan), "the Nation" or "People" (Millat), and "Liberty" (Hurriyat), and who succeeded in giving to these old words this new and potent significance. The origin of that movement, half literary and half political, associated with the "New Turks" (Yeni Turkler), or, as they are absurdly called, in phraseology which they themselves have now unfortunately accepted, "Young Turks," has been well sketched by my friend the late Mr E. J. W. Gibb in the fifth volume of his monumental History of Ottoman Poetry, and is elaborated in much fuller detail in a supplement to that work compiled by the learned and ingenious 'Dr Rizá Tevfik, formerly Deputy for Adrianople in the Turkish Parliament, which I am now translating into English and hope to publish before long. The pioneers of this movement, as is well known, were Shinásí Efendi (died in 1871), Ziyá Pasha (died in 1880), and Kemál Bey (died in 1888), who was the greatest of the three. All these drew their ideas, both political and literary, from France, and the period of their greatest activity may be placed between 1863, when Kemál, then only twenty-three years of age, joined forces with Shinásí, and 1873, when he published his great patriotic play Wâtan, yaklıd Silistra ("Silistria, or the Fatherland") of which the production at the theatre at Gedik Pasha caused so extraordinary an ebullition of feeling. These three eminent writers represent what Gibb calls the "Period of Preparation" (1859-1879) of Modern Turkish Poetry, the succeeding period, inaugurated in 1879 by the publication of 'Abdu'l-Haqq Hâmid Bey's Şahrâ ("the Country"), being what he terms the "Period of Achievement." Apart from his merits as a poet and dramatist, to Kemál Bey undoubtedly belongs the credit of giving to the three old Arabic words mentioned above the new meanings of "Fatherland," "People" and "Freedom," not only in Turkey, but throughout the Muhammadan East. In classical Arabic wâtan means merely the place of birth or domicile; millat a religious community; and hurriyyat the state of a free man or one nobly born as opposed to that of a slave or plebeian; and Kemál's great and enduring achievement was that he succeeded in giving to these words, not only in literary circles but in the mouths of the people, and not only in Turkey but in Persia and the Arabic-speaking lands as well, the full and exact significance of Patrie, People or Nation, and Liberté; so that the humblest patriots who died on the Russian gallows at Tabriz in January 1912 cried with their last breath "Yashasun Wâtan" or "Zinda bád Wâtan" in the full sense of "Vive la Patrie!"

Turkish patriotic poetry, as has been already suggested, is rather of the "Rule Britannia" than of the "God save Ireland" type, and contemplates death on the field of battle as the alternative to a glorious victory, rather than death on the gallows as the alternative to the renunciation of National aspirations. Of recent Turkish patriotic poetry a very interesting example is afforded by a little book entitled Türkîya Shî'r-ler ("Turkish poems") by Emîn Bey, published in A.H. 1316 (A.D. 1898-9), the proceeds of the sale of which were assigned to the relief of the widows and orphans of Turkish soldiers killed in the war with the Greeks. This book, beautifully printed and illustrated, was produced at the celebrated printing-press of the late Ebu'z-Ziyâ Tevfîq Bey, is prefaced by laudatory letters from Rijâ'î-zâdé Ekrem Bey, 'Abdu'l-Haqq Hamid Bey, Dr Rizâ Tevfîq Bey, and other eminent contemporary Turkish poets and thinkers, and is remarkable for the extraordinarily Turkish quality of its vocabulary, from which every endeavour has been made to banish the Arabic and Persian elements prevalent in the older Turkish literary idiom. The author may be most briefly described as a Turkish Rudyard Kipling, and his poems as Barrack Room Ballads of the Imperial Ottoman Army. They bear such titles as "A Voice from Anatolia : or, Going to the War"; "Crossing the Greek frontier"; "After planting the Flag on Trikhála (Tirhála) Castle"; "the Martyr; or the Heart of 'Osmán"; "the Orphan Child; or Ahmed's Anxiety"; "O, Fatherhood! or, Zeynab's Prayer," and the like. The illustrations are of Turkish privates, filled with the rage of battle, flushed with victory, or charging with the bayonet; and the volume concludes with a martial song, set to music, of which the opening words are as follows :

بن بر تُركم دينم جنسم اولودر:
 سينهم اوزوم آتشيلىه طولودر:
 انسان اولان وطننك قولودر.
 ترك اولادى اوده طورماز—آه كيدر!

"I am a Turk; my religion, my race are high;

My breast, my soul, are filled with fire!

Whosoever is a man is the servant of his Country!

The sons of the Turk stay not at home: O! I go!"¹

¹ In spite of the poet's desire to employ, as far as possible, a purely Turkish vocabulary, this one verse contains five Arabic and two Persian words.

Amongst the many bizarre developments of the most modern Turkish schools of poetry, including the "Coming Dawn" (Fejri-Âti) and "New Literature" (Edebiyyât-i-jedîde), with their "Symbolists," "Parnassians," "Pre-Raphaelites," and imitators of Mallarmé, Verlaine and the like, one known as the "New Túránian" (Yeni Túrân), which has a magazine called Türk Yurdu ("the Turkish Folk" or "Hearth") as its special organ and counts Muhammed Emin, the poet just mentioned, amongst its chief supporters, merits a few words in this place, not so much on account of its literary as of its political peculiarities. This "New Túránian" school, of course, affects in its writings an excessively Turkish style, and endeavours as far as possible to eliminate the Arabic and Persian elements from its vocabulary, but, not content with this natural, and, to a certain extent, laudable desire to nationalize the language, it displays the most violent hatred of Arabic and Persian influences in all their forms, and even of the Arabs and Persians, especially the latter. It demands a federation of all the Turkish, Tartar, Mongolian and other allied peoples (including even the Bulgarians!) with a view to the ultimate creation of a new "Empire of Chingíz Khán." So far, indeed, does it go in its admiration for even the most barbarous forms of "Túránianism" that it idolizes the bloodthirsty Tamerlane (Timúr-i-Lang, or "Limping Timúr"), the scourge of Asia in the fifteenth century, and blames the Ottoman Sultan Báyezíd "the Thunderbolt" (Yıldırım Báyezíd) as a "rebellious vassal" who vainly strove to check the victorious advance of his Túránian overlord, whose advent he should rather have hailed with joy as the incarnate all-conquering martial spirit of the Tartar or Túránian race. This insane vandalism of the "New Túránian School" in Turkey may best be likened to the literary and artistic vagaries of Marinetti and the Italian Futurists.

Here I will conclude this brief review of certain aspects (not, in my opinion, devoid of significance and interest) of the literary activities which have accompanied the strange political movements witnessed in recent years in the Near and Middle East, of which the Persian manifestations are not the least interesting or the least significant. To Mr H. L. Rabinov and Mírzá Muhammed

'Alí Khán I have already expressed the measure of my indebtedness, and it only remains for me to thank Sir Albert Houtum Schindler, Mírzá Muḥammad of Qazwín, Dr Aḥmad Khán, Mírzá Kázim-záda, and other friends for help in correcting the proofs and solving doubtful points arising out of the text, as well as for aiding me to obtain some of the portraits which illustrate these pages. Of the other illustrations a few have already appeared in my Persian Revolution, but the majority are new, and represent cartoons, caricatures or title-pages of some of the more interesting newspapers mentioned in this book. The illustrated comic paper Mullá Naṣru'd-Dín, being written in Turkish and published at Tiflis, is not included in the Alphabetical List of Newspapers, but its influence in Persia was so great, and the artistic merit of its cartoons is so considerable, that I have included six typical specimens of the latter in these pages.

AUTHOR'S PREFACE

FOR the last fourteen years, during which first the Tarbiyat Library and then the office of the magazine entitled Ganjīna-i-Funūn ("the Treasury of Arts") have served as centres of distribution and interchange for most of the Persian, Arabic and Turkish papers published in Persia, and have maintained epistolary and other relations with the chief educational centres, it has been my hobby to collect specimen copies of Persian newspapers, and I have exerted myself to make this collection as complete as possible¹.

In the year A.H. 1317 (= A.D. 1899-1900) the Arabic magazine al-Hilāl, published in Cairo, then in its ninth year, printed an account of the history and enumerated the results of the new civilization in Persia, especially the printing-presses, newspapers and colleges². Most of the information contained in this article was derived from Mīrzā Mahdī Khān, the editor of the Persian periodical Hikmat ("Wisdom"), also resident in Cairo. Delighted as I was at the publication of such information, partial though it was, I found it to be very defective, not only in relation to the facts, but even to such particulars as I myself had acquired. From that time onwards, accordingly, I resolved to publish a tabular summary of Persian periodicals, and devoted myself with still greater assiduity to acquiring the necessary information on this subject, and to completing my collection of newspapers. The political Revolution in Persia, however, left me no leisure for such work; and finally all the documents, books, and files of newspapers, magazines and papers which I possess were left in

² The article in question appeared in February, 1900 (al-Hilāl, vol. IX, pp. 257-263). The account of the Press, which is very short, is on pp. 262-263.

Tabríz and Tīhrán, where they are at present beyond my reach¹, else I should have been able to make this little pamphlet fuller and more complete.

At the beginning of this year (A.H. 1330 = January, 1912) I learned through some of my friends of the publication at Rasht of a treatise identical in aim with that which I had in view, entitled A table of the newspapers of Persia, and of newspapers in the Persian language published outside Persia, compiled in Persian by the learned and accomplished Mr H. L. Rabino, British Vice-Consul at Rasht². Although I was thus anticipated in the execution of a design which I had long cherished, and for the fulfilment of which I had long sought opportunity, I was nevertheless greatly delighted at the appearance of so valuable a work, and felt myself deeply indebted to the respected author, to whom I at once wrote asking for a copy. This he was kind enough to send me, together with a letter informing me that copies had become scarce.

Having perused the above-mentioned treatise, which constitutes, indeed, one of the greatest services yet rendered by any foreigner to the literary history of Persia, and is a veritable treasury of information, arousing our admiration and amazement as to how all these particulars could be collected in one corner of Persia, I hesitated at first as to the publication of the data which I had myself collected and which I had with me in the form of scattered notes and memoranda. Indeed I almost decided to abandon my original intention; but after a little consideration, and a comparison of the facts collected on either side, I resolved not to neglect or cast aside this information, of part of which I have personal cognizance, but at least to publish

¹ Unhappily they are now for ever beyond human reach, for, as I recently learned from the author, who is now at Constantinople, these and all other papers were destroyed by his family when the Russians entered Tabríz in December, 1911, and inaugurated a Reign of Terror under which no one suspected of sympathy with liberal ideas was safe.

² The Persian title of this admirable pamphlet is as follows:

صورت جراید ایران و جرایدی که در خارج ایران بزبان فارسی طبع شده است

It was printed at the 'Urwaṭu'l-Wuthqā Press at Rasht in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911), and comprises 30 pp. of 14" × 8½". A brief "Foreword" is contributed by Muḥammad Rīzā son of Isma'īl of Rasht. Mr Rabino has now been transferred to Morocco.

it in some way, even in the form of disjointed notes, that perchance it may be of some little use to subsequent students who may be eager to collect details as to the preliminary signs of the Persian awakening, which will be my sufficient reward.

In comparing my own memoranda with the contents of the above-mentioned treatise, I discovered certain divergences and differences in the way of defect and excess on both sides. Chief amongst these differences were the names of 29 newspapers overlooked by me and of nearly a hundred overlooked by Mr Rabino, the remainder being included in both lists. And although it was not necessary that I should include in this compendium those with which I was unacquainted before I had read the above-mentioned treatise, yet, with a view to the completeness and comprehensiveness of this table of Persian newspapers, I supplemented my omissions and shortcomings from Mr Rabino's treatise, confident in the permission and approval of the respected author, whose sole object was the dissemination of the actual facts, but indicating in each case under the name of the newspaper in question the source of my information by means of the abbreviation "Ş. J. I." (ص. ج. ا.), standing for صورت جرائد ایران, "Şúrat-i-Jarâ'id-i-Írán" ("List of Persian Newspapers"), which is the title of Mr Rabino's pamphlet. Yet withal the rule maintains that "the superiority is to the pioneer, and the first in order are the first in merit."

As has been already explained, the greater part of the material collected by me was left in Persia amongst my other papers, and though I hope in another edition to complete, revise and supplement the particulars here set forth, yet for the moment I publish this abstract so that at least some small basis for further researches may be available.

I further deem it necessary to mention here several points in connection with the subjoined text, which points are as follows :

First, what is meant by the "date of publication of newspapers," so far as it is mentioned in this treatise, is the date of their foundation and inception.

Secondly, since a division of periods is historically necessary in the recent history of Persia to indicate the successive revolutions and the sequence of momentous and continual changes and great public events whereby it is characterized, and since a special title and fixed designation is required for each cycle and period, and for each one of the great historical events which may be reckoned as stages and landmarks, and which serve as the starting-points of yet other events wherewith they are correlated and by which they must be judged, and since such division of periods and appropriate nomenclature has not hitherto been established, therefore many names and expressions occur in the course of these pages which need to be explained to anyone who has not carefully followed the successive events of recent years in Persia. Thus the term "Period of Autocracy" (Dawr-i-Istibdád) is applied to the period preceding the proclamation of the Constitution (14th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1324 = August 5, 1906); the "Reactionary Triumph" (Waq'a-i-Irtijá'iyya), "Coup d'État" (Zarba-i-Hukúmat), or "Bombardment of the Majlis" (Ṭīpbandi-i-Majlis: 23rd of Jumáda i, A.H. 1326 = June 23, 1908) to the destruction of the First National Assembly by command of Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh and at the hands of Colonel Liakhoff; and the "Minor Autocracy" (Istibdád-i-Ṣaghír), or, "Cycle of General Revolution" (Dawr-i-Inqiláb-i-Umúmt), or "Great Revolution" (Inqiláb-i-Kabír), or "Revolution of Tabriz" (Inqiláb-i-Tabriz) to the period extending from the above-mentioned Bombardment to the second proclamation of the Constitution by Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh after the intervention of the Russian and British Governments, which synchronized with the fall of Tabriz and the entry into it of the Russian troops, and the formation of the Cabinet of Sa'du'd-Dawla (Rabí' ii, A.H. 1327 = April-May, 1909). The conquest of Ṭīhrán and deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí Mírzá (28th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1327 = July 17, 1909) is termed "the Restoration of the Second Constitution" (I'áda-i-Mashrútiyyat-i-thání). Other important events are the "Revolution of Gílán" (Rasht) on Muḥarram 16, A.H. 1327 (= Feb. 7, 1909); the "Revolution of Ísfahán" (Dhu'l-Ḥijjá, A.H. 1326 = beginning of January, 1909); the last Russian Ultimatums; the sanguinary acts of aggression perpetrated by the Russians in Tabriz, Rasht and Anzalí; the dissolution of the Second Majlis (beginning of Muḥarram, A.H. 1330 = December 21, 22, etc., 1911); the Bombardment of Mashhad (11th of Rabi' ii, A.H. 1330 = March 30, 1912), et caetera. Thus the "first period of the Constitution" is the term applied to the period of freedom preceding the Bombardment of the First Majlis, and the "second period of the Constitution" to that succeeding the capture of Tihrán.

Thirdly, the list of newspapers mentioned in this treatise is not confined to those published in Persian, but includes, besides the Persian newspapers published throughout the world, all newspapers published in Persia in whatever language (French, Armenian, Syriac, Turkish, etc.).

Fourthly, in the accounts given of the different newspapers, various details and notes, apparently foreign to the subject, have sometimes been included, which, though not directly connected with the account of the publication of the journal in question, have not been withheld because they may perhaps be of use for the history of the Persian Revolution, and because such information, including biographical particulars concerning their respective editors and their adventures, might otherwise be lost.

Fifthly, since, in addition to the account of the newspapers and magazines which fills the greater part of this compendium, something has been said of the general history of printing in Persia, and of the more useful books which had some effect on the progress, revival and awakening of that country, therefore I have entitled my treatise not "A List of Persian Newspapers," but "A Page from the History of the products of the Persian Press."

Sixthly, since, in spite of my endeavours to include in the following index as far as possible all newspapers published in Persian, and all newspapers published in Persia in some language other than Persian, it is probable that some may have escaped my notice (since many of them endured but a little while, like the Sitára-i-Saharí, or "Morning Star," which came into being and disappeared in Tabríz in A.H. 1325 = A.D. 1907-8, and were soon completely forgotten), I hope that should any of my readers know of any Persian newspaper omitted from this list, or detect any error in its contents, or be acquainted with any fresh materials or particulars concerning any one of them, or the biographies of their editors, publishers or staff, or the names of their editors (where they are omitted), or the dates and intervals of their publication, and other like matters of every kind which have been omitted from my List, he will communicate such information to me as a service to knowledge and history, and to preserve such memorials of the Nation's life from destruction and loss. The same request applies in a still greater degree to the list of titles of useful books contained in the concluding portion of this treatise, since, so far as I know, this sample is the first small foundation in this subject.

Before concluding my remarks I must discharge the debt of gratitude and thanksgiving incumbent on me to.....my friend Edward Browne,.....Professor of Oriental Languages in the University of Cambridge, to whom all Persians and those who use the Persian language, the whole community of Islám, and all lovers of Justice throughout the world owe a deep debt of gratitude, both on account of his fruitful services in rendering accessible to the public and reviving the memory of the works, literatures and histories of the Muhammadan nations, especially the Persians, and of his great and continued efforts, inspired by a love of Justice, in defending, both by speech and writing, in England particularly and in Europe generally, the rights of the down-trodden peoples of Islám against their cruel oppressors. In addition to all the claims which he has on the Persians generally and on me in particular, it is he who has encouraged and enabled me to publish these pages. With prayers for the endurance of his help and that the world of Islám may long continue to profit by his services, I conclude this Preface.

INTRODUCTION

(I)

THE date of the introduction of the printing-press into Persia nearly a century ago, during the reign of Fath-'Alí Sháh Qájár and when 'Abbás Mírzá Ná'ibü's-Saltána was Crown Prince, was about A.H. 1232 (A.D. 1816-17). It was introduced into Tabríz by the efforts of the above-mentioned Ná'ibü's-Saltána, while about the same time another printing-press was established at Tíhrán under the supervision of Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Wahháb Mu'tamadü'd-Dawla. In the latter were printed such books as the Holy Qur'án, the Jalá'u'l-'Uyün, the Hayátu'l-Qulúb, Practical Treatises on Jurisprudence, etc., each known as the "edition of Mu'tamadü'd-Dawla."

Amongst the first books printed in Persia were the Ma'áthir-i-Sultání ("Royal Monuments") of 'Abdu'r-Razzáq Beg Dunbul, a history of the reign of Fath-'Alí Sháh dedicated to the Ná'ibü's-Saltána and printed at Tabríz in A.H. 1241 (= A.D. 1825-6), and a Treatise on Inoculation for Small-pox (Risála-i-Ábila-kúbt), also printed at Tabríz¹. Neither from my own personal investigations nor from the perusal of Persian books can I find any indication of the existence of printing-presses in Persia prior to this date. And although I have seen it stated in some foreign scientific magazine that printing was first introduced into Persia in the year A.D. 1784 (= A.H. 1198-9) at Bushire, I have met with no trustworthy evidence in support of this assertion.

After this, according to the statement transmitted by certain persons, the Ná'ibü's-Saltána, about A.H. 1240 (= A.D. 1824-5), sent one Mírzá Ja'far of Tabríz to Moscow to learn the art of lithography and to bring to Tabríz the necessary apparatus, which he accordingly introduced and employed there. The well-known Mashhadí Asad Áqá "Básma-chí" ("the Printer") of Tabríz (whose father and elder brother were amongst the founders of and partners in the first lithographic press, and who is still living and whose old press is still at work in Tabríz), also relates that Mírzá Šálih of Shíráz, the Wazír of Tíhrán, sent at great expense one Mírzá Asadu'lláh, of the province of Fárs, to St Petersburg to learn the art of printing, and that on his return thence he founded at Tabríz, with the assistance of the late Áqá Rizá, father of the above-mentioned Mashhadí Asad Áqá, a lithographic press, the first book lithographed at which was the Holy Qur'án in the hand-writing of Mírzá Husayn the famous calligraphist. Five years later, at the Sháh's command, this press and its appurtenances were transferred to Tíhrán, where the first book printed was the Diwán of Nisháti Khán the poet. As Tabríz was the first Persian town into which the press was introduced, it became known by its Turkish name of *Básma-khána*¹. After Tabríz and Tíhrán it was introduced to the following towns of Persia in chronological order: Shíráz, Isfahán, Mashhad, Anzalí, Rasht, Ardabíl, Hamadán, Khúy, Yazd, Qazwín, Kirmánsháh, Kirmán, Garrús and Káshán. In the remaining towns and villages of Persia the art of printing neither is nor ever has been practised, save at Urmiya, where it was introduced at an earlier date than in most of the towns above-mentioned².

Amongst the older lithographed books are a good many military, mathematical and astronomical works printed at Tíhrán, such as the Khulāṣa ("Compendium") of Mírzá Ja'far Khán, the Jám-i-Jam ("Goblet of Jamshíd") printed in A.H. 1272 (= A.D.

1855-6), etc., and some works of history and literature printed at Tabríz, such as the Histories of Peter the Great, published in A.H. 1262 (= A.D. 1846), Charles the Twelfth (A.H. 1263 = A.D. 1847) and Alexander the Great, all three of which were translated by order of 'Abbás Mírzá A'd'ibu's-Saltāna; the geography entitled Jahān-numá ("the World-shower"), compiled by Mírzá Rafá'il; the Burhān-i-Jámī ("Compendious Proof," a Persian dictionary explained in Persian, compacted from the older Burhān-i-Qāṭi, or "Decisive Proof"), compiled by Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Karīm b. Muḥammad Mahdí of Tabríz, lithographed in A.H. 1260 (= A.D. 1844); the Kulliyāt, or Complete Works, of Sa'dí in A.H. 1264 (= A.D. 1848); the Shāhnáma, or Book of Kings, of Firdawsí in A.H. 1275 (= A.D. 1858-9); the Dívān of Nāṣir-i-Khusraw in A.H. 1280 (= A.D. 1863-4), the three books last mentioned being all in the hand-writing of the celebrated calligraphist 'Askar Khān Urdúbádí; and the Dívān of Anwārí in A.H. 1266 (= A.D. 1849-50). Another class of old lithographs which are not devoid of importance consists of Persian almanacs and calendars in cypher published in various towns, such as the cypher almanac of Muḥammad Taqí Ahari, "printed in A.H. 1261 (= A.D. 1845) under the supervision of Mírzá Rizá at the Press of Mullá Najaf 'Alí at Tabríz"; the cypher almanac of Mírzá Bāqir of Mázandarán, lithographed in A.H. 1265 (= A.D. 1848-9); the cypher almanac of Mírzá Asadu'lláh of Mázandarán in A.H. 1266 (= A.D. 1849-50), et caetera. One of the strangest things connected with the history of the art of printing in Persia from the time of its first introduction until the present day is that notwithstanding the chronological priority of the introduction of typography into Persia, it entirely went out of fashion in a short while, and that for a long time (more than fifty years) the presses of Persia confined themselves exclusively to lithography, until typography again became current and popular after the enthronement of Muzaffaru'd-Dín Sháh (A.D. 1896-1907).

The earliest newspapers in Persia, before the foundation of the newspapers of the present period which resemble those of other countries and kingdoms, consisted of brief news-sheets confined to the personal doings of the King. The writers of these were known as Waḡáy'-nigár ("chroniclers of events"), a post which now no longer exists, although its style and title has not yet disappeared. The foundation of the first newspaper of the present form and arrangement took place in the third year of the reign of Nāṣiru'd-Dīn Shāh (who came to the throne in A.D. 1848) by the command and at the direction of Mīrzā Taqī Khān Amīr-Nizām. The first Persian newspaper which circulated in Tīhrān in the above-mentioned year was entitled Rūznāma-i-Waqāyī-i-Ittifāqiyya ("Diary of Casual Events"), and was a weekly publication. In size it resembled the usual smaller newspapers, like the daily Hablul-Matin of Tīhrān, and generally comprised four, but sometimes eight pages. The writer possesses a collection extending from No. 7 to No. 444, the former number being dated Friday the 17th of Jumāda i, A.H. 1267, corresponding with the last day of the Year of the Pig (= March 20, 1851)¹, and the latter Thursday, the 17th of Ṣafar, A.H. 1276 (= Sept. 15, 1859). This was the first Persian lithographed newspaper published in Tīhrān². In the year A.H. 1277 (= A.D. 1860-1),

² From the recorded fact that in A.H. 1277 (= A.D. 1860-1) "the publication of newspapers was conferred on Mīrzā Abu'l-Ḥasan Khān Naqqāsh-bāshī" (i.e. "Chief Artist") it may be deduced that at that date and even before it there existed another official paper or papers besides the Rūznāma-i-Waqāyī-i-Ittifāqiyya and the Rūznāma-i-Dawlat-i-'Alīyya-i-Īrān, though as to the nature and titles of these I have been unable to ascertain anything definite. H. E. the ʿIṭimādī's-Saltāna writes: "the above-mentioned Mīrzā Abu'l-Ḥasan Khān Ṣanī' u'l-Mulk was not really a newspaper-editor but an artist, who was chiefly engaged in making designs of "the Lion and the Sun," and in drawing portraits of State notables. He was connected with the paper from its inception until the control of the Press passed to the late ʿIṭimādī's-Saltāna, and, being an artist and directly connected with the Press, he started several illustrated papers, single numbers of which I possess." In another place he writes: "from the first the newspapers were associated with the Ministry of Sciences, until, in A.H. 1288 (= A.D. 1871-2), while the ʿIṭimādī's-Saltāna was Minister of Sciences, several newspapers were printed at the Dārul-Funūn. These Government papers never had a regular editor who signed his name to articles, but, while their publication continued, the editors were continually changed. Several were always chosen to write these papers, the choice of persons depending on the caprice of the Minister." H. E. the Zakā' u'l-Mulk writes: "the late Mīrzā Hasan Khān Ṣanī' u'l-Mulk, called Naqqāsh-bāshī, was at one time connected with the editing of the Government newspapers, and contributed illustrations to some of them. This was before the late ʿIṭimādī's-Saltāna when the superintendence of the Government Press and the printing of newspapers was conferred upon Mīrzā Abu'l-Ḥasan Khān Naqqāsh-bāshī-i-Ghifārī, entitled Ṣant'u'l-Mulk, the Rūznāma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Īrān ("Gazette of the Sublime State of Persia"), which was an illustrated continuation of that previously mentioned, was published with portraits of the leading men and notables of the Empire, and is accounted the first illustrated Persian newspaper. Afterwards, as it would appear, the name and title of this same newspaper was changed to Rūznāma-i-Dawlatī ("State Gazette"). The writer has seen No. 622 of this paper, which is dated the 7th of Jumāda ii, A.H. 1285 (= Sept. 25, 1868), and is described as "printed in the workshops of the undertook editorial duties." It must also be noted that the title of "Ministry of Sciences" came into use long after the introduction of the newspaper. From a consideration of the dates of No. 444 (the last in the author's possession), No. 456 (the last preserved in the British Museum), and No. 474 (the last in the possession of Zakā'u'l-Mulk) of the Rūznāma-i-Waqāyī-i-Ittifoqiyya, which dates are respectively Ṣafar 17, A.H. 1276 (=Sept. 15, 1859), Jumāda i, 19, A.H. 1276 (=Dec. 14, 1859), and Kalī' ii, 18, A.H. 1277 (=Nov. 3, 1860), and from Rabinó's statements that No. 471 of this paper was dated Muḥarram 28, A.H. 1277 (=Aug. 16, 1860), that No. 482 was entitled Rūznāma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Īrān and was illustrated, and that in A.H. 1277 (=A.D. 1860-1) "the superintendence of the State Press and the publication of newspapers was conferred on the Naqqāsh-bāshī-i-Ghifārī, and the Rūznāma-i-Dawlatī became an illustrated paper" (what is intended by this last being the above-mentioned Rūznāma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Īrān), it results that the Rūznāma-i-Waqāyī-i-Ittifoqiyya appeared pretty regularly every Thursday until No. 456, after which it was published irregularly and often delayed; and that about No. 480, under the régime of the Ṣant'u'l-Mulk it changed its name and form, and appeared under the title of Rūznāma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Īrān, while preserving a serial numeration continuous with its predecessor, of which it was in part a continuation, No. 565 of the latter paper being dated, according to Rabinó, Jumāda ii, 17, A.H. 1281 (=Nov. 17, 1864), and still preserving the same name. Perhaps it was still the same paper which afterwards became entitled Rūznāma-i-Dawlatī, which, according to the official Year-books (Sāl-nāma), together with the Rūznāma-i-Īlmī, was placed under the charge of 'Alī-qulī Mīrzā Pīzādū's-Saltāna. Of this I have seen a copy of No. 622, bearing this very title, dated Jumāda ii, 7, A.H. 1285 (=Sept. 25, A.D. 1868). In the early days of the Ministry of Mīrzā Muḥammad Ḥusayn Khān Sipahsālār, in A.H. 1288 (=A.D. 1871-2), when the control of the Government newspapers passed out of the hands of the Minister of Sciences, and the Press Department (afterwards elevated into a Ministry) was founded and conferred on Muḥammad Ḥasan Khān Ṣant'u'd-Dawla (afterwards Pītimādū's-Saltāna), it again changed its name, and was entitled Rūznāma-i-Īrān. In A.H. 1321 (=A.D. 1903-4), when the Ministry of the Press was conferred on Mulla Muḥammad Nadīmū's-Sultān, its name was once more changed to Rūznāma-i-Īrān-i-Sultānī ("the Royal Gazette of Persia"). Finally, a year and a half later, the Ministry of the Press was again conferred on Muḥammad Bāqir Khān Pītimādū's-Saltāna.

State Printing-press in the auspicious College of the Dāru'l-Funūn." Even so in later days this same newspaper continued to be published, from A.H. 1288 (= A.D. 1871-2) until the period of the Constitution, i.e. A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906), under the name of Írán ("Persia"), and again, in even later times (i.e. in A.H. 1329 = A.D. 1911) it was revived under the name of Rūznāma-i-Rasmt-yi-Dawlat-i-Írán ("the Official Gazette of the Persian Empire"), and used to report the deliberations of the National Consultative Assembly of Persia. The production of the first newspaper in Persia synchronizes with the foundation of the Dāru'l-Funūn, or École Polytechnique, of Tīhrán, the establishment of the Post to Ázarbáyján and Fárs, and the institution of passports for Persian subjects travelling abroad¹.

In the year A.H. 1283 (= A.D. 1866-7) another newspaper, entitled Rūznāma-i-Millatī ("the National Gazette"), so-called to distinguish it from the Rūznāma-i-Dawlatī, was published in Tīhrán.

After Tīhrán, the priority of which in the possession of newspapers is incontestable, the first and foremost of Persian towns in respect to the publication of newspapers is Shīrāz, where the newspaper Fárs was published in A.H. 1289 (= A.D. 1872-3)², and after it come Iṣfahán and Tabríz, which were the respective capitals of Nāṣiru'd-Dín Sháh's two eldest sons, rivals of long standing, Sulṭán Mas'úd Mīrzá Zillu's-Sulṭán and the Crown Prince [afterwards Sháh] Muẓaffaru'd-Dín Mīrzá. Thus in the year A.H. 1296 (= A.D. 1879), at the instigation of the Zillu's-Sulṭán and under the care and editorship of Mīrzá Taqī Khán of Káshán³, was founded the Farhang ("Culture") at Iṣfahán,

² In the Rūznāma-i-Waqáyi'-i-Ittifaqiyya of A.H. 1275 (= A.D. 1858-9) there occur allusions to a paper printed in Tabríz, which would suggest that this city had the priority over Shīrāz.

³ Mīrzá Taqī Khán was conspicuous amongst the older generation of those who were learned in the new arts and European sciences, and was in his day a profound and accomplished scholar, especially devoted to the astronomical and natural sciences, on which he composed many treatises, which, having regard to the time when they were written, contain a mass of valuable information. His style and method of explanation are especially plain and simple. Of these works only two, so far as I am aware, the Hadīqat-i-Ṭabī'iyya ("Gardens of Nature") on Natural Science and Astronomy, and the Tarbiyat-i-Aṭfāl ("Education of Children"), have been and in the same year the newspaper entitled Tabriz at Tabriz. Both of these papers continued to be published and to circulate for a considerable time, and I have seen numbers of the Tabriz up to the third year of issue.

The first daily Persian newspaper was the Khulāṣatu'l-Hawā'idith ("Summary of Events"), printed and published in Tīhrān in A.H. 1316 (= A.D. 1898-9), a small quarto sheet, printed with type on one side, and containing foreign telegraphic news, derived from the telegraphic summaries of current events transmitted from Europe to India by Reuter's Agency, under the title of "Public News," by the Indo-European Telegraph for publication in the Indian and other newspapers, of which a copy was furnished to the British Legation in Tīhrān and to the Shāh.

After the proclamation of the Constitution four daily newspapers began to appear under the names of the Majlis, Nidā-yi-Waṭan, Hablu'l-Matīn and Subh-i-Ṣādiq, some of which at first appeared once a week, until by degrees they developed into daily papers. Of these the Majlis ("Assembly") was the first to publish the deliberations of the National Assembly. It was founded by Mīrzā Muḥammad Ṣādiq-i-Ṭabāṭabā'ī (son of Sayyid Muḥammad-i-Ṭabāṭabā'ī, the Mujtahid, one of the chief founders and supporters of the Persian Constitution) on the 8th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1324 (= Nov. 21, 1906). Again, after the deposition of Muḥammad 'Alī Mīrzā, several new daily papers appeared, printed. In order fully to set forth the Author's position in the learned and social world, it may not be out of place to quote verbatim the long list of his titles and qualifications as given by himself on the title-page of the above-mentioned Hādā'iq. This is as follows:—"General Mīrzā Taqī Khān of Kāshān, possessor of the Order and Red Ribbon of the Second Degree of the rank of Colonel; the Gold Medal of the Military College; the Order of St Anne of the Second Class, and the Order of St Stanislas of the Second Degree, both conferred by the Imperial Russian Government; editor and chief writer of the former newspaper Fārs and the present newspaper Farhang; President of the Medical Society and Member of the Council of Notables (Section of Public Utility) of Iṣfahān; Honorary President of the Académie d'Ethnographie of Bordeaux (Gironde); Honorary President of the Académie Byzantine of Constantinople; Corresponding Member of the Society of Oriental Arts and Scientific Treatises of St Barthélémy; Honorary Member of the Surgical, Medical and Pharmaceutical Societies, etc." Exactly the same list of titles is found on the first page, that is the wrapper, of the Hādā'iq-u'l-Ṭabī'iyya, printed in the Farhang Press at Iṣfahān, A.H. 1300 (= A.D. 1882-3).

amongst these being the Írán-i-Naw ("New Persia"), of the large folio size usual in foreign newspapers, which, in form and style, it resembled. Its first number was published on Saturday, the 7th of Sha'bán, A.H. 1327 (= August 24, 1909).

The appearance of scientific periodicals in Persia in the Persian language began with the publication of the Rúznáma-i-Ilmiyya-i-Dawlat-i-ʿAliyya-i-Írán ("Scientific Gazette of the Sublime State of Persia"), which from A.H. 1280 (= A.D. 1863-4) was published for the administration of the Dáru'l-Funún (or École Polytechnique of Tíhrán) under the superintendence of 'Alí-qulí Mirzá I'tizádu's-Saltána. Another newspaper entitled Rúznáma-i-Ilmí ("the Scientific Gazette") was in circulation in A.H. 1293 (= A.D. 1876)¹.

The first scientific magazine (jung)² published in Persia was the periodical entitled Ganjína-i-Funún ("Treasury of Arts"), founded in Tabríz in the year A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902-3). The first number of it is dated the first of Dhu'l-Qa'da in that year (= Jan. 30, 1903), and it was published with the utmost regularity for a whole year. It was carried on by four friends of learning and culture in Tabríz, one of whom was the present writer, and ¹ As regards the foundation of the Rúznáma-i-Ilmiyya-i-Dawlat-i-ʿAliyya-i-Írán, Mr Rabino ascribes it to Mirzá Muḥammad Husayn Khán Mushíru'd-Dawla, better known as Sipahsálár-i-A'zam. This is very improbable, since he returned to Persia and was made Sipahsálár (Commander-in-Chief) in A.H. 1287 (= A.D. 1870-1) while Násiru'd-Dín Sháh was visiting the Holy Thresholds (i.e. Karbalá and Najaf), and although, by permission, he paid a brief visit to Tíhrán from Constantinople in the very year wherein this paper first appeared, i.e. A.H. 1280 (= A.D. 1863-4), was made a Member of the Council of the Empire, and remained for some months in Tíhrán ere he returned to Constantinople, at that time he did not bear the title of Sipahsálár, which was held by Mirzá Muḥammad Khán Qájár. It is therefore possible that the paper ascribed to Mirzá Husayn Khán was the Rúznáma-i-Ilmí, which began to be published during the time when he was actually Sipahsálár; or else the Rúznáma-i-Nizámí ("Military Gazette"), both of which papers are mentioned in this compendium. Perhaps the founder of the Rúznáma-i-Ilmiyya-i-Dawlat-i-ʿAliyya-i-Írán was the I'tizádu's-Saltána himself, under whose management it continued until the end.

the three others Sayyid Ḥasan Taqí-záda, Member of the First and Second National Assemblies; Mírzá Sayyid Ḥusayn Khán, editor of the newspapers Ḥadíd, ʿAdálat, Ṣuḥbat and Khabar; Mírzá Yúsuf Khán I'tiṣám-i-Daftar, originally of Áshtiyán, who here made use of the signature "Y. Y.", and who afterwards became I'tiṣámul-Mulk, editor of the magazine Bahár ("Spring"), and Member of the Second National Assembly; and it soon achieved popularity. Although some papers of a scientific character, as has been already mentioned, existed before it, such as those enumerated above, and the Miftáhu'ṣ-Zafar ("Key of Victory"), printed at Calcutta and owned by the Ḥablu'l-Matin office, yet these in form and size were like newspapers, news-sheets and journals, and were not arranged like what are known in the terminology of Europe as reviews and magazines. After this scientific magazine, the periodicals known as Faldhat-i-Muṣaffarí (scientific), Majmú'a-i-Akhláq (ethical), Dá'watul-Haqq (religious), Bahár (literary), and Áftáb (literary and scientific) are each worthy of esteem and praise in their respective spheres, on which account their appearance is recorded in the List of newspapers and magazines contained in this brief history.

The first satirical, comic, or derisive Persian paper was the Ṭulú', published at Bushire in A.H. 1318 (= A.D. 1900-1), founded and edited by 'Abdu'l-Ḥamíd Khán Matínu's-Saltána, who was subsequently a Member of the Second National Assembly. After this came the Ázarbáyján, published by 'Ali-qulí Khán, known as Šafaroff, formerly editor of the Ihtiyáj ("Need"), at Tabríz in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8), and printed with moveable types and coloured pictures and caricatures¹.

During the Constitutional Period satirical and comic papers became numerous and varied. Such were the Kashkúl, Tanbih, Hasharátu'l-Arş, Buhlúl, Shaydá, Shaykh Chughundar, etc. Of these the first, third and fourth were elegantly got up, pleasing and worthy of perusal. Of this class the satirical portion of the Şûr-i-Isráfíl ("Trumpet-call of Isráfíl"), which appeared under the heading Charand-Parand ("Charivari"), held the first place in this category, and may usefully be mentioned here, for the paper entitled Mullá Naşru'd-Dín, which began to be published at Tiflis in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7) in the Ázarbáyjáni Turkish dialect, under the editorship of Mírzá Jalíl Muḥammad-qulí-záda of Nakhjuwán, a man well acquainted with Persian customs, and which was one of the best and most entertaining papers of this sort, and, indeed, unrivalled in the Oriental world, inasmuch as it used to discuss Persian matters also, had a very important historical influence in those parts of Persia bordering on the Caucasus and even in Tíhrán itself, and the Charand-Parand column in the Şûr-i-Isráfíl was wholly indebted to and inspired by it in its form and style, the writer, Mírzá 'Alí Aḷbar Khán of Qazwín, known as "Dakḥaw" or "Dih-Khudá," being acquainted with the Ázarbáyjáni dialect.

The appearance of illustrated newspapers in Persia dates from the year A.H. 1277 (= A.D. 1860-1), when, as has been already mentioned, the official Gazette became illustrated under the editorship of the Naqqásh-báshí. The illustrations of the illustrated papers Sharaf and Sharáfat deserve mention on account of the excellence of the drawing and beauty of the typography, and the Ázarbáyján and Hasharátu'l-Arş ("Reptiles of the Earth") on account of their polychromatic printing.

The first paper published in Persia in a foreign language was the French paper La Patrie (Waṭan), of which one single number was issued on the 5th of February, 1876 (= A.H. 1293).

the chief and director of the spies or secret police of the tyrannical Crown Prince (Muḥammad 'Alí Mírzá), which organization was one of the primary causes of the disgust and dissatisfaction of the people of Tabriz at the institutions of the old, or autocratic, régime, and was an important factor in determining the strength of the Revolution at Tabriz. After the establishment of the Constitution, however, 'Alí-qulí Khán repented of his deeds, and died early in A.H. 1326 (Feb. 1908) while actively employed in the National Service.

"How shall I deal with the turbaned locusts?"

(From Mulla Nasir-i-Din, No. 19, May 25, 1967)

The editor of this paper, Baron Louis de Norman, a Belgian, was brought to Tīhrán in 1875 by Nāṣiru'd-Dín Sháh, but the inkling of freedom perceptible in the first number proved displeasing to that monarch, and the paper was therefore suspended and its editor dismissed. After this the Echo de Perse (Ṣadā-yi-Írān) was published for some time, under the editorship of a Frenchman, Dr Morel. It lasted from March 21, 1885 (= A.H. 1302) to February 15, 1888¹.

Amongst other noteworthy newspapers one which is worthy of mention and not devoid of importance was a woman's paper entitled Dānish ("Knowledge") founded in Tīhrán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) by the wife of Mīrzá Ḥusayn Khān Kaḥḥāl ("the Oculist").

The freedom of the Press for papers published in Persia did not exist until the end of the reign of Nāṣiru'd-Dín Sháh, but outside Persia several papers were in circulation each of which strove for a while to awaken and arouse men's thoughts. Their editors had to endure all kinds of losses and troubles. Some of these papers were from time to time prohibited from entering Persia, yet notwithstanding this they continued to be sent enclosed in books or envelopes. The Akhtar ("Star") was the first Persian newspaper printed outside Persia. Its founder and editor was Áqá Muḥammad Ṭāhīr of Tabríz, who is still living, and who inaugurated it at Constantinople in A.H. 1292. (= A.D. 1875) at the instigation of Mīrzá Najaf-qulī Khān, one of the officials of the Persian Government in that city, and author of the book entitled Mīzānu'l-Mawázin ("the Measure of Measures"). It was published for more than twenty years, and was ultimately suspended in A.H. 1313 (= A.D. 1895-6) by the Ottoman Government. This newspaper attained such importance in Persia that the term Akhtar came to be applied to the purveyors of newspapers, and that news of current events was discussed in assemblies and meetings on its authority. The light of civilization shone from its pages on the people's hearts, and the taste for reading newspapers was derived from it. Wonderful to relate, this newspaper in course of time acquired such fame in the Caucasus, Persia, Turkistán, India, 'Irâq (Mesopotamia), etc., that in some districts of the Caucasus the common people, who regard the reading of newspapers as improper and culpable, were wont to call those of better quality who habitually read them Akhtari-mas-hab ("Sectaries of the 'Star'"), regarding "Akhtar" as the designation of a sect.

- The Akhtar was always in each period of its existence the lamp of all assemblies of cultivated men and the centre round which rallied the most accomplished and enlightened of the Persian exiles, and was maintained by the literary co-operation of patriotic scholars. Thus amongst others who worked on this paper were the late Mîrzâ Âqâ Khân of Kirmân, author of many works; and Shaykh Aḥmad-i-Rûhî¹, also of Kirmân, two of the earlier martyrs of the cause of Freedom; Mîrzâ Mahdî of Tabrîz (now editor of the Hikmat—"Wisdom"—at Cairo)²; Mîrzâ 'Alî Muḥammad Khân of Kâshân, editor of the Thurayyâ ("Pleiades") and Parwarish ("Education"); and Hâjji Mîrzâ Mahdî of Tabrîz, who was subsequently the principal writer and acting editor of the paper until it came to an end.

After the Akhtar, Prince Mîrzâ Malkom Khân Nâzimu'd-Dawla, son of Mîrzâ Ya'qûb Khân, an Armenian of Julfâ of Iṣfahân³, who had lately been dismissed from the office of Persian envoy at the Court of St James's, founded and put in circulation a newspaper called the Qânûn ("Law") in London in A.H. 1307 (= A.D. 1890)⁴. It was written by himself, and produced an important revolution in men's opinions, while its simple style of writing and peculiar form made people eager and desirous to read it. Several new terms, such as Qânûn ("Law"), Tanzîmât ("Reforms"), Uṣûl-i-Idâra ("Principles of Administration"), etc.,

² His title is Za'imû'd-Dawla, and he has written in Arabic a history and refutation of the Bâbis entitled Miftâḥu Bâbî'l-Abwâb ("the Key of the Gate of Gates").

³ "Julfâ of Iṣfahân" is so called to distinguish it from Julfâ on the Araxes, on the Russo-Persian frontier.

⁴ See pp. 35-42 of my Persian Revolution of 1905-1909. The first number of the Qânûn was published on Feb. 20, 1890, and it continued to appear about once a month until No. 41.

Prince Malkom Khán Názimü'd-Dawla

Born at Isfahán in A.H. 1249 (A.D. 1833-4), died at Rome in A.H. 1326 (A.D. 1908) passed from this newspaper into the current Persian language, and came into general use. By reason of the incomparable style and expression of Mírzá Malkom Khán in Persian, this became the best newspaper in the Persian language, and, by reason of its effects, has an important historical position in the Persian awakening. In short, the writings of Mírzá Malkom Khán have, generally speaking, a great twofold historical importance in the political and literary revolution of the latest Persian Renaissance. Politically they were one of the chief supports of the promoters of the Revolution and the renovation of Persia, and the founders of the movement of the Risorgimento; while from the literary point of view they were the sole originator of a peculiar style at once easy and agreeable.

After these two newspapers, the Hablu'l-Matín ("Firm Cord") began to be printed in Calcutta in A.H. 1311 (= A.D. 1893-4), and the Hikmat ("Wisdom") in Cairo in A.H. 1310 (= A.D. 1892-3). Both of these papers still continue to be published.

(II)

Some of the older publications, tracts and books and more especially certain newspapers, apart from other aspects, possess also a special historical importance deserving of closer investigation, because of their influence in bringing about the Persian Revolution and their connection with this matter. For in examining the causes and means which produced the prodromata of this Revolution it will be established that these publications also were an important agent, and hold a conspicuous place amongst numerous other influences.

It is evident that we must seek the causes and antecedents of the great historical Revolution of A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) and the succeeding period in conditions which preceded it, and those who have investigated this matter have detected and discovered the germs of the embryo which was born at that date in a period twenty years earlier. Now as regards this class of revolutionary agencies and influences, that is to say publications designed to awaken the people and stir their thoughts, one may say that the earliest go back to a period antecedent to the Revolution by at least thirty years. In this category we include in particular those publications which contained criticisms, mild or vituperative, of the principles of administration; complaints of the current methods of government; and a revolt against the prevalent soul-destroying autocracy. Of these the first place, alike by reason of their influence, eloquence and lofty attitude, and in virtue of their chronological priority, belongs to the tracts of Prince Malkom Khán, which were first circulated in Tíhrán in manuscript copies amongst Court circles and the notables of the kingdom, and afterwards passed from hand to hand throughout the whole of Persia¹; but of these numerous treatises, which may perhaps exceed thirty in number (most of which the writer has seen) only a few, such as the Uşûl-i-Maz-hab-i-Díwáníyán ("Principles of Conduct of Officials"), Hubbu'l-Waţan min'al-Ímán ("Patriotism is a part of Faith"), and his Introduction to the Gulistán of Sa'dí printed with the new types invented by him and advocating the necessity of a reform in the alphabet, etc., were printed in Europe and published².

After the writings of Prince Malkom Khán; the newspaper Akhtar ("Star"); the writings of the late Mírzá Yúsuf Khán Mustasháru'd-Dawla of Tabriz, martyred in Qazwín; and the ¹ Were it not beyond the scope of this treatise, which deals only with printed publications, we should like to glance at some of the manuscript tracts and writings of the earlier Persian reformers which circulated amongst the people, and inspired the older progressives, since these also were in their way not devoid of historical importance. Of such were the Epistles of Kamálu'd-Dawla; the critical observations on the Rawzat-u's-Safá-yi-Náşíri of Mírzá Fath-'Alí Ákhundoff of Tiflis, author of several Turkish plays translated into Persian; other little-known tracts of Prince Malkom Khán; certain tracts in manuscript by Mírzá Áqá Khán, such as the Sad Khitába ("A hundred Addresses"), Rizwán, etc.; the Siyáhat-náma ("Book of Travels") of Farrukh Khán Amínu'd-Dawla; Mahbúb and Háshim, a pleasant treatise, written in the form of a comedy by Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Husayn Khán Mu'allifu'd-Dawla, and the like, which considerations of space prevent us from discussing more fully.

² Prince Malkom Khán composed numerous treatises concerning the reform of the alphabet, such as the Mabda-i-Taraqqí ("Source of Progress") and the Shaykh u Wazír, which were never printed, and also, in order to familiarize men with the alphabet which he had invented, he printed several books in that alphabet, such as the above-mentioned Gulistán, the "Sayings of 'Alí," the "Writings of Humanity" (Khutú't-t-Ádamíyyat), etc. After the inauguration of the Constitution a collection of these manuscript writings was printed at Tíhrán, but it is very badly edited and contains many errors.

A typical Shab-nāma, or "Nocturnal Letter," paper Qánún ("Law"), mention must be made of certain "jelly-graph" publications which first became known at Tabríz, under the name of Shab-náma ("Night-books"), and which were issued by 'Alí-qulí Khán, editor of the Ihtiyáj and some others, and the Talqín-náma-i-Írán issued in Tabríz during the reign of Násir-ud-Dín Sháh in the form of the admonition addressed to the dying (talqín), of which a garbled copy was subsequently published in the paper Irshád at Báku during the period of Liberty, and which begins thus:—

"O servant of God, and son of the servant of God, hear and understand! When there come to thee the proximate envoys from the Russians, the English and the House of 'Othmán (i.e. the Ottoman Turks), and ask thee concerning thy colleges, thine army, thy roads, thine arts, thy commerce and thy sciences...fear not, be not grieved, and say in answer to them..." etc. There was also another "jelly-graphed" newspaper printed at Constantinople under the name Shah-seven ("King-lover," the name of a well-known group of tribes in N.W. Persia), under the title of which was written, "one number is published every forty years," and which used to criticize the old methods and principles of administration in a very entertaining and laughable manner. There were also the secret "jelly-graphed" newspaper-like publications produced in Tíhrán under the names Lisánu'l-Ghayb ("Tongue of the Unseen") and Ghayrat ("Zeal")¹, etc., and the Rúznáma-i-Ghaybí, written in Isfahán and printed in St Petersburg. This last was ascribed to the late Maliku'l-Mutakallimín (one of the most eminent victims of the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908) and was chiefly directed against the tyrannies of the Zillu's-Sultán. Mention must also be made amongst others of the Hammám-i-Jinniyān ("Genies' Bath"), which was "jelly-graphed" in Tīhrān during the last days of the autocracy. Since we shall consider briefly in the Conclusion of this treatise the printed books and treatises which, from the earliest times until the present day, whether by peaceful methods of progress and evolution, like scientific books or political pamphlets moderate in tone, or in a revolutionary manner, by attacks on the Government and other classes, had an effect in awakening the people's minds, therefore we shall here only mention and indicate those publications which were directly and obviously connected with the last risorgimento and the course of that freedom-loving revival and revolution, especially such as explicitly blamed and criticized the prevalent methods of government.

¹ These publications were issued during the years A.H. 1319-20 (=A.D. 1901-2) on the part of a secret committee consisting of Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán, who died a martyr to the cause, Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Alí "Múbad," Hájji Mírza Ḥasan "Rushdiyya," Shaykh Yahyá of Káshán, etc. They consisted chiefly of attacks on the Amínu's-Sultán (or Atábak-i-A'zam) and his administration, and exposures of the way in which he was selling the country to the Russians. In one of the later numbers there appeared a fragment of poetry, after the manner of, and containing quotations from, an ode of Háfiz, which is worthy of notice. Considerations of space do not permit us to quote it here in its entirety, but we give one verse which forecasts in a manner almost prophetic the end of this Minister (who was assassinated by 'Abbás Áqá on August 31, 1907, the day on which the Anglo-Russian Convention was signed):—

"O man of base appetites, why wilt thou drain the dregs of the Russians' cup?
For this dark cup in the end kills the guest."

In this category the books of Hájji Mírzá 'Abdu'r-Rahím Ṭáliboff of Tabriz, and especially the Kitáb-i-Aḥmad, or Safīna-i-Ṭálibí, in two volumes, had a specially great effect which cannot be denied. So also the Siyáhat-náma ("Book of Travels") of Ibráhím Beg, especially by reason of its approximate coincidence in time with the outburst of the matter of disaffection, and its suitability to the occasion as regards the general disgust and aversion of the people of Persia to the ruinous and scandalous procedures which characterized the reign of Muẓaffaru'd-Dín Sháh, had a great effect and won a wide popularity. We must also mention amongst the books which had an effect in bringing about the National Awakening the translation into Persian by Mírzá Ḥabíb of Isfahán and Shaykh Aḥmad Rúhí of Kirmán of Sir John Morier's Hájji Bába; the Memoirs of Mademoiselle de Montpensier, which were translated and added as a supplement to the Year-book, or Sál-náma, of A.H. 1313 (= A.D. 1895-6), and which, on their publication, aroused the extreme anger of Náṣiru'd-Dín Sháh, who caused all copies of them to be confiscated and destroyed; the stories of Alexandre Dumas translated into Persian; and a few other books translated and published during the later days of Muẓaffaru'd-Dín Sháh. But the most important factors in the Revolutionary movement, as voicing the public complaints and dissatisfaction and the disgust of the people at the principles on which the administration was conducted, were undoubtedly the newspapers, amongst which (leaving aside the Akhtar, which was relatively mild) the Qánún holds the first place. After it the greatest influence on public opinion was exerted by the newspapers Thurayyá and Parvarish, written by Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán-i-Shaybání of Káshán, which produced results much wider and more conclusive than even the Qánún, and in the years A.H. 1316-18 (= A.D. 1898-1901) effected a great intellectual revolution amongst young Persians, stirring up public opinion and filling the creatures of the Court with consternation. The coincidence of the publication of these newspapers with the Anglo-Boer War is also an important point. At this date the Hablu'l-Matín and the Hikmat held the next place to the Thurayyá, and exercised a considerable influence. Besides these Persian newspapers, four papers written in Caucasian Turkish, the Sharq-i-Rús ("Eastern Russia") and Mullá Naṣru'd-Dín, published at Tiflis, and the Irshád ("Direction") and Hayát ("Life") published at Báku, were not without effect on the more enlightened classes in Ázarbáyján.

During the period of the Constitution the awakening of thought increased both in speed and extent, and the newspapers had a great influence and an important share in the renovation of public opinion, especially the reports of the debates in the Majlis (National Assembly), which were published in the newspaper entitled Majlis and other organs of the Press. The Šúr-i-Isráfíl and Írán-i-Naw also did good work in enlarging men's minds, and the Sharáfat, al-Jamál, and the Chanta-i-Pá-barahna, etc., in awakening the common people.

In a general survey of the newspapers and magazines, and a critical estimate of their respective values, we must state it as our opinion that, in point of literary style and expression the best of the older ones (that is, of those antecedent to the Revolution of A.H. 1324 = A.D. 1906) were the Qánún of Mírzá Malkom Khán, and the Thurayyá and Parvarish of Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán, and among the later ones (that is, those subsequent to the Revolution) the Šúr-i-Isráfíl, Tamaddun, daily Hablu'l-Matín of Tílrán, Írán-i-Naw, and Tiyátr. The boldest in their language were the Rúḥu'l-Qudus, Musáwát, Jihád-i-Akbar, Naw-Bahár, Sharq, Barq, Šúr-i-Isráfíl and Šuḥbat, while amongst these the moral courage of the Šúr-i-Isráfíl in criticizing the spiritual authorities, and the Shuḥbat in condemning prevailing customs are specially noteworthy.

The most amusing of the comic or satirical papers was the Charand-parand column of the Šūr-i-Isrāfīl, the Zisht u Zibā ("Foul and Fair") of the Nāqūr, the literary column of the Sharq and Nasīm-i-Shimāl, and the newspapers Āzarbāyjān, Ḥasharātū'l-Arṣ, Kashkūl and Buhlūl.

The simplest of the Persian newspapers in style were the Qāqūn of Malkom Khān, al-Jamāl, the Sharāfat, the Hikāyat-i-Jān-gudāz, and the Chanta-i-Pā-barahna, the last of which was specially important in another way by reason of its diffusion of liberal ideas amongst the villagers and common people, and its success in awakening their minds by means of language easily understood by them.

The most firmly established and prosperous of the Persian newspapers, with the exception of the Mufarriḥū'l-Qulūb, were the Akhtar and the Ḥablu'l-Matīn of Calcutta, whose great services in later times cannot be compared with those rendered by any other paper.

Amongst the illustrated newspapers the finest in point of illustration were the Sharāfat and Sharaf, and after them the Adab and the Āzarbāyjān.

The Tarbiyat, Adab and Bahār must be reckoned first amongst the Persian literary papers.

Of all these newspapers only three openly championed the cause of autocracy, namely the Uqyānūs, Āy Mullā 'Amū and the Fikr ("Thought"), while the broadsides published by Shaykh Faḏlu'llāh and his followers at Shāh 'Abdu'l-'Azīm, where they had assembled and taken sanctuary in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907), against the National Assembly, if these be reckoned as newspapers, were the most important of the reactionary organs, and have a special significance in the history of the Persian Revolution.

There exist also amongst these newspapers two which, unlike the others, though written in Persian had no particular concern with Persia nor any special reference to its affairs, namely, the Sirājū'l-Akḥbār ("Lamp of News") published at Kābul in Afghānistān, and Bukḥārā-yi-Sharīf ("Bukḥārā the Holy"), published at New Bukḥārā in Turkistān, besides some of the Persian newspapers published in India, etc.

Before the Constitution the circulation of newspapers in Persia and the number of those who read them were very restricted. Those which enjoyed the largest circulation at that time were perhaps the Thurayyá, Hablu'l-Matín and Násirí, of which the last had a circulation of something over a thousand.

During the Constitutional Period the circulation of the newspapers went up, each of them enjoying a circulation of from two to three thousand copies. Thus the Musáwát had a circulation of 3000, the Šúr-i-Isráfíl from 5000 to 5500; the Majlis gradually rose from 7000 to 10,000, the Anjuman in Tabriz 5000. During the Second Period of the Constitution (July 1909—latter part of 1911), when the daily newspapers increased in size, their circulation diminished. Thus the Istiglál-i-Írán ("Independence of Persia") had a circulation of from 800 to 1000 copies, and the Írán-i-Navv ("New Persia"), which enjoyed the largest circulation, from 2000 to 2500, very rarely reaching 3000. This diminution in the number of readers is chiefly to be ascribed to the general increase of poverty resulting from the disturbances, in consequence of which it often happened that several readers combined to buy and share one copy. One point worthy of mention is that in the latter days of the period of Autocracy the wealthy and well-known Hájji Zaynu'l-'Ábidín Taqioff of Bákú, an eminent philanthropist, subscribed yearly for nearly 500 copies of the Calcutta Hablu'l-Matín, paying the subscription himself, and arranging that they should be sent gratuitously to the Shí'ite doctors of theology and students residing at Karbalá, Najaf and others of the Holy Shrines, regularly and directly from the chief office. This great service rendered by him to the enlightenment of the 'ulamá and their political awakening greatly conduced to the circulation of newspapers in spiritual circles and societies.

The older Persian newspapers, and broadly speaking the greater part of the newspapers in general, were published in the nasta'liq writing, and the publication of newspapers in the naskh writing is to be reckoned a step forward in the perfecting of them. As is well known, the number of lithographed papers exceeded that of papers printed with moveable types, of which latter the Akhbar was the first¹.

Until the foundation of the Írán-i-Naw in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) the format of the Persian newspapers has generally, with the exception of the Sayyidul-Akhhbar, printed in India, and the Persian Supplement of the Irshád of Báku, been small; generally of the size of the smaller sheets of Russian paper used in Persia, more rarely somewhat larger. The Írán-i-Naw was the first of the large-sized Persian newspapers, resembling in every way in its arrangement the newspapers of Europe. After it the Sharq, Borq, Istiglál-i-Írán, Wagt, Majlis, Surúsh, and finally the Áftáb came out in the same format.

Amongst recent years that wherein the circulation of newspapers reached its maximum was A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907), during which 84 newspapers were founded. Next comes the year A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910), when 36 newspapers were in circulation; then the year A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) with 33 newspapers, and the years A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908) and 1327 (1909), each with 31 newspapers. The city in Persia where the greatest number of newspapers was published was Tíhrán (148 newspapers), and next to it Tabriz (51), Rasht (25), Isfahán (20), and Mashhad (10).

It is worth calling attention to one small point deserving of notice, and that is that the official political parties, such as the Democrats, Union and Progress, Moderates, etc., only came into being in the Second Period of the Constitution, and were generally recognized only after the opening of the Second Majlis (Nov. 15, 1909). It is, therefore, not correct to ascribe to any one of the above-mentioned parties any newspaper antecedent to that date. During the First Period of the Constitution the only organized party was that of the Social Democrats (Ijtímá'íyyún-i-'Ammíyyún), whose organ was the Mujáhid, published at Tabriz.

After these brief general observations follows the detailed List or Catalogue, arranged in alphabetical order, of all the papers of every sort and in every language, whether Persian or otherwise, published in Persia, and in addition the Persian papers published abroad, which have come under the writer's notice.

noticed such as resembled newspapers in arrangement, form and title. Some of the others also appeared repeatedly under the same title, but they were for the most part unsigned and circulated secretly.

Ádamiyyat (Humanity).

آدمیت

A weekly newspaper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Muṭṭalib of Yazd, who, from the beginning of the Constitution, was an object of suspicion to the Constitutionalists and was in league with the Reactionaries. After the Reaction of the 23rd of Jumáda i, A.H. 1326 (= June 23, 1908), he was one of the Members of that unrighteous tribunal of the Bágh-i-Sháh which interrogated, tormented and slew the Liberals. After the restoration of the Constitution and the conquest of Tīhrán (July, 1909) he was arrested and imprisoned for a year with other political offenders.

According to Rabino, No. 12, the third number of this paper was dated 28 Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (= August 8, 1907), and the eleventh number Ramazán 13 (October 20) of the same year. I possess Nos. 3, 8 and 11. Bi-weekly; 4-8 pp.; 12" or 13" x 7" or 7½"; 15 gráns yearly in Tīhrán, 18 in provinces, 12 francs abroad.

Ázarbáyján.

آذربایجان

A weekly comic newspaper printed in Tabríz with coloured caricatures in the beginning of A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of 'Alí-qulí Khán, known as Šafaroff, also editor of the Ilṭiyáj ("Need") and the Iqbál ("Progress")¹. This newspaper was published in Persian and Ázarí Turkish. In politics it was thoroughly Liberal and Constitutional.

According to Rabino, No. 13, the first number was published on Muḥarram 2, A.H. 1325 (= Feb. 15, 1907)², but my copy of No. 1, which bears on the outer sheet the dates "1324-1906," is dated on p. 2 Muḥarram 6, 1325, so that Mr Rabino's "2" appears to be an error for "6." Weekly; 8 pp.; 14 sháhlís each number, or four túmáns a year in Tabríz; 12" x 7¾". I possess Nos. 1-22, with some omissions.

Āráwôd (Morning, Armenian).

արաւոտ

A weekly newspaper printed in Tabriz in the Armenian language and serving as the organ of the Armenian Dáshnák-sútiyún. It was founded in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), and continued until the Russian massacre in Tabriz in Mukarram, 1330 (= Jan. 1912). This paper, by reason of its Liberal opinions, had a considerable influence in the Caucasus, and its entry into Russia was consequently prohibited; and subsequently it gave rise to complaint on the part of the Russians, who continually exerted themselves to secure its suppression. It was well known both on account of the important telegraphic news which it obtained from Tíhrán and from abroad, and also in consequence of its polemics with the Persian newspaper Shafaq ("Dawn"), also printed at Tabriz.

See Rabino, No. 132. According to him No. 119 of this paper, which I have never seen, bore the date October 18, 1911.

Āzád (Free).

آزاد

A newspaper published in India at Delhi in A.D. 1885 (= A.H. 1302-3), known to us only through the Sayyidul-Akhhár (published at Haydarábád in the Deccan), in consequence of a literary duel which took place between these two papers.

Āzád (Free).

A weekly newspaper published at Calcutta (India) by lithography, early in A.H. 1317 (= A.D. 1899), under the editorship of Mírzá Sayyid Ḥasan of Káshán (brother of Sayyid Jalálu'd-Dín Mu'ayyidu'l-Islám, better known as the editor of the Hablu'l-Matín of Calcutta), subsequently editor of the daily Hablu'l-Matín of Tíhrán. The above-mentioned Mírzá Sayyid Ḥasan, in consequence of his being the agent in Tíhrán for the Calcutta Hablu'l-Matín during the second Ministry of the Amínu's-Sulṭán (or Atábak-i-A'zam), and the attacks made by it on this Minister after the Russian loans (of 1900 and 1902) and his suppression of the newspapers Parwarish, Hikmat and Hablu'l-Matín, was exposed to the vengeance of this powerful minister, and, after remaining for some time in prison and chains, was banished, and went by way of Egypt to his brother at Calcutta. During his stay there he started the newspapers Miftáhu's-Zafar ("Key of Victory") and Ázád ("Free").

See Rabino, No. 15. According to him it began publication on the 8th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1317 (=August 15, 1899). I possess No. 1. The yearly subscription was 10 rupees for India, Burma, and the Persian Gulf; 25 gráns for Persia and Afghanistan, 25 francs for China, Japan, Russia and Europe; and 5 mejidiyyés for Turkey, Turkish Arabia and Egypt. It is very well lithographed, the written page measuring 12" x 7", and each number containing 8 pp.

Ázád (Free).

آزاد

A weekly paper lithographed in Tabriz and containing portraits of notable patriots of older and more recent times, founded towards the end of A.H. 1324 (=beginning of A.D. 1907) under the control of the Kitáb-khána-i-Tarbiyat ("Tarbiyat" Library) and the immediate editorship of Mírzá Rizá Khán "Tarbiyat," brother of the writer, and manager of the above-mentioned Library, and Mírzá Mahmúd Khán Ashraf-záda. The "Tarbiyat" Library, founded in A.H. 1316 (=A.D. 1898-9) by the present writer and two or three friends, has a specially great importance in the history of the awakening of Ázarbáyján, and played a considerable part in the last Revolution. The above-mentioned Library, which in the beginning was the first specimen of a book-shop on modern lines in Ázarbáyján, but in a very small and humble way, continued day by day, by persistent efforts and endeavours, to increase its scope and prestige, importing useful books in every language from every part of the world, and circulating and making them known in Tabriz, so that it eventually became the best, most important and most comprehensive of all book-shops without exception throughout the whole of Persia, publishing every year a printed catalogue in the European fashion. In addition to this it became one of the centres of Liberal political action in Ázarbáyján, until during the Reaction (23 Jumáda i, A.H. 1326 = June 23, 1908) it was looted and burned by the Reactionaries and the scoundrels who followed Rahím Khán of Qará-dágh. In politics this paper was thoroughly Liberal and Constitutional.

See Rabino, No. 14. I possess Nos. 2, 3 and 4. The first is dated 24 Dhū'l-Hijja, A.H. 1324 (= Feb. 8, 1907). No. 2 contains a portrait of Muhammad 'Ali (at that time Sháh), and No. 3 one of Sayyid Jamálu'd-Din, the latter drawn by Sayyid 'Abbás al-Ḥusaynī. Each number cost 3 shukhs in Tabriz, where the yearly subscription was 7 grins, and 15 in the provinces and abroad. The pages (four in number) measure 13" x 6½". The writing and lithography are good.

آفتاب

A scientific and literary magazine printed at Işfahán under the editorship of Mírzá "Maḥmúd Khán S." of Tīhrán. This magazine, of which the first issue appeared on the 20th of Rabí' i, A.H. 1329 (= March 21, 1911), was encouraged and inspired by Shaykh Muḥammad Báqir (son of Hájji Shaykh Muḥammad Taqí of Işfahán, better known as Áqá-yi-Najafí), one of the most enlightened theologians of the time. It is democratic in politics, and is still issued.

See Rabino, No. 25. I possess the first two numbers. No. 1 is bound in a red paper cover and contains 56 pp. of $6\frac{1}{2}'' \times 3\frac{3}{4}''$. Price of each number 1 grán in Işfahán and $1\frac{1}{2}$ gráns elsewhere. Yearly subscription 10 gráns in Işfahán, 12 elsewhere in Persia, and 14 abroad.

Áftáb (The Sun).

آفتاب

A large-sized paper printed every other day at Tīhrán in A.H. 1330 (= A.D. 1912) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Ḥusayn, son of 'Abdu'l-Wahháb. This paper was established at the cost and with the support of the Government after the Coup d'État of Muḥarram 1, A.H. 1330 (= Dec. 22, 1911), and the suppression of all the free papers of Tīhrán, and became the semi-official organ of the Government. It defends the conduct and actions of the Government, criticizes its opponents, and endeavours to win the approval of the Russian and English Legations. Its more important leading articles are ascribed to the Minister for Foreign Affairs himself, W'uthúqu'd-Dawla. Its editor was formerly one of the correspondents of the Írán-i-Na'w. In politics it is Moderate.

Not included in Rabino's list, which was published before it came into existence.

آئینه غیب نما

A fortnightly illustrated newspaper lithographed at Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Sáyyid

'Abdu'r-Rahím of Káshán. It renewed publication in the second Constitutional Period in Rajab, A.H. 1329 (= July, 1911).

See Rabino, No. 42. I possess Nos. 7, 12, 20, 21 and 31-33, of the First Year; and No. 6 of the Second Year. The first is dated 22 Jumáda i, A.H. 1325, and July 4, 1907. The yearly subscription was 25 gráns in Tihrán, 30 in the provinces, and 17 francs abroad, and each number comprised 4 pp. of 12" \times 7½". The date of the last number in my possession is Rajab 26, A.H. 1329 = July 23, 1911. The illustrations, which are somewhat crude, include portraits of notable patriots and caricatures.

Áy Mullá 'Amú!

آی ملا عمو

A newspaper lithographed in Tabríz in the Ázarbáyjání Turkish language, in quarto size as I have heard, edited and written by Mírzá Aḥmad, director of the Baṣírat College, and editor of the newspapers Ukhuwwat ("Fraternity"), Ittiḥád ("Union") and Islámiyya. According to another account, it was edited by Mírzá Ḥasan and the Sa'idi's-Sultán. It was published in the year A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908) by the Reactionaries and members of the Anjuman-i-Islámiyya of the Devechi (or Shuturbán) quarter of Tabríz in order to excite the people against the Constitution.

See Rabino, No. 43.

Iblágh (Conveyance).

ابلاغ

A weekly lithographed paper published at Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Mashhadí Maḥmúd Iskan-dání, writer of the paper Vaṣṣmiyya in Tabríz.

See Rabino, No. 1, according to whom the first and sixth issues (the only ones seen) bore no date. I possess No. 1, which comprises 4 pp. of 11½" \times 6¾", written in a fine bold naskh. Seven gráns a year in Tabríz, ten elsewhere in Persia.

Ittiḥád (Union).

اتحاد

A lithographed newspaper published at Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Mírzá Aḥmad the scribe of Tabríz, known as Baṣírat after the College of that name of which he was formerly director. Only a few numbers were published.

Not mentioned by Rabino.

Ittiḥād (Union).

اتحاد

A fortnightly newspaper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of the Mu'tamadu'l-Islám of Rasht.

See Rabino, No. 3. I possess Nos. 2—20, of which the first is dated 5 Rabi' ii. A.H. 1325 (= May 18. 1907). Contains as a rule 4 pp. of 11" × 6½". Yearly subscription, 15 gráns in Tīhrán, 20 in provinces, 5 roubles in Russia, 8 rupees in India.

Ittiḥād (Union).

اتحاد

A fortnightly newspaper printed at Tabríz in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908) under the management of the Anjuman-i-Ittiḥád ("Society of Union"), which was one of the unofficial anjumans of the Constitutionalists. Such anjumans were numerous in most towns of Persia during the First Period of the Constitution. They were first formed in Tīhrán, whence they spread to other parts of the country. Of these unofficial provincial anjumans the above-mentioned Anjuman-i-Ittiḥád, founded by the present writer on his return from Tīhrán towards the end of the year A.H. 1325 (= winter of 1907–8), was the first. Its organ, the Ittiḥád, was inaugurated at the beginning of Šafar, A.H. 1326 (= March, 1908). After the Minor Disturbance of Tabríz (by which is meant the strife and struggle of the Reactionaries, collected in the Devechi quarter of the city, and the Constitutionalists of the other quarters, in Dhu'l-Hijja, 1325 = January, 1908) it strove to defend the latter and oppose the former, who on their side, aided by the Anjuman-i-Islámiyya which they had founded, published in Āzarbáyjání Turkish the paper Áy Mullá 'Amú (see No. 21 supra) in the Devechi quarter. In a supplement or feuilleton the Ittiḥád published a dramatic sketch written by Mírzá Malkom Khán under the title of "Ashraf Khán, Governor of 'Arabistán," which portrayed in four Acts, in a most amazing and attractive manner, the governors of the old autocratic régime. This paper continued to be published until the beginning of the Great Revolution in Tabríz. In politics it was Liberal or Radical, and Constitutional.

See Rabino, No. 2. I possess Nos. 1, 2, 5, 7 and 8. It contains 4 pages of 11½" × 7½". The yearly subscription was 12 gráns in Tabríz, 16 in other parts of Persia, and 20 abroad.

Ittihād (Union).

اتحاد

A lithographed newspaper published in Yazd in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910).

See Rabino, No. 4. He states that only two or three numbers appeared.

(27)

اتحادیه سعادت

A weekly newspaper published in Tīhrān in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907).

Not mentioned by Rabino.

(28)

Ittifāq (Concord).

اتفاق

A weekly newspaper published at Urmiya in Āzarbāyjān in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Hājji Mīrzā Ibrāhīm of Tīhrān.

Not mentioned by Rabino.

(29)

Ittifāq (Concord).

اتفاق

A fortnightly newspaper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Ma'sūm-zāda Shukūrī and H. Jamshīd-zāda. It was an organ of the "Union and Progress" Party.

See Rabino, No. 5, according to whom the first number was dated 16 Jumāda ii, A.H. 1329 = June 14, 1911. I also possess one number (No. 1) of a weekly lithographed newspaper of this name, also published at Rasht, dated the 21st of Rabī' i, A.H. 1327, and April 12, 1909, edited by Mīr 'Abdu'l-Bāqī and 'Alī Āqā Nāzım, founders of the Ittifāq College. It contains rather a fine poem addressed to Muḥammad 'Alī, who was at that time still Shāh.

Ittifāq-i-Kārgarān (Union of Workers).

اتفاق کارگران

A newspaper published in Tīhrān by the United Association of Printers, who, in consequence of the strike to which they had recourse in order to further their aims and obtain from their employers and the owners of the printing-presses their nine demands, brought it out during their strike in A.H. 1328 (= A.D.

1910). This strike and this newspaper have both a special historical importance, inasmuch as they were the first manifestations in Persia of a collectivist or socialistic movement; for although other strikes had taken place before this, yet these had not the form and character of European strikes. This newspaper did not run to more than four or five numbers. In politics it was Socialistic (Ijtimâ'i).

Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

Ihtiyāj (Need).

احتياج

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Tabriz in A.H. 1316 (= A.D. 1898-9) under the editorship of 'Alī-qulī Khān, known as Şafaroff, some account of whom and his paper has been already given in the Introduction (p. 15 and note 1 ad calc., supra).

See Rabino, No. 6, according to whom only 7 numbers (the first dated Muḥarram 16, A.H. 1316=June 6, 1898) were published. At the request of the Amīr Nizām the name of the paper was then changed to Iqbāl ("Good Fortune"), under which title the eighth number appeared.

Ihyā (Revivification).

احيا

A weekly newspaper printed at Shīrāz in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Hājji Mīrzā 'Abdu'l-Ḥusayn.

See Rabino, No. 7. I possess No. 4, dated Monday the 3rd of Rabī' ii, A.H. 1329 (=April 3, 1911). It contains 4 pp. of 13" × 7½". Yearly subscription in Shīrāz, 6 grāns.

(33)

Akhbār-i-Imrūz (To-day's News).

اخبار امروز

A newspaper printed in Tīhrān in the month of Shawwāl, A.H. 1329 (=Sept.-Oct. 1911). The editor's name appeared only as 'Alī at the bottom of the sheet.

Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

Akhtar (Star).

اختر

A weekly newspaper printed at Constantinople. It began to be published in A.H. 1292 (= A.D. 1875) under the editorship of Āqā Muḥammad Ṭāhīr of Tabriz, who is still living.

See Rabino, No. 8. I possess a considerable collection of numbers belonging to the fourteenth to the seventeenth years (May, 1888–Feb. 1891). The paper came to an end about 1895 or 1896. The yearly subscription was 5 mejdiyyés in Turkey, 25 grâns in Persia, 25 francs in Europe, etc. Each issue, as a rule, comprised 8 pp. of 13" × 8½".

Ukhuwwat (Fraternity).

اخوت

A weekly newspaper lithographed at Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Mírzá Aḥmad, known as "Başírat," who was also editor of the Ittiḥád (see No. 23, supra).

Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

Ukhuwwat (Fraternity).

A weekly newspaper printed at Rasht (not Yazd, as stated in the original MS.) in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910).

See Rabino, No. 10, according to whom only 13 numbers were published, at irregular interval, the first on the 8th of Sha'bân, A.H. 1328 (= August 15, 1910), the last on the 24th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1329 (= June 22, 1911), the editor being first "Mu'ayyid" and then "Mawlawi." I possess all thirteen numbers. Nos. 2 and 3 were entitled Ukhuwwat-i-Áll. The paper was chiefly ethical and literary, and contained a good deal of poetry. It consisted of pp. 4–6 of 12" × 7½". Yearly subscription, 10 grâns a year in Rasht, 12 elsewhere in Persia.

Ukhuwwat (Fraternity).

اخوت

A weekly newspaper printed at Baghdad in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Muḥammad Taqí of Yazd. In politics this paper was Liberal and Constitutional.

See Rabino, No. 9, according to whom the fifth issue was dated the 6th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1328 (= April 27, 1910). I possess No. 18, which is dated the 4th of Sha'bân, A.H. 1328 (= August 11, 1910), and comprises 8 pp. of 9¼" × 6½". The yearly subscription was 30 piastres in Baghdad and 40 elsewhere in Turkey; 20 grâns in Persia; 5 roubles in Russia; 10 francs in Europe; and 6 rupees in India.

Adab (Culture).

ادب

A weekly newspaper lithographed in the ta'líq writing in Tabríz in A.H. 1316 (= A.D. 1898–9). The owner and editor of this paper was Mírzá Šádíq Khán Adibul-Mamálík, one of the

"Qá'im-maqámí" Sayyids, a descendant of Mirzá Abu'l-Qásim of Faráhán, the celebrated Qá'im-maqám, who was Prime Minister to Muḥammad Sháh Qájár. This paper was illustrated with portraits of the celebrated sages and great men of the world, and contained some scientific articles written or translated by Mírzá Najaf-qulí Khán-i-Qá'im-maqámí, the physician. After the publication of the seventeenth number it was suspended for some time, until the College known as Luqmáníyya was founded and opened under the direction of the Adíbu'l-Mamálík, when it again appeared under the management and at the cost of the above-mentioned College. Only three or four numbers appeared, lithographed in naskh handwriting and illustrated with portraits of the Qá'im-maqám, Mírzá Taqí Khán Amír-Nizám, etc., when the editor resigned the direction of the College. He published one more number (the last) at Tabríz, and a little while after the second suspension of the paper set out for Mashhad. Some poetical fragments and qasídas of the Adíbu'l-Mamálík himself, who was one of the most eminent contemporary poets of Persia, were generally included in the paper. Of his many excellent poems only one—a threnody in fourteen stanzas—has been printed at Tabríz.

See Rabino's supplementary list, No. 237, where the date of first publication is given as the 15th of Sha'bhán, A.H. 1317 (= Dec. 28, 1898), and it is stated that only three numbers were published. I have no copy of the Tabríz Adab.

Adab (Culture).

A weekly newspaper lithographed at Mashhad in A.H. 1318 (= A.D. 1900-1). Its editor was the same Adíbu'l-Mamálík mentioned above, and it continued at Mashhad until A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902-3).

See Rabino, No. 11, according to whom this paper continued from the 4th of Ramazán, A.H. 1318 (= Dec. 26, 1900) until the 28th of Shawwál, A.H. 1320 (= Jan. 28, 1903). The Adíbu'l-Mamálík's proper name was Mírzá Šádíq Khán of Faráhán. I possess Nos. 1 and 9. Each comprises 8 pp. of 12" x 8½" well lithographed in large, clear naskh. Yearly subscription, 20 gráns in Mashhad, 25 elsewhere in Persia, 6 roubles in the Caucasus and Russia, 3 mejdiyyés in Turkey, 10 rupees in India, and 12 francs in Europe.

Adab (Culture).

A weekly newspaper lithographed and subsequently printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1322 (= A.D. 1904-5), at first edited and written by the same Adibul-Mamalik who founded the two papers of the same name (Adab) published at Tabríz and Mashhad respectively, and afterwards by Majdu'l-Islám of Kirmán, editor of the Nidá-yi-Waṭan, Kashkúl and Muhákamát (q.v.). The Adibul-Mamalik, who edited it at first, after a while transferred it to Majdu'l-Islám, and himself went to Báku, where he edited the Persian supplement of Ahmed Bey Aghayeff's Turkish paper Irshád. After the issue of eleven numbers of this he returned to Tihrán in the [first] Constitutional Period, when so many anjumans (committees) were formed by the Constitutionalists, and founded a paper entitled 'Irág-i-'Ajam, which was the organ of the anjuman of that name.

See Rabino, No. 11, according to whom the third issue was dated the 8th of Safar, A.H. 1322 (= April 24, 1904), and the 189th issue the 14th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1324 (= June 7, 1906). I possess Nos. 40, 140 and 188 (all lithographed). These comprise pp. 4-8 of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$ and generally contain a portrait on the first and a caricature on the last page. Yearly subscription, 24 gráns in Tihrán; 20 gráns to students in Tihrán and Mashhad; 30 gráns in other parts of Persia; 8 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus; 4 mejidiyyés in Turkey and Egypt; 15 rupees in India and China; and 20 francs in Europe and America. I also possess three of the printed numbers, No. 161 (fourth year) dated the 18th of Rajab, A.H. 1323 = Sept. 13, 1905; No. 184 (fifth year) dated the 2nd of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1324 = May 26, 1906; and No. 189, dated sixteen days later. These were printed at the Khurhíd ("Sun") printing-press at Tihrán, but bear no editor's name. The subscription price is somewhat higher than the homonymous lithograph.

Irshád (Direction).

ارشاد

A half-page Persian supplement to the daily Turkish newspaper Irshád printed at Báku in the year A.H. 1323 (= A.D. 1905-6), written by the above-mentioned Adibul-Mamalik under the editorship of Ahmed Bey Aghayeff of Qarábágh.

ܘܪܡܝܝܐ ܐܘܪܬܘܕܟܝܐܝܬܐ

A newspaper published at Urúmí (Urmiya) in the Chaldaean (Syriac) language for the promotion of the "Orthodox" faith.

(43)

Istiqlál (Independence).

استقلال

A newspaper printed at Tabríz, and appearing every alternate day, in the year A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Mírzá Áqá of Tabríz, known as Nála-i-Millat ("Cry of the Nation"), because he edited another paper of this name, and was called after it, according to a custom prevalent in Persia. This newspaper was the result of the assembling under the protection of the Ottoman Consulate at Tabríz of the Constitutionalists and defenders of Tabríz, headed by Sattár Khán and Báqir Khán, in consequence of the continued aggressions of the then newly arrived Russian troops in Jumáda i of that year (= May 21–June 20, 1909), when a committee was formed amongst the refugees consisting of certain men of education who used to take counsel as to the conduct of its affairs. Amongst its members were Sayyid Muḥammad Rízá of Shíráz, editor of the Musáwát ("Equality"), who was at that time in Tabríz, and Mírzá Aḥmad of Qazwín, both of whom were afterwards deputies for Tabríz in the [second] National Assembly. This newspaper continued to be published until A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910). In politics it was Liberal and Constitutional, not Democratic, as stated by Mr Rabino.

See Rabino, No. 18, according to whom the seventh issue was dated the 22nd of Rajab, A.H. 1327 (= Aug. 9, 1909), and the forty-seventh number the 5th of Rabī' ii, A.H. 1328 (= April 16, 1910). I possess Nos. 7, 39, 45–54. Each number comprised 4 pp. of 12" × 8½". The yearly subscription was 16 qráns in Tabríz, 20 qráns elsewhere in Persia, and 15 francs abroad.

Istiqlál-i-Írán (Independence of Persia).

استقلال ایران

A large-sized daily newspaper printed in Tíhrán in the month of Jumáda i, A.H. 1328 (= May–June, 1910). It was the organ of the party of Union and Progress, and was at first edited by Dr Ḥusayn Khán Kaḥḥál ("the Oculist"), then by Sayyid Muḥammad Khán Muhandis-i-Humáyún, and lastly by Dr Abu'l-Ḥasan Khán of Tabríz. It continued publication until the month of Sha'bán, A.H. 1329 (August, 1911).

See Rabino, No. 19. I possess Nos. 8, 12, 19, 39, 40, 72, 76, 88, 99, 183, 191, 208, 212–216, and 234. Each number comprises 4 pp. of 20" × 14½". The yearly subscription was 50 qráns in Tíhrán, 55 in the provinces, and 75 abroad.

Al-Islám.

الإسلام

A monthly religious paper lithographed at Iṣfahán in A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902-3), and more generally known as Guftagú-i-Ṣafá-Khána-i-Iṣfahán ("Talk of the House of Purity of Iṣfahán"). Its editor was Sayyid Muḥammad 'Alí entitled Dá'i'l-Islám ("the Propagandist of Islám") of Iṣfahán, who also edited another paper called Dá'watu'l-Islám ("the Preaching of Islám"), published at Bombay.

See Rabino, No. 20. I do not possess the paper.

Islámiyya.

اسلاميه

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7), edited by Mírzá Abu'l-Qásim Ziyá'u'l-'Ulamá of Tabríz, son of the Shamsu'l-'Ulamá. He belonged to one of the great families of learned men in Tabríz, was one of the first Constitutionalists of that city, and was amongst those who assembled in the British Consulate on the 29th of Rajab, A.H. 1324 (= Sept. 19, 1906) to demand the proclamation of the Constitution and the signature of the Crown Prince (or Walt'-ahd, i.e. Muḥammad 'Alí Mírzá). He had studied with success the old and new learning, knew French and Russian, and was one of the truest patriots and Constitutionalists, and an intimate friend of the writer. The idea of founding this newspaper first arose during the days when we were together in the British Consulate and were discussing the publication of a newspaper. The late Ziyá'u'l-'Ulamá during the whole six years of the Constitutional Period devoted himself entirely to the service of the Nation, was for a long time a member of the Council of Education (Anjuman-i-Ma'árif) of Tabríz, was Head of the department of Justice during the Revolution, and later Chief of the Court of Appeal. He also participated in person with great valour in the National struggles and wars with the Reactionaries. Unhappily during the last cruel catastrophe and slaughter of the Liberals in which the Russian aggressions in Tabríz culminated (in Muḥarram, A.H. 1330 = January, 1912) the Russians hanged him with seven others on the day of the 'Ashúrá' (Muḥarram 10, 1330 = Jan. 1, 1912) without any fault on his part.

Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8).

See Rabino, No. 21.

(50)

Iṣlâḥ (Reform).

اصلاح

A newspaper mimeographed in Paris in the nasta liq handwriting in the early part of A.H. 1326 (= early spring of A.D. 1908), edited by Dr Jalíl Khán. Its contents consisted for the most part of translations of articles concerning Persia which had appeared in the European Press.

According to Rabino, No. 22, it appeared fortnightly. I possess Nos. 1, 2, 6 and 7. It was edited from No. 82, Boulevard St. Marcel, Paris, and comprised 4-8 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{4}''$.

Isláh (Reform).

اصلاح

A weekly newspaper lithographed in the naskh handwriting in Bombay in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909).

Not mentioned by Rabino. I possess Nos. 31 of the second and 1, 6 and 8 of the third year of issue, the first dated the 3rd of Muharram, A.H. 1329 (= Jan. 4, 1911). Each issue contains as a rule 8 pp. of $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$. The editor was Muhammad Rizá of Bushire. Yearly subscription, 10 gráns in Persia, 5 rupees in India, and 6½ rupees elsewhere.

Isláh (Reform).

اصلاح

A weekly newspaper printed in Khúy in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of 'Alí Husayn-Záda. The first number was dated the 29th of Sha'bán of that year (= August 25, 1911).

Not mentioned by Rabino.

Ittilá' (Information).

اطلاع

A fortnightly paper first printed and afterwards lithographed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1295 (= A.D. 1878). This was the semi-official organ of the Persian Government, twin-brother to the official Írán ("Persia"), and issued under the control of the Ministry of the Press and the supervision of Muhammad Hasan Khán I'timádu's-Saltána, son of Hájji 'Alí Khán Hájibu'd-Dawla of the Muqaddam family of Marágha, and afterwards of his nephew Muhammad Báqir Khán I'timádu's-Saltána. It continued publication until A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8). This paper, on account of its connection with the Government, was devoid of useful political articles or such as might awaken thought, and was therefore always the object of severe criticism on the part of Persian Liberals and men of letters. Its only importance lay in the fact that it sometimes contained the textual agreements connected with certain State concessions and the like. This paper and its companion-paper the Írán were for some time the only papers published within Persian territory, yet notwithstanding this they enjoyed no popularity, but were only forced upon Government employées, land-owners and officers of the State, from whose salaries the subscription was deducted.

See Rabino, No. 23. I possess Nos. 15-19 of the 29th year (Nov. 29, 1906-April 11, 1907). Each issue comprises 4 pp. of $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{3}{4}''$. The yearly subscription was 18 grāns in Tīhrán, 20 grāns elsewhere in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, 40 piastres in Turkey, and 7 rupees in India and China.

اطلاعات روزانه

See pp. 63-64 infra, under No. 106, Tamaddun ("Civilization").

(56)

Aflātūn (Plato).

افلاطون

A paper printed in Rasht with coloured illustrations, of which one number only was published on the 26th of Rajab, A.H. 1328 (= August 3, 1910).

See Rabino, No. 26. I possess a copy. It comprises 8 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7\frac{1}{4}''$, 4 of which contain coloured cartoons. Yearly subscription, 25 grāns in Rasht, 27 elsewhere in Persia, and 6 roubles abroad.

Iqbál (Progress).

اقبال

A weekly paper lithographed in Tabríz in A.H. 1316 (= A.D. 1898-9) under the editorship of 'Alí-qulí Khán, known as Šafaroff, who was also editor of the newspapers Ihtiyāj and Āzarbāyyān (q.v.).

See Rabino, No. 27, who says that the first issue of the paper under this new name was the eighth of the older Ihtiyāj which it replaced, and that it was dated the 29th of Rabī' i, A.H. 1316 (= August 17, 1898).

Uqyánús (The Ocean).

اقیانوس

A weekly paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of Sayyid Farajullāh of Kāshán, the former editor of the Thurayyá in Egypt and Tīhrán. The real founder, owner and writer of the paper was Mīrzá 'Abdu'r-Raḥīm of Qarājádāgh, known as Hakīm-i-Ilāhī ("the Philosopher"). This is the only Persian newspaper which openly defended the autocratic methods of the ex-Shāh and his creatures and championed the cause of the Reaction, and which accordingly continued after the Reactionary Coup d'État of the 23rd of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1326 (= June 23, 1908). After the capture of Tīhrán by the Constitutionalists (July, 1909), its editor Mīrzá 'Abdu'r-Raḥīm was arrested and imprisoned for a year amongst other political offenders.

See Rabino, No. 28.

Ekbátán (Ecbatana).

اِکْبَاتَان

A paper published in Hamadán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8), of which the writer has never seen a copy. It succeeded the 'Adl-i-Muẓaffar (q.v.), was under the same management, and continued publication until recently.

Not mentioned by Rabino.

(60)

Echo de Perse.

A paper published in Tīhrán in A.D. 1885 (= A.H. 1302-3).

See Rabino, No. 228, and p. 17 supra.

Ulfat (Friendship).

الفَت

A weekly paper printed in Hamadán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Mīrzá Sayyid Muḥammad Hamadání.

See Rabino, No. 29. I possess No. 6, dated the 26th of Rabí' i, A.H. 1325 (= May 9, 1907). It contains 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{4}'' \times 7''$. The yearly subscription was 10 grāns in Hamadán and 15 elsewhere in Persia.

Ummíd (Hope).

اُمید

An illustrated weekly newspaper lithographed at Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7). This was one of the first papers to appear after the granting of the Constitution, and was founded by five or six students of the Luqmáníyya College. It continued publication for about 8 months.

See Rabino, No. 32. I possess Nos. 7 and 14, the former dated the 28th of Shawwál, A.H. 1324 (=December 15, 1906). It contains 4 pp. of $12\frac{3}{4}'' \times 7''$.

(63)

Ummíd-i-Taraqquí (Hope of Progress).

امید ترقی

A paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1329 (=A.D. 1911), giving particulars as to the receipts and expenses of certain theatrical performances.

See Rabino, No. 33. No. 1, which I possess, is dated 29 Jumáda i, A.H. 1329 (=May 28, 1911) and comprises 6 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Price of each number, 1 sháht.

Anjuman (the Assembly or Club).

انجمن

A paper first lithographed and later printed in Tabríz from two to four times a week, in the early part of A.H. 1325 (=Feb.-March, A.D. 1907). See under Rúzu'na-i-Millt.

See Rabino, No. 34. I possess a good many numbers, both of the lithographed and printed issues. The former begin with No. 44 of the First Year, dated the 4th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1325 (=Feb. 7, 1907), and end with No. 3 of the Third Year, dated the 5th of Sha'bán, A.H. 1326 (=Sept. 2, 1908), and each contains 4 pp. of $12'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$, written in a large, clear naskh. The yearly subscription was 10 qráns (for 100 issues) in Tabríz; 15 qráns elsewhere in Persia; 4 roubles in Russia; 15 qráns in Europe and Turkey. Of the printed issues the first is No. 1 of the Second Year, dated the 4th of Šafar, A.H. 1326 (=March 8, 1908), and the last No. 31 of the same year, dated the 12th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1326 (=June 12, 1908). The pages (4) measure $12'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, and the yearly subscription differed little from that of the lithographed issues. There seems to have been some confusion and overlapping in the printed and lithographed issues.

Anjuman-i-Aṣnáf (the Trades' Guild).

انجمن اصناف

A weekly newspaper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Sayyid Muṣṭafá of Tīhrán, under the management of the Trades' Guild.

See Rabino, No. 35, according to whom the third issue was dated the 8th of Ramazán, A.H. 1325 (=Oct. 15, 1907). The issue next or next but one to this appeared under the title Bámúdd ("Morning"), q.v. I possess a copy of No. 3, which comprises 4 pp. of $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 10 qráns in Tīhrán, 5 francs abroad.

Anjuman-i-Iṣfahán.

انجمن اصفهان

A weekly paper lithographed in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Sayyid Siráju'd-Dín. This paper was the official organ of the Provincial Council, or Anjuman, of Iṣfahán, whose deliberations it used to publish.

See Rabino, No. 36. I possess a good many numbers, ranging in dates from the 13th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1325 (= May 26, 1907), which is No. 21 of the First Year, to No. 38 of the Fourth Year, which is dated the 7th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1329 (= April 7, 1911). Each number contains 8 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$. The earlier ones are in nasta'liq, the later ones in naskh, with some lines in nasta'liq at the foot. Yearly subscription, 18 gráns in Iṣfahán, 20 elsewhere in Persia, 22 abroad.

Anjuman-i-Ukhuwwat (Society of Brotherhood).

انجمن اخوت

A weekly newspaper lithographed at Shíráz in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(68)

Anjuman-i-Baladiyya (The Municipal Council).

انجمن بلدیه

A paper published in Iṣfahán on the 5th of Shawwál, A.H. 1325 (= Nov. 11, 1907), which continued publication for five months.

See Rabino, No. 238, on whose authority it is inserted.

Anjuman-i-Millí-i-Wiláyatí-i-Gílán

انجمن ملی ولایتی گیلان

(The National Provincial Council of Gilán).

A paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Dabíru'l-Mamálík. Four numbers of this paper were to be published weekly, but apparently only four numbers were published altogether.

See Rabino, No. 37. I possess four numbers (1-4), the first dated the 22nd of Rajab, A.H. 1325 (= August 31, 1907), and the last the 22nd of Sha'bán (September 30) of the same year. Each consists of 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7''$. Yearly subscription (200 issues), 30 gráns in Rasht and Gilán, 45 gráns in other parts of Persia, 9 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus.

Anjuman-i-Wiláyatí-i-Yazd

انجمن ولایتی یزد

(The Provincial Council of Yazd).

A weekly paper published in Yazd in the early part of A.H. 1328 (= Jan.-Feb., 1910) under the editorship of Mírzá Muḥammad Šádiq of Qum.

See Rabino, No. 38, according to whom No. 2 was dated the 5th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1328 (= Jan. 17, 1910). I possess Nos. 2 and 4. The former consists of 8 pp. of small size, 8" x 5"; the latter of 4 pp. of 12" x 6". Yearly subscription, 12 gráns in Yazd, 14 elsewhere in Persia.

Indépendance Perse.

A French weekly newspaper printed in Tíhrán in A.D. 1910 (= A.H. 1328) under the editorship of Dr Ḥusayn Khán Kaḥḥál ("the Oculist") in connection with the Istíqlál-i-Írán (No. 44, supra).

See Rabino, No. 230, according to whom only three numbers were issued, the first on June 4 and the third on June 17, 1910.

Insániyyat (Humanity).

انسانیت

A paper published in Tíhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8). It appears to have been the organ of the Anjuman of the same name, which consisted chiefly of natives of Áshtiyan and Tafrish, and was under the presidency of the Mustawfí'l-Mamálék.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

Anšár (Helpers).

انصار

A paper of small format lithographed in naskh handwriting at Iṣfahán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8). The second number appeared under the title of Ganjína-i-Anšár ("Treasury of the Helpers").

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

Úrdú-yi-Humáyún (The Royal Camp).

اوردوی همایون

A paper published during the march to Khurásán at the time of Násiru'd-Dín Sháh's second journey to Mashhad in A.H. 1300 (= A.D. 1882-3), written in the course of the journey at the different halting places on the road, and circulated amongst the members of the Royal Suite, commonly called "the Royal Camp." The first number was printed at Damáwand on Sha'bán 11 (A.H. 1300 = June 17, 1883), and the last at Tíhrán when the Sháh reached the capital on his return on Dhu'l-Hijja 12 of that year (= Oct. 14, 1883). In all twelve numbers were published. The editor was Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán I'timádu's-Saltāna, aided by his secretary Mírzá Muḥammad Ḥusayn Zaká'u'l-Mulk, editor of the newspaper Tarbiyat, and the writer was the calligraphist Mírzá Muḥammad Rizá of Kalhur.

Omitted by Rabino, but mentioned in the Kitáb'u'l-Ma'áthir Wa'l-Áthár ("Book of Institutions and Monuments") amongst the newspapers published during the reign of Násiru'd-Dín Sháh. The details concerning it given above were obtained by the author from H.E. Zaká'u'l-Mulk.

Írán (Persia).

ایران

A newspaper lithographed, and subsequently printed, in Tíhrán, at first every alternate day and afterwards once a fortnight, in A.H. 1288 (= A.D. 1871-2). It was at first edited by Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán I'timádu's-Saltāna, Minister of Publications, and afterwards by Muḥammad Báqir Khán I'timádu's-Saltāna, also Minister of Publications, until the beginning of the Constitutional Epoch. Some brief account of its history has been given at the beginning of this treatise. Its first number was dated Sunday, Muḥarram 11 of the above-mentioned year (A.H. 1288 = April 2, 1871), and the paper at first appeared regularly thrice a week. At the beginning of the first number was an announcement, signed by Muḥammad Ḥasan, referring to the suspension of the Rúsnámas entitled respectively Dawlatí, Millatí and ‘Ilmí, and their replacement by this paper, which would publish three numbers a week instead of the single weekly number published by each of them. In the department of the British Museum Library assigned to Periodical Publications are preserved (under the class-mark 757. I. 11) Nos. 1-10, 90-92 and 94-125 of this paper, which I have examined.

This paper was an official Government organ, containing Court news, Imperial Rescripts (farmáns), appointments and dismissals, the assignment of posts and titles, and especially such personal doings of the Sháh as levées, hunting-expeditions, religious mournings (in the month of Muḥarram), excursions, and the like, as well as other State functions. Its business was to praise the Royal performances and the doings of the Courtiers, and to enlarge on the security of the country and the progress of the Government; so that this paper, more than all others, was the object of criticism on the part of Persian Liberals and Persian newspapers published abroad. In its early days it contained a scientific part, which treated of the modern sciences, while at the foot of the page appeared in instalments a translation by Muḥammad Ḥasan of Jules Verne's Les Anglais au Pole Nord: Aventures du Capitaine Hatteras.

The I'timádu's-Saltāna writes: "The newspaper Írán ('Persia') was first published in the year A.H. 1288 (= 1871-2) when the superintendence of the Printing-press was entrusted to my uncle, the old I'timádu's-Saltāna, and Mírzá Ḥusayn Khán Sipahsálár was Prime Minister."

Zaká'u'l-Mulk writes: "In the beginning of A.H. 1288 (March-April, 1871) the newspapers generally were placed under the charge of Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán, Page in waiting (pishkhiḍmat), who subsequently received the title of Šan'í'u'd-Dawla, and finally that of I'timádu's-Saltāna. He converted the three Rúznámas entitled Dawlatí, ‘Ilmí and Millatí (which had hitherto been published under the management of the Ministry of Sciences and the Dáru'l-Funún College, and the supervision of the I'tizádu's-Saltāna) into one newspaper entitled Írán, which originally appeared three times a week, but gradually ceased to appear so regularly. This paper was first written by a certain Mírzá ‘Alí Khán of Ná'in; afterwards, until about the year A.H. 1300 (= A.D. 1882-3), by my late father; and after that by Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán, who lately received the title *Mujirū'd-Dawla*¹."

See Rabino, No. 40. I possess one number (No. 934) of the lithographed issue, dated the 15th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1315 and the 7th of May, 1898. It is written in a fine bold naskh and consists of 4 pp. of 16" x 10". Yearly subscription in Ṭihrán, 36 grāns, abroad 38½ grāns. Of the printed issue I possess Nos. 10, 17, 18, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26 of the 59th year of publication, ranging from July 26, 1906, to Feb. 7, 1907. These numbers consist of 4 pp. of 15¼" x 8½". The subscription price remained nearly the same, with equivalents added for Europe, Turkey and Russia. No. 22, dated Jan. 10, 1906, appeared in mourning, and contains the announcement of Muzaffarū'd-Dīn Sháh's death, and the Viṣām-náma, or Constitution, of the newly-established National Assembly in 51 articles, dated the 14th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1324 (= December 30, 1906).

[Írán-i-Sultání (Royal Persia).

ایران سلطانی

See below under Rúznáma-i-Írán-i-Sultání, which is the correct title of the paper in question.]

¹ The founder and editor of this paper was the late Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán I'timádu's-Saltana, son of Hájji 'Alí Khán Hájibu'd-Dawla, of the Muqaddam family of Marágha, and founder of the newspaper Iftilá' (q.v.), which on his death was made over to his nephew Muḥammad Báqir Khán, the present I'timádu's-Saltana, who for a long while held the post of Minister of Publications. Its chief writer was Mírzá Muḥammad Husayn of Iṣfahán, poetically surnamed Furúghī, and entitled Zaká'u'l-Mulk, father of the present Zaká'u'l-Mulk.

Since certain doubtful and difficult points arose in connection with the earlier official and scientific newspapers published by the Persian Government, after the completion of the original draft of this treatise, and while it was still in the hands of the translator, I wrote a letter to H.E. the I'timádu's-Saltana, another to H.E. Zaká'u'l-Mulk (Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán, President of the Second National Assembly), and a third to Mírzá Rizá-qulí Khán, Principal of the Dáru'l-Funún, these three persons being the present successors of those who were concerned with the earliest newspapers published in Persia, and the leaders in all scientific and educational matters, and addressed to them certain enquiries. The I'timádu's-Saltana was kind enough to send me, besides solutions of some of my difficulties, three or four copies of some of the rarer newspapers, both old and new. From Zaká'u'l-Mulk also, on the eve of publication, I received a still fuller reply, written after much careful investigation. To both these eminent men I owe a deep debt of gratitude. I regret that hitherto no answer has been received from Mírzá Rizá-qulí Khán, who might perhaps have given fuller information on certain points specially connected with his administration. From the communications above mentioned such quotations and corrections as the progress of this work allowed have been made, these emendations being in all cases duly acknowledged. In some cases also, even when no important addition was made by them to the information already collected and recorded, I have quoted verbatim from their observations, merely in order still further to support and confirm matters recorded on other authority, such as those included in this article.

Írán-i-Naw (New Persia).

ایران نو

A daily full-sized paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), of which the first number was published on Sha'bán 7th of that year (= Aug. 24, 1909). The proprietor and (nominal) editor was Sayyid Muḥammad Shabistari of Ázarbáy-ján, known as Abu'z-Ziyá, formerly editor of al-Ḥadíd and the Mujáhid. The real and actual editor, as well as the principal writer, was, however, Muḥammad Amín Rasúl-záda of Báku, while the editor, who also financed the paper, was Basil the Armenian of Tīhrán. This paper was the greatest, most important and best known of all the Persian newspapers, and the first to appear in the large size usual in Europe. It began to appear regularly during the Second Constitutional Period, after the conquest of Tīhrán (July, 1909), introduced into Persia the journalistic methods of Europe, and became a model for other papers. Some of its leading articles were from the pen of Amír Hájibí or Ghulám Rizá, a Georgian who pretended to be a Muslim, who used to write in French, from which language they were translated into Persian. Some of the lighter facetious articles, signed Nísh ("Sting") were from the pen of Rasúl-záda. The Írán-i-Naw had the most extraordinary adventures in defending its Liberal policy, and during the period of its publication was frequently the object of vehement attacks on the part of the journals which opposed it, so that most of its time was spent in polemics, and it became both the agent and victim of important political events. Amongst these was the publication of one of the allegorical stories of the well-known Russian writer I. A. Kriloff about the Concert of the Animals, and how they interchanged places when they noticed its disorderly character; for it used occasionally to insert in one of its issues one of Kriloff's allegories which had some bearing on current events in the country. So it published this allegory of the Concert at the time when the Sipahdár's Cabinet was continually tendering its resignation, or when an interchange of portfolios took place amongst the Ministers composing it. This caused a great commotion amongst the supporters of the Government, which resulted first in the temporary suppression of the paper, and afterwards in the resignation of the Ministers. Since the Írán-i-Naw was in opposition, that is to say was the partisan and organ of the minority (i.e. the Democrats), it was always liable to repression or suppression, and was the constant object of the anger, vengeance and recriminations of the supporters of the Government. It continued publication, supported by the above-mentioned Basil the Armenian, until the month of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1328 (= June-July, 1910), when it finally suspended publication in consequence of financial embarrassments. Some months later, however, it resumed publication on the 21st of Shawwál of the same year (= Oct. 26, 1910) as the official organ of the Democratic Party, by whom it was managed and financed, under the editorship of Sayyid Mahdí, the son of Sayyid Jamál of Afcha. This time it was even more exposed than before to the attacks of its opponents, the Government, and their organs in the press, and finally Rasúl-záda, its chief writer, was exiled from Tíhrán at the instance of the Russian Legation in the latter part of Jumáda i [A.H. 1329] (= end of May, 1911). After his departure the paper still continued to be published by the Party until it was suppressed by the Government on the 22nd of Sha'bán, A.H. 1329 (= Aug. 18, 1911). It reappeared on the 18th of Dhu'l-Hijjá (= Dec. 21, 1911), but was again suppressed ten days later, the last issue being No. 121 of the Third Year. It then reappeared under the name of Írán-i-Nawín, and was again suppressed after the publication of a single number. Once more it appeared under the name of Rahbar-i-Írán-i-Naw ("the Guide of New Persia"), but was again suppressed after the publication of two numbers. The Írán-i-Naw's special importance lay in its publication of the Russian aggressions, its fiery denunciation of them, and its exposure of foreign intrigues, for which reason it was the object of special enmity on the part of the Russians.

See Rabino, No. 41. I possess a fairly extensive collection of numbers of this paper, viz. Nos. 1-230 (with a few lacunae) of the First Year, extending from August 24, 1909, to June 14, 1910; Nos. 41-121 of the Second Year, extending from December 8, 1910, to March 21, 1911; and Nos. 1-110 of the Third Year, extending from March 26 to August 16, 1911. Each issue comprised 4 pp. of 20½" x 14½". The yearly subscription was 50 qráns in Tíhrán, 55 qráns in the provinces, and 75 qráns abroad.

Parwarish (Education).

پرویش

- A weekly newspaper printed in Cairo (Egypt) in the early part of A.H. 1318 (= A.D. 1900-1), the first number dated the 10th of Šafar of that year (= June 9, 1900). The owner, editor and writer was Mírzá ‘Alí Muḥammad Khán of Káshán, the brother of [Mírzá ‘Abdu’l-Ḥusayn Khán] Wahídu’l-Mulk, who was a Member of the Second Majlis. This was one of the best Persian newspapers, and as regards influence amongst the young Persians held the first place, both exciting the emotions and compelling the affections of the Persian public. In style and tone, moreover, it had a peculiar quality of beauty. It took the place of the Thurayyá (“Pleiades”) after the dissolution of the partnership which previously existed between Mírzá ‘Alí Muḥammad Khán and Sayyid Faraju’lláh of Káshán. The fiery utterances and sweet eloquence of this paper had an extraordinary effect on public opinion, and in truth effected an intellectual revolution. Some of its special articles, such as “the Daughter of Hájji Felt-maker” (Dukhtar-i-Hájji Namad-mál), “Fancy’s Dream” (Khawáb-i-Khayál), “A Topic of Conversation” (Maqála-i-Muṣáḥaba), “Arguing in a circle” (Dawr u Tasalsul), and “the Court of Judgement, or, before the Judge of Conscience” (Majlis-i-Muḥákama, yá Mahzar-i-Qázi-yi-Wijdan) may be taken as literary models in the Persian language. After the Qánún, it was the freest in its language of all the Persian papers during the period of Autocracy; and by reason of the vehemence of its utterances, and its violent attacks on the methods of administration of the Government of Persia, particularly its criticisms on the unpatriotic actions and policy of the Amínu’s-Sultán, it became an object of hatred to the Court and of affection to the people. In consequence of an article comparing the merits of the Amínu’d-Dawla and Amínu’s-Sultán which was published in No. 23 of the paper, it was prohibited from entering Persia, but it still continued publication until the 33rd number, and by secret channels continued to find entrance into Persia. In the last number appeared a famous article, entitled “Lament for the Broken Pen: ‘for what crime was it slain?’” (Záré bar shikastagi-yi-qalam: ‘bi-ayyi dhanbⁱⁿ qutilat?’), which had a special importance. After the suppression of the paper, Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán was for some time ill with consumption, of which he finally died in A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902-3) at Ḥalwán near Cairo. See also under Thurayyá.

See Rabino, No. 55. I possess Nos. 11-19 of this paper. Each number comprises 16 pp. of $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$. Yearly subscription, 40 gráns in Persia, 10 roubles in the Caucasus, 4 mejidiyyés in Turkey, 25 francs in Europe, and 12 rupees in India and China. Of the articles specially mentioned above, Dawr u Tusalsul occurs in No. 19 and deals with the exactions practised by the Persian Consuls on the Persian pilgrims to Mecca; and the Majlis-i-Muhákama occurs in No. 18.

Pulís-i-Írán (The Police of Persia).

پلیس ایران

A daily newspaper printed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), edited by Sayyid Jawád of Tabríz and owned by Murtazá-qulí Khán Mu'ayyidu'l-Mamálik the Qájár. This was one of the papers connected with the party who were in the majority, and defended the policy of the Government, that is of the "Moderates" (I'tiddáliyún).

See Rabino, No. 56. I possess a good many numbers, the first being No. 1, dated the 4th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1327 (= November 18, 1909), and the last No. 480, dated the 20th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1329 (= Jan. 21, 1911). The size of the paper was originally $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 11''$, but it was afterwards enlarged to $18'' \times 12\frac{1}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 35 gráns in Tíhrán, 40 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 10 roubles in Russia, 25 francs in Europe, and £T1 in Turkey; but the price was subsequently raised.

A weekly paper lithographed in very fine nasta'liq in Tihrán in A.H. 1314 (= A.D. 1896-7). Its owner, editor and chief writer was Mírzá Muḥammad Ḥusayn of Iṣfahán, entitled Zaká'u'l-Mulk and poetically surnamed Furúghí, author of numerous works on history and literature, father of the present Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán Zaká'u'l-Mulk, who was a member of the Second National Assembly. This paper had a special literary importance in regard to its style, composition, and quality of eloquence, for the late Zaká'u'l-Mulk, who was in his time one of the first men of letters and poets of Persia, used frequently to publish his poems in it, for which reason amongst others it held a high and distinguished place amongst the papers of the period of Autocracy, and enjoyed a considerable influence, though its practice of flattering and praising contemporary notables detracted from its literary value. Its celebrity was chiefly due to its controversy with the paper Thurayyá ("Pleiades," q.v.) about the Persian Calendar of Hájji Najmu'd-Dawla. In consequence of the well-founded criticisms levelled by Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán of Káshán appearance in Tīhrán the Tamaddun stood aside from the strife of the other conflicting parties, and described itself as the partisan of the policy of fundamental reforms (Radical). During its first publication the Tamaddun published eighty numbers a year, but afterwards appeared once a week. During the latter part of A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) it became a daily, and was published in small quarto form under the title of Ittilâât-i-râzâna-i-Tamaddun ("Daily information of the Tamaddun"). This paper epitomized in a very pleasing form the weekly happenings and news of Persia and foreign countries, and in this respect it occupied a unique position amongst Persian newspapers.

See Rabino, No. 64. I possess a good many numbers of the First and Second Years of publication, of which the first is No. 1 of the First Year, dated the 17th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1324 (= Feb. 1, 1907), and the last No. 14 of the Second Year, dated the 11th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1326 (= June 11, 1908). Each number comprises 4 pp. of 11½" × 6¾". Yearly subscription, 24 gráns in Tīhrán, 30 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 7 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, and 14 rupees in India. A supplementary number dated the 1st of Ramazán, A.H. 1326 (= Sept. 27, 1908), bears over the title the words "Náha-i-Millat" ("the Nation's Lament"), and above this the verse from the Qur'án: "Deem not them who were slain in the Way of God as dead, but rather as living, cared for by their Lord." Instead of the usual price stand the words: "a grain of activity," and readers in Persia are requested to pass the paper on to others. It contains a proclamation from the Mujtahids of Karbalá against Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh and in favour of the Constitution, and was printed at the Habib'ul-Matin Press at Calcutta.

Tamaddun (Civilization).

تمدن

A paper published in Bombay in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) by the above-mentioned Mudabbir'ul-Mamálik during his stay in India. Only one number appeared.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(108)

Tamaddun (Civilization).

تمدن

A paper published in Rasht in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), edited and written by the above-mentioned Mudabbir'ul-Mamálik, during his return from India to Tīhrán. Only one number appeared, dated 29 Rabí ii, A.H. 1327 (May '9, 1909).

See Rabino, No. 64, according to whom the single Rasht issue was No. 5 of the Second Year. We have seen above that No. 14 of the Second Year was published on June 11, 1908, 12 days before the Coup d'État, while the next (Rasht) issue, No. 15, must have been published about 13 months later, in July, 1909, just before the capture of Tīhrán by the Nationalists.

Tanbīh (Admonition).

تنبيه

A comic paper, partly lithographed and partly printed, published in Tīhrán, and illustrated with coloured caricatures, in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907), under the editorship of Murtaṣidu'l-Aṭibbā. After the restoration of the Constitution (in July, 1909) this paper was again published, and continued until these last times (end of 1911). In politics it belonged to the Moderate Party.

See Rabino, No. 65, according to whom No. 7 was dated the 14th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (= July 25, 1907). I possess No. 1 of the Third Year, which, however, is undated. It comprises 4 pp. of 12½" × 6¾". Pp. 1 and 4 each contain a caricature (not coloured) and are lithographed: pp. 2 and 3 are printed.

Tahdhīb (Purification).

تهذيب

A weekly newspaper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(111)

at-Tawaddud (Affection).

التودد

A paper published in Paris in A.D. 1891 (= A.H. 1308-9) under the editorship of Shaykh Abú Nazzára (-Nadhdhára). This paper was published in four languages, Arabic, Persian, Turkish and French, and was illustrated. As it contained a Persian section it has been recorded amongst the Persian newspapers. Some of its Persian articles were written by Shaykh Muḥammad Ḥasan of Sírjān (near Kirmán), entitled Shaykhu'l-Mulk.

Not in Rabino, and not seen. Shaykh Abu Nadhdára (a vulgar form of the name given above), one of the Egyptian political exiles in Paris, was better known as the editor of the Arabic comic lithographed paper called by the same name ("the Father of Spectacles") which he had assumed. His real name was James Sanna.

Tiyátr (The Theatre).

تئاتر

A bi-weekly paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908), edited and written by Mírzá Rizá Khán-i-Ṭabātabá'ī of Ná'in, afterwards a member of the Second National Assembly. Its contents consisted of scenes cast in dramatic form referring to the conditions of administration under the Autocracy, and the methods of government adopted by princes and governors under the ancient régime. It may be reckoned one of the best newspapers in Persian.

See Rabino, No. 66, according to whom the paper first appeared on the 4th of Rabí' i, A.H. 1326 (= April 6, 1908). He adds that he had seen No. 1 of the Third Year, which bore no date. I possess Nos. 1-4, which contain each 4 pp. of 11" x 7". Yearly subscription, 12 gráns in Tīhrán, 16 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, and 8 francs in Europe.

Thurayyá (The Pleiades).

ثريا

A weekly newspaper printed in Cairo (Egypt) in A.H. 1316 (= A.D. 1898-9). The first number was dated the 14th of Jumáda ii of that year (= Oct. 30, 1898), and it was at first edited by Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán of Káshán and afterwards by Sayyid Faraju'lláh of Káshán. So long as it was edited and written by the former it was much sought after and attained a great renown, so much so that during the Period of Autocracy no Persian newspaper was so much appreciated. It participated in most of those qualities which have been already mentioned in our eulogy of the Parwarish, than which it was even better known in consequence of the longer duration of its publication. One of its well-known articles was the "Topic of Conversation" (Maqála-i-Muṣḥaba), and one of the most important episodes in its career was the prolonged controversy concerning Hájji Najmu'd-Dawla's Calendar (see pp. 61-2, supra) which took place between it and the Tarbiyat newspaper. Another was its defence of the Tarbiyat College established in Tabríz by the present writer and others, and its continued attacks on Hájji Sayyid Muḥammad of Yazd, the notorious intriguer who had been instrumental in bringing about the closure of that College. The violent attacks on this man published in Nos. 36 and 37 of the First Year of this paper led to his banishment from Tabríz. In the middle of the Second Year of its publication, Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khán handed over the paper to Sayyid Faraju'lláh, and himself founded the Parwarish (ق.ر.). Thereafter the Thurayyá entirely lost its former importance, and no longer retained its popularity. It continued to be published in Egypt under the editorship of Sayyid Faraju'lláh for some time, but was finally suspended, and the editor went to Ṭíhrán and there resumed its publication.

See Rabino, No. 67. I possess an almost complete set of the paper comprising Nos. 1-51 of the First Year, the date of No. 1 being the 14th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1316 (=Oct. 30, 1898), and Nos. 1-36 of the Second Year, the date of the last number being the 20th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1318 (=Oct. 15, 1900). The first number of the Parwarish is dated the 10th of Šafar, A.H. 1318 (=June 8, 1900). Each number of the Thurayyá comprises from 16 to 18 pp. of 6' x 5¾". Yearly subscription, 36 gráns in Persia, 4 mejidiyyés in Turkey, 10 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, 25 francs in Europe, and 12 rupees in India.

Thurayyá (The Pleiades).

ثُرَيَّا

A weekly newspaper printed in Ṭíhrán in A.H. 1321 (=A.D. 1903-4) under the editorship of the above-mentioned Sayyid Faraju'lláh of Káshán.

See Rabino, No. 67, according to whom No. 21 of the Sixth Year (dating from the foundation of the paper at Cairo) was dated the 22nd of Rajab, A.H. 1321 (=Oct. 14, 1903).

(115)

Thurayyá (The Pleiades).

ثُرَيَّا

A paper published at Káshán in A.H. 1328 (=A.D. 1910) by the same Sayyid Faraju'lláh.

Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

Járchí-yi-Millat (The People's Herald).

جَارِحِي مِلَّت

A weekly paper lithographed in Ṭíhrán towards the end of A.H. 1328 (=A.D. 1910), under the editorship of Áqá Sayyid Ḥusayn, and illustrated with comic caricatures.

See Rabino, No. 68, according to whom No. 5 was dated the 5th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1329 (=Jan. 6, 1911). I possess Nos. 5-8. No. 6 is dated the 23rd of Muḥarram, A.H. 1329, and has on the first page a portrait of M. Panoff, the celebrated Bulgarian revolutionary who was expelled from Tīhrán by the Russians and afterwards took part in the fighting near Astarábád. See my History of the Persian Revolution, pp. 214-228 and 418. Each number comprises 4 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 8 gráns in Tīhrán, 10 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 6 francs abroad.

Járchī-yi-Waṭan (The Country's Herald).

جارچی وطن

A weekly paper published in Tīhrán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(118)

Jám-i-Jam (The Goblet of Jamshíd).

جام جم

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Hájji Sayyid Rızá (the nephew of Hájji Sayyid Muḥammad the banker), one of the registrars of the National 'Assembly, and illustrated with portraits of former kings of Persia.

See Rabino, No. 69, according to whom this paper first appeared on the 14th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (= July 25, 1907). I possess Nos. 1-10, 12-18, 20-23, 26-27. Each number comprises as a rule 4 pp. of $12'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$, and has on the first page a picture of one of the ancient Persian kings of the Kayání or Sásání dynasty, the first being Kayúmarth and the last Bahrám II. Yearly subscription, 12 gráns in Tīhrán, 15 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 3 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, one mejidiyýe and a half in Turkey, and 7 francs in Europe.

Jám-i-Jamshíd (The Goblet of Jamshíd).

جام جمشید

A weekly newspaper published at Bombay every Monday in A.H. 1262 (= A.D. 1846).

This paper, together with some other Persian newspapers, is mentioned in Zenker's Bibliotheca Orientalis (Leipzig, 1846), under article No. 1831. According to this statement, the papers mentioned by name as published in India were earlier by at least five years than even the Rúsnáma-i-Waqáye'-i-Ittiqáqiyya, which was the earliest Persian newspaper, since they were in circulation in A.H. 1262, which was the date, according to the Muhammadan computation, of Zenker's work, and some of them may have been founded years before that date. This paper is not mentioned by Rabino, nor have I seen it.

Jám-i-Jahán-numá (The World-shewwing Goblet). جامر جهان نما

A weekly newspaper published in Calcutta, appearing on Thursdays in A.H. 1262 (= A.D. 1846).

Mentioned by Zenker, op. cit., under article No. 1833. Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

Jarída-i-Tijárat (The Mercantile Magazine). جریدهء تجارت

A weekly paper lithographed in the naskh handwriting in Tihrán in A.H. 1297 (= A.D. 1880).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

Jarída-i-Kirmán (The Kirmán Magazine). جریدهء کرمان

A paper lithographed in the naskh handwriting, and appearing once in every ten days, under the editorship of Mírzá Ghulám-Husayn of Kirmán, in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). The first number was dated the 17th of Rabí' i (= March 18) of that year.

Not in Rabino. I possess No. 1, which comprises 8 pp. of $12\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 20 gráns in Kirmán, 24 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 15 francs abroad.

Jarída-i-Millí (The National Magazine). جریدهء ملی

A bi-weekly paper lithographed at Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Alí Akbar Khán. See infra, under Rúsnáma-i-Millí.

See Rabino, No. 70. I possess Nos. 32-37, the first of which is dated the 4th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1324 (= Jan. 9, 1907), comprises 4 pp. of $12'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, and is lithographed in a large, clear naskh. The yearly subscription (100 copies) was 10 gráns in Tabríz, 15 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 3½ roubles in Russia.

al-Jamál (Beauty). الجمال

A weekly paper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá Muḥammad Husayn of Isfahán, in which were published the homilies and harangues of the celebrated orator Sayyid Jamálu'd-Dín of Işfahán, the Martyr¹.

See Rabino, No. 71. I possess Nos. 3, 10, 12, 14 and 17-26. The first is dated the 13th of Şafar, A.H. 1325 (= March 28, 1907), and the last the 15th of Shawwál (= Nov. 21) of the same year. Each number comprises 4 pp. of 11" x 6¾". Yearly subscription, 8 gráns in Tíhrán, 10 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 1½ mejidiyyés in Turkey and Egypt, 2 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, and 6 francs in Europe and America.

Jamáliyya.

جمالية

A weekly newspaper printed in Hamadán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Hájji Muḥammad Ḥusayn and written by the Mu'ayyid-i-Ḥuẓúr in connection with the arrest of the late Áqá Sayyid Jamálu'd-Dín in Hamadán as a preliminary to his martyrdom in A.H. 1326 (June-July, 1908). It was founded to perpetuate his name.

See Rabino, No. 72. I have no copy of this paper.

Al-Janáb.

A weekly newspaper lithographed at Işfahán towards the end of A.H. 1324 (= Dec. 1906) under the editorship of Mír Sayyid 'Alí Janáb.

See Rabino, No. 73, who describes it as "printed," but it is in fact lithographed. I possess Nos. 1-11, of which the first is dated the 20th of Shawwál, A.H. 1324 (= Dec. 9, 1906). Each number comprises 8 pp. of 13½" x 7½". Yearly subscription, 25 gráns in Işfahán. The first number is very badly lithographed in a very bad ta'liq hand, but the subsequent numbers are much better.

Jangal-i-Mawlá (The Lord's Jungle).

جنگل مولا

A weekly comic paper published in Tíhrán in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Ḥusayn. The first number is dated the 20th of Rajab of that year (= July 17, 1911).

Not mentioned by Rabino, and not seen.

¹ For an account of his life and death, see my Persian Revolution, pp. 113, 116, 117, 137, 164, 165, 167, 199, 204 (with portrait) and 208. He was captured and put to death near Hamadán shortly after the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908.

Āqā Sayyid Jamālu'd-Dīn of Isfahān,
Killed at Hamadān in the summer of 1908

(128)

Janúb (The South).

جنوب

A weekly newspaper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of "Tangistání," with Sayyid Ya'qúb-i-Shírízí as the chief writer. This newspaper was the organ of the party called "Progressives" (Taraqqí-khwáhán), who championed the development of the Southern provinces of Persia, and was promoted and managed by a group of deputies representing the South in the Second National Assembly. Its most important contents consisted in criticisms of the Bakhtiyáris.

See Rabino, No. 74. I possess Nos. 3, 5, 10 and 11, of which the first is dated the 5th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1329 (= Jan. 6, 1911). Each number comprises 8 pp. of $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, Tīhrán, 18 qráns, elsewhere in Persia, 20 qráns, abroad, 22 qráns.

Jihád-i-Akbar (The Greater Warfare).

جهاد اكبر

A weekly paper lithographed in Iṣfahán early in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Alí Áqá of Khurásán. The first number appeared on Muḥarram 6 of that year (= Feb. 19, 1907). It was one of the most violent newspapers, and its extreme boldness and fiery utterances were an especial cause of complaint to Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh. Endeavours were made from Tīhrán to suppress it, but notwithstanding this it lasted for more than a year. Its policy was to promote liberal ideas and a thorough Constitutionalism.

See Rabino, No. 75, according to whom it continued publication from the 6th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1325 (= Feb. 19, 1907), until the 4th of Rab' ii, A.H. 1326 (= May 6, 1908). I do not possess a copy.

Jahán-ará (The World-adorning).

جهان آرا

A weekly paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Abbás Khán and Mírzá Sulaymán Khán.

See Rabino, No. 76, according to whom the paper first appeared on the 20th of Rajab, A.H. 1325 (= August 29, 1907). I do not possess a copy.

(131)

Júgháyí Lráber (The Julfá Intelligencer).

Ջուղայի լրագր

An Armenian newspaper published in Julfá of Isfahán under the editorship of Bákir Adwár Tázaryáns, deputy agent of the Armenians.

See Rabino, No. 235. I do not possess a copy.

Chápuk (The Rapid).

چاپك

A weekly newspaper published on Thursdays in Bombay in A.H. 1262 (= A.D. 1846).

Mentioned by Zenker under article No. 1832, but not by Rabino, and not seen.

Chanta-i-Pá-barahna (The Beggar's Wallet).

چنته پا برهنه

An illustrated weekly paper lithographed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Mírzá Maḥmúd Afshár the Druggist. This paper wrote in very simple and popular language about the advantages of Constitutionalism and the conditions of labourers and peasants, and had a good effect amongst the common people and villagers. It defended the policy of the Democrats.

See Rabino, No. 77. I possess a copy of No. 11, which is undated. It comprises 4 pp. of 13" × 7 $\frac{3}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 5 gráms in Tíhrán. The writing is a large and clear but ungraceful ta'liq. It contains a poetical section entitled Adabiyát-i-Bábd Aḥmad.

Chihra-numá (The Face-shower).

چهره نما

An illustrated paper printed in Alexandria, and published once every ten days, in A.H. 1322 (= A.D. 1904-5), under the editorship of Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Muḥammad of Isfahán. After a while it became a weekly paper, and was transferred to Cairo.

See Rabino, No. 78, who only mentions the Cairo edition. I have no copy of any of the Alexandria issues.

Chihra-numá (The Face-shower).

چهره نما

A weekly illustrated newspaper printed in Cairo (Egypt), which still continues publication.

See Rabino. No. 78. I have a fairly complete set from the second to the ninth year (August 1906 until Dec. 1912). Each number comprises 16 pp. of $9\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$. Yearly subscription in Egypt, 3 dollars. Persia, 30 qrāns, Turkey, 4 mejdiyyés, England and India, 10 rupees, Turkistán and the Caucasus, 8 roubles, Europe and China, 20 francs.

Hablu'l-Matín (The Firm Cord).

حبل المتين

A weekly newspaper published in Calcutta, originally lithographed and subsequently printed, in A.H. 1311 (= A.D. 1893-4), which has continued to appear regularly down to the present time, edited and written by Sayyid Jalálu'd-Dín of Káshán, entitled Mu'ayyidu'l-Islám. It is the oldest regular Persian newspaper which still survives, and holds an important position, especially amongst men of learning and in religious circles, in which it has a special weight and influence. Some portion of it is always devoted to religious matters, and it is the champion of Pan-Islamism. One of the most important events connected with its history was the continuation of its publication after the suppression by the Amínu's-Sultán in A.H. 1318 (= A.D. 1900-1) of the Persian newspapers published abroad, and the influence exerted by its efforts in bringing about his dismissal, especially by the publication in all countries of a photographic facsimile of the takfír-náma, or declaration of infidelity, of the Amínu's-Sultán signed by the chief mujtahids (divines) of Najaf, which takfír-náma the Transcaspien Gazette (Majmú'a-i-Má-wará-yi-Bahr-i-Khasar: see infra, sub voce) vainly endeavoured to discredit and prove fictitious. Mention must also be made of its fruitful efforts during the Reactionary Period known as "the Short Tyranny" (Istibdád-i-Saghír) to secure the renewal of the Constitution and to incite the 'ulamá to take action. The office of this newspaper, by reason of its old-established and steadily progressive character, produced many other publications and institutions, amongst which we may mention sundry useful Persian books printed in and published by its Press, and also the foundation of the Persian newspapers Miftáhu'z-Zafar ("Key of Victory") and Ásád ("Freeman") and the Mulk u Millat ("Kingdom and Nation") in English, all in Calcutta; also the daily Hablu'l-Matín in Tíhrán; and numerous printing-presses established under its name in Tíhrán, Najaf, Isfahán, etc.

See Rabino, No. 80. I possess a fairly complete set for the last seven or eight years (July 1905–December 1912) and a few of the older numbers, including No. 9 of the Seventh Year, which is lithographed, and bears the date 28 Sha'bán, A.H. 1317 (=Jan. 1, 1900). I do not know when the paper began to be printed instead of lithographed, but by A.D. 1905 the change had been effected. The lithographed copies are of larger size, comprising 12 pp. of $15\frac{1}{2}'' \times 9\frac{1}{2}''$. The yearly subscription was then 10 rupees for India, 35 qráns for Persia and Afghanistan, 5 mejidiyyés for Turkey and Egypt, 25 francs for Europe and China, and 10 roubles for Russia. The later printed numbers comprise 16 pp. of $12\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$, and the subscription price is slightly higher.

Hablu'l-Matín (The Firm Cord).

حبل المتين

A daily paper printed in Tíhrán in the early part of A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Sayyid Ḥasan of Káshán, brother of the Mu'ayyidu'l-Islám. Its publication was interrupted by the Reactionary Coup d'État and Bombardment of the Majlis (June 23, 1908), but after the restoration of the Constitution and the conquest of Tíhrán by the Nationalists it again issued several numbers. It was, however, suspended and its editor tried and condemned to two years imprisonment for printing an article à propos of the execution of Shaykh Fazlu'lláh of Núr¹ which was considered to contain an attack on religion. This was the most important daily newspaper of the Constitutional Period, and in particular its political articles on Foreign Affairs, especially its criticisms on the Anglo-Russian Entente of A.D. 1907, were of a noteworthy character².

(138)

Hablu'l-Matín (The Firm Cord).

حبل المتين

A daily paper printed at Rasht early in A.H. 1327 (=A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Mírzá Sayyid Ḥasan of Káshán, editor of the above-mentioned Tihrán Hablu'l-Matin, who was exiled after the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, and withdrew to the Caucasus, until, after the successful revolution at Rasht in Muḥarram, A.H. 1327 (= Jan.-Feb., 1909), he hastened thither and resumed the publication of his paper, which was continued there for four months and a half.

¹ See my Persian Revolution, pp. 329–30 and 444–5. He was hanged on July 31, 1909.

² Some of the most important of these articles, published in September, 1907, are translated on pp. 175–92 of my Persian Revolution.

See Rabino, No. 79, who conveniently brackets this and the above-mentioned paper, which are in fact identical in all save place of publication, while the Calcutta Hablu'l-Matin differs by being a weekly, not a daily paper, and by being under different editorship. I possess an almost complete set of the Tihrán and Rasht Hablu'l-Matin. No. 1 is dated the 15th of Rabī' i, A.H. 1325 (= April 29, 1907), and the First Year ends with No. 274 (April 16, 1908). Of the Second Year I possess Nos. 1-51, the last dated June 18, 1908, only five days before the Coup d'État and Bombardment of the Majlis. The next number in my possession, dated March 15, 1909, belongs to the Rasht issue, and is entitled No. 56 of the Second Year, so that presumably four numbers appeared during the nine preceding months. It contains an article headed "the Time of Parting is ended," so that it may be the first number published at Rasht. No. 71 (April 5, 1909) is the last of the Second Year. Nos. 1-58 of the Third Year were published at Rasht, the latter bearing the date July 21, 1909. The next number (No. 1 of the Third Year of the revived Tihrán issue) is dated July 25, 1909, and No. 5 of the same issue, dated July 29, 1909, is the last which I possess. The article which led to the suppression of the paper and the imprisonment of the editor probably appeared three or four days later. Each number comprises 4 pp. of 11½" × 7". Yearly subscription, 40 grāns in Tihrán, 45 elsewhere in Persia, 12 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, and 30 francs in other countries.

al-Ḥadīd (Iron or The Keen One).

الحديد

A weekly paper lithographed in Tabrīz in A.H. 1315 (= A.D. 1897-8), founded and edited by Mīrzā Sayyid Ḥusayn Khān, editor of the newspapers Shuḥbat ("Conversation"), ʿAdālat ("Justice") and Khabar ("News"). After three numbers of this paper had been published, the Russian Consulate at Tabrīz took the above-mentioned editor into its service in the Passport department, and this led to the suspension of the paper. After a while, however, in A.H. 1323 (= A.D. 1905-6) the paper was revived under the editorship of Āqā Sayyid Muḥammad of Shabistar, editor of the papers Mujāhid ("Volunteer") and Īrān-i-Naw ("New Persia"), and continued to be published until the first general rising in Tabrīz and the Proclamation of the Constitution, after which it changed its name to ʿAdālat ("Justice"). Some numbers of this paper were published under the title Ḥadīd without the article.

See Rabino, No. 81, who describes it as "printed," not lithographed, and only mentions its second appearance in A.H. 1323-4. I possess a good many numbers of al-Ḥadīd, extending from No. 2 of the Second Year, dated the 8th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1324 (= June 30, 1906), to No. 49 of the same year, dated the 2nd of Jumáda i, A.H. 1325 (1324 is erroneously printed on the paper)=June 13, 1907. The numbering of the ʿAddlat seems to have been continuous with al-Ḥadīd, for No. 15 of the former paper, Shaʿbān 11. A.H. 1325 (printed "1324")=Sept. 19, 1907, begins with an announcement of the change of title. Each number comprises 8 pp. of 12" x 6½". Yearly subscription, 17 gráns in Tabríz, 20 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia, and 10 francs in Europe.

حریت

Mentioned by Rabino (No. 82), on whose authority it is here inserted, without any particulars. It is not otherwise known to me.

(141)

Ḥarf-i-Ḥaqq (Straight Talk).

حرف حق

A weekly paper printed in Tabríz in the latter part of A.H. 1325 (= Winter of 1907-8) by the former administration of the newspaper ʿAddlat, edited and written by Sayyid Niʿmatu'lláh of Iṣfahán. In politics it was Conservative and moderate Constitutionalist.

See Rabino, No. 83, according to whom No. 2 was dated the 5th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1325 (= Jan. 9, 1908). I possess a copy of this number, which comprises 4 pp. of 11½" x 6½". Yearly subscription, 10 gráns in Tabríz, 15 elsewhere in Persia, 20 abroad. The printing is particularly good.

Ḥasharátu'l-Arz (Reptiles of the Earth).

حشرات الأرض

A comic weekly paper printed in Tabríz with coloured lithographed caricatures in the early part of A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908). It was founded and published by Hájji Mírzá Áqá Billúrí, and edited by Mírzá Áqá, known as Nála-i-Millat ("The Nation's Lament"), and was one of the best produced comic papers. In the Second Constitutional Period (end of July, 1909) it again appeared, but not more than one number had been published when it was suppressed by the Government. In politics this paper was Liberal and thorough-going Constitutionalist.

See Rabino, No. 84, according to whom the first number was published on the 14th of Šafar, A.H. 1326 (= March 18, 1908). I possess several numbers of the earlier issue. Each contains 4 pp. of 13" x 7", of which pp. 1 and 4 chiefly consist of caricatures. Yearly subscription, 12 qrāns in Tabriz, 16 qrāns elsewhere in Persia, and 10 francs abroad.

Hifẓu's-Šihhat (The Preservation of Health).

حفظ الصحة

A paper published in Tīhrān, mentioned by Rabino (No. 85), but not otherwise known.

Dr Aḥmad Khān says that it was founded about A.H. 1319 (A.D. 1901-2) in connection with the Council of Health established four or five years earlier.

(144)

Haqá'iq (Verities).

حقایق

A weekly illustrated magazine printed at Bákú in the early part of the year A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907), edited and written by Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad Khān Uwaysí, Persian Vice-Consul at Bákú. Seven numbers were published.

See Rabino, No. 86, according to whom the first number was published on the 7th of Šafar, A.H. 1325 (= March 22, 1907). I have no copy in my possession.

Huqúq (Rights).

حقوق

A weekly paper printed in Tīhrān in the early part of the year A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1908) under the editorship of Sulaymán Mírzá, Yaḥyá Mírzá, and Mírzá Muḥammad of Khurásán, editor of the paper Naját ("Deliverance"), all three of whom were members of the Second National Assembly. It was first founded by the two brothers Sulaymán Mírzá and Yaḥyá Mírzá, who subsequently included Mírzá Muḥammad of Khurásán in their partnership. In politics the paper was Liberal and thorough-going Constitutionalist, but not Democrat, as stated by Rabino.

See Rabino, No. 87, according to whom No. 2 was dated the 22nd of Rabi' i, A.H. 1326 (= April 24, 1908). I possess Nos. 4 and 5 of this paper. Each number comprises 8 pp. of 11½" x 6½". Yearly subscription, 12 qrāns in Tīhrān, 17 qrāns elsewhere in Persia, and 15 francs abroad.

حکایت جان کداز وقایع از یزد الی شیراز
Hikáyat-i-Ján-gudáz-i-Waqáyi' az Yazd ila Shíráz
(The Soul-melting Tale of Events from Yazd to Shíráz).

A migratory newspaper lithographed in Shíráz and on the roads of Fárs in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). The following superscription stood at the top of the first page: "News-editor, Ḥájji Fathu'lláh, poetically surnamed Maftún, son of the late Áqá 'Abdu'r-Raḥím of Yazd, known as Najafí, resident in the province of 'Arabistán in Persia." This paper is deserving of attention on account of its originality.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

Hikmat (Wisdom).

حکمت

A weekly newspaper printed in Cairo in A.H. 1310 (= A.D. 1892-3) under the editorship of Mírzá Mahdi of Tabríz, entitled Za'imû'd-Dawla and Ra'îsu'l-Hukamâ, which still appears in a somewhat irregular fashion, usually about three numbers a month being published. This paper also is one of the older papers which achieved a considerable celebrity in the earlier days, and especially promoted the use of pure Persian undiluted with Arabic. One of the most notable productions of this paper was the poem known as "The Lament of the Fatherland" (Faryâd-i-Waṭan) in the metre known as Tawîl ("the Long").

See Rabino, No. 90. I possess a number of copies ranging from No. 246 (of the Seventh Year), dated Šafar 1, A.H. 1316 (= June 21, 1898), to No. 881 (of the Fifteenth Year) dated Šafar 1, A.H. 1325 (= March 15, 1907). The former is printed in a larger size than the succeeding numbers, and comprises 8 pp. of 14" x 9". The later numbers (at any rate from the Eighth Year onwards) comprise 16 pp. of 9½" x 8". Yearly subscription, 40 grāns: Russia and the Caucasus, 10 roubles; India, 15 rupees; Egypt and Europe, £1 E.

Ḥayât (Life).

حیات

A paper lithographed in Shīrāz in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910). It was published there by a fugitive Liberal patriot from India called "Šūfī," who was presently again compelled to seek safety in flight by the harshness of the British Consul, and the newspaper was thereupon suspended, after only eight numbers of it had appeared. The editor's full name was Šūfī Ānbabārshā, a native of Murādābād in the Deccan.

See Rabino, No. 91. I possess the number described by him (No. 2, dated the 11th of Jumāda 1, A.H. 1328 = May 21, 1910), but am not certain as to the identification with the paper described in the text, for though on the one hand there are evidences of Indian authorship (as in the form Angrîz for English, English), the editor's name appears as Muḥammad Husayn Khulūm-i-Shar'at ("Servant of the Holy Law"), and the place of publication as the Maydān-i-Tūpkhāna, or "Gun Square," which suggests Tihṛān rather than Shīrāz. (I am informed by Dr Ahmad Khān, however, that maydāns of the same name exist at Shīrāz and Mashhad, if not at Isfahān also.) In any case this paper comprises 4 pp. of 12" x 6½" and is lithographed in a good ta'liq hand. Yearly subscription, 10 ṭumāns.

Khiláfat (Caliphate).

خلافت

A fortnightly paper printed in London in A.H. 1324 (=A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Hájji Shaykh Ḥasan of Tabriz. This newspaper was founded by the above-mentioned Shaykh Ḥasan in partnership and co-operation with a fugitive from Egypt [Najíb Hindiya, a Syrian, brother of the well-known Cairo printer Amín Hindiya], and successive numbers appeared, some in Persian, some in Arabic, and some in Turkish. The Persian numbers, most of which were devoted to attacks on "Prince" Arfa'u'd-Dawla, then Persian Ambassador at Constantinople, were written by the above-mentioned Shaykh Ḥasan.

See Rabino, No. 97, who gives the date of first appearance as the 9th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1324 (=July 1, 1906). I possess a good many copies of the Turkish, Arabic and Persian issues, for I was acquainted with both editors, and Shaykh Ḥasan was for some time (about 1907-9) Persian teacher at Cambridge. The oldest Turkish issue which I possess is No. 43 of the Second Year, dated April 5, 1901, and the oldest Arabic issue No. 163 of the Seventh Year, dated Nov. 1, 1906, so that the paper must have been started early in 1900. Of the Persian issue I possess Nos. 1-13, the first dated July 1, 1906, and the last Feb. 15, 1907. Each number comprises 4 pp. of $14'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, England, 8s.; Persia, 20 gráns; Turkey and Egypt, 50 piastres; Russia, 4 roubles; Europe and China, 10 francs.

A weekly paper printed and lithographed in Mashhad in A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá Muḥammad

Şádiq Khán of Tabríz. Subsequently four numbers of this paper were published weekly. In politics it was Moderate, not Democrat, as stated by Rabino.

See Rabino, No. 98, who says that the paper was started in Muḥarram, A.H. 1325 (=Feb.-March, 1907), and was still appearing when he wrote in A.H. 1329 (=A.D. 1911). I possess a good many copies, of which the first is No. 1 (dated Muḥarram 21, 1325=March 6, 1907). This as well as No. 3 is lithographed in a large, clear naskh, but No. 10 (dated the 29th of Rabí' 1, A.H. 1325=May 12, 1907) is printed. No. 104 (dated the 25th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1325=Jan. 29, 1908) is the last number of the First Year which I possess. No. 139 (Second Year) is dated the 13th of Rabí' 1, A.H. 1326 (=April 15, 1908). No. 2 of the Third Year (the next in my possession) is again lithographed in a poor ta'liq hand, and is dated the 24th of Rajab, A.H. 1327 (=August 11, 1909). No. 33 of the same year is still lithographed, but once more in naskh. No. 36 of the Fourth Year, dated the 21st of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1328 (=Dec. 24, 1910), is again printed, while No. 68 of the same year, dated the 27th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1329 (=June 25, 1911), is considerably enlarged in size, each page containing three instead of two columns. With this exception the pages (originally eight, later four) measure 12" x 7". Yearly subscription, 32 gráns in Mashhad, 36 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 8 roubles in Turkistán and the Caucasus, and 20 francs abroad.

خیال

Of this paper, not mentioned by Rabino or Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán "Tarbiyat," I possess one copy (No. 1), undated, which was lithographed at Rasht. On page 1 is a coloured portrait of Sulṭán Aḥmad Sháh (who succeeded his deposed father, Muḥammad 'Alí, on July 16, 1909), and on page 4 is a political cartoon. Yearly subscription, 12 gráns in Rasht, 17 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 20 gráns abroad. Size of page, 12" x 7½". Editor, Afṣaḥu'l-Mutakallimín.

Khayru'l-Kalám (The Best of Discourses).

خير الكلام

A paper published at Rasht, originally lithographed, afterwards printed, in A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Afṣaḥu'l-Mutakallimín. Of this paper 80 numbers a year were published, and in witty writing it was one of the most amusing of all the Persian newspapers. Its editor in A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907) incurred the displeasure of Amír Khán Sardár, entitled Amír-i-A'zam, then Governor of Gilán, who, from motives of revenge, caused him to be severely bastinadoed. On regaining his freedom he fled to Tīhrán, and there renewed the publication of his paper, of which, however, only six numbers were published in the course of two months, when it was again transferred to Rasht. During its later days (A.H. 1328-9 = A.D. 1910-11) the paper was Democrat in politics.

See Rabino, No. 99, who gives the 24th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (= August 4, 1907), as the date of the first issue at Rasht, where the paper was still continued in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) when he wrote. He adds that Nos. 13-19 of the First Year were published at Tīhrán, and that it was issued at Tīhrán from the 25th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1325, until the 23rd of Šafar, A.H. 1326 (= Jan. 29, 1908, until March 27, 1908).

خير الكلام

A paper printed in Tīhrán towards the end of A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Afšarū'l-Mutakallimīn. Only six numbers appeared in the course of six months at Tīhrán, when it was again transferred to Rasht. Latterly the politics of the paper were Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 99. I possess a fairly complete set extending from No. 1 of the First Year (Aug. 4, 1907) to No. 5 of the Fourth Year (26th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1329 = May 25, 1911). The last two numbers only are lithographed, the rest printed. Each number comprises 4 pp. of 12" x 7". Yearly subscription, Rasht, 25 gráns; elsewhere in Persia, 30 gráns; Russia, 6 roubles.

Khayr-andīsh (Well-meaning).

خير اندیش

A paper lithographed in Tabríz which first appeared on the 2nd of Rabí' i, A.H. 1327 (= March 24, 1909), in the Turkish language. This statement is quoted from Rabino, but the writer has great doubts as to the existence of such a paper at that date, which corresponded with the later days of the siege of Tabríz, a time of great distress and severe want; nor have I been able to trace it by enquiries of the leading personages of that period.

See Rabino, No. 100. I possess No. 1 of this paper, from which it appears that the year of publication was A.H. 1326, not 1327, so that the date of its first publication was April 4, 1908, and the difficulty raised above is solved. My copy consists of a single sheet (2 pp.) only of 12" x 6½". Price, 1 sháhí in Tabríz, 1½ *sháhí*s elsewhere.

Dánish (Knowledge).

دانش

A fortnightly newspaper lithographed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1299 (= A.D. 1881-2). Concerning it the I'timádu's-Saltana writes: "The late Mukhbíru'd-Dawla founded this paper in the Dáru'l-Funún when he was Director of that College and Minister of the Press out of rivalry with the late I'timádu's-Saltana." Zaká'u'l-Mulk writes: "The newspaper Dánish was printed in the Dáru'l-Funún, and was written by the late Mírzá Kázim, Professor of Chemistry. The first number of it was published on Rajab 23, 1299 (= June 10, 1882), and the last on Šafar 16, A.H. 1300 (= Dec. 27, 1882). Two numbers were published monthly, and in all fourteen numbers appeared."

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

تاره گلینه احترام

گلینه احترام (بر آیدان سوکرا)

Before and after the Honeymoon

(From Mulla Nasiruddin, Year III, No. 5, Feb. 16, 1908) *

Khán the Oculist (Kahhál). This is the only Persian newspaper written exclusively for women and discussing topics of special interest to women.

See Rabino, No. 102, according to whom No. 4 was issued on the 22nd of Shawwál, A.H. 1328 (= Oct. 27, 1910). I do not possess a copy.

Dabistán (The School).

دبستان

A fortnightly paper lithographed in Tabriz in the earlier part of A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Mírzá Rizá, Principal of the "Parwarish" College.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(170)

Dabíriyya.

دبیریہ

A publication in the form of a newspaper produced at Rasht under the editorship of Dabíru'l-Mamálík, and containing poems and literary articles. Though not in the strict sense of the word a newspaper, but rather resembling a tract or irregular leaflets, yet, as it bore some resemblance to a newspaper, it is mentioned here amongst them.

See Rabino, No. 103. I possess two numbers, one dated only with the year (A.H. 1326), the other dated the 15th of Rabí' ii of that year (= May 17, 1908). Each consists of a single sheet of 12" x 7½", printed on one side only, and each contains one single poem only.

Dastúr.

دستور

A newspaper printed at Rasht twice a week in Rajab, A.H. 1328 (= July, 1910), of which three numbers only were published.

See Rabino, No. 104, from whom the above particulars are derived. He describes it as a religious paper. I possess No. 2, dated the 18th of Rajab, A.H. 1328 (= July 28, 1910). It comprises 4 pp. of 14½" x 10". Yearly subscription, 25 gráns in Rasht, 30 elsewhere in Persia. It describes itself as "a historical, political and ethical paper, supporting the independence of Persia."

Da'watu'l-Islám (The Preaching of Islám).

دعوة الاسلام

A fortnightly religious paper lithographed in Bombay in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906), under the editorship of Sayyid Muḥammad 'Alí of Iṣfahán, called Dá'i'l-Islám ("The Missionary of Islám").

See Rabino, No. 105, who gives the date of the first and last issue as Ramazán 1, A.H. 1324 (=Oct. 19, 1906), and the 1st of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (=July 12, 1907). I possess Nos. 1-19 (with a few lacunae), of which Nos. 15 and following are printed, not lithographed. Each number contains 8 pp. of $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 3 rupees in India, 15 gráns in Persia, 1½ mejidiyyés in Turkey, 3 roubles in the Caucasus and Turkistán, and 7 francs in Europe, China and Egypt.

(173)

Da'watu'l-Ḥaqq (The Preaching of the Truth).

دعوة الحق

A monthly religious magazine printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1321 (=A.D. 1903-4) under the editorship of Shaykh Muḥammad 'Alí of Dizfúl, known as Bahjat, a Member of the Second National Assembly, and proprietor of the Ma'árif Library and newspaper.

See Rabino, No. 106, according to whom this paper was first issued on the 1st of Sha'bán, A.H. 1321 (=Oct. 23, 1903). Only 10 numbers appeared in the First Year. Not seen.

(174)

Difá'iyya (Defence).

دفاعیه

A paper lithographed in A.H. 1329 (=A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Afṣah-Záda, of which only one number appeared.

See Rabino, No. 107, from whom this information is derived.

(175)

Díwán-i-'Adálat (The Court of Justice).

دیوان عدالت

A weekly paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1328 (=A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Mudabbiru'l-Mamálík of Hirand, editor of the Tamaddun ("Civilization": see supra, Nos. 106-108).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(176)

Ráh-i-Khayál (Fancy's Way).

راه خیال

A weekly paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1329 (=A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Afṣahu'l-Mutakallimín, the editor of the Khayru'l-Kalám, who founded it when the last-named paper was suspended. In politics it was Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 108, who gives the first of Sha'bán, A.H. 1329 (= July 28, 1911), as the date of inception. I have no copy.

Ra'd (Thunder).

رعد

A weekly newspaper printed in Qazwín in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Sayyid 'Alí, written by Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Alí of Tíhrán, known as Múbad, editor of the paper Madí (q.v.). Democrat in politics.

See Rabino, No. 109, who gives Rabí' ii, A.H. 1329 (= April, 1911), as the date of inception. I possess Nos. 1, 2 and 4 (the first dated April 23, 1911). Each comprises 4 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 6 qráns in Qazwín and 8 qráns elsewhere in Persia.

Rúhu'l-Amín (The Trusty Spirit).

A weekly newspaper printed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9).

See Rahino, No. 110. I do not possess a copy of this paper.

(179)

Rúhu'l-Qudus (The Holy Spirit).

روح القدس

A paper printed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of the Sultánu'l-'Ulamá of Khurásán. This paper achieved a special notoriety on account of its extraordinary boldness, and published in its thirteenth number a personal attack on Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh and his anti-constitutional actions, threatening him with the fate of Louis XVI, King of France, and recalling the Great French Revolution. In consequence of this article it was suppressed, but after a while resumed publication. The editor of this newspaper was a man of extraordinary convictions and zeal, and took a personal share in the National efforts to defend the Constitution. Thus he participated vi et armis in the struggle between the Nationalists and the troops of Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh on the occasion of the Reactionary Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, and fought valorously in defence of the Majlis. Finally he was taken prisoner, was confined in chains in the Bāgh-i-Shāh, and ultimately suffered a martyr's death, and was thrown into a well. The politics of the paper were Revolutionary.

See Rabino, No. 111, according to whom the paper first appeared on the 25th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (= August 5, 1907), while No. 26 appeared on the 18th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1326 (= May 20, 1908). I possess the celebrated No. 13 (published on Nov. 5, 1907) alluded to above, and the article in question will be found translated on pp. 156-161 of my Persian Revolution. The paper comprises 4 pp. of 11" x 6½". Yearly subscription, 12 qráns in Tíhrán, 17 qráns elsewhere in Persia, 5 roubles in Russia, and 10 francs in other foreign countries.

Rúznáma-i-Írán-i-Sultání

(The Royal Gazette of Persia).

روزنامه ایران سلطانی

An official fortnightly newspaper printed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1321 (= A.D. 1903-4) under the management of Mullá Muḥammad Nadímú's-Sultán (formerly Nadím-básht, or Chief Attendant at the Court), at that time Minister of Publications, and edited and written by Afzalu'l-Mulk, "Deputy-Minister of Publications and Accountant of the Supreme Court." This paper was the original Írán (q.v.), thus renamed when it was placed in charge of the Nadímú's-Sultán. Its first number was published early in the month of Muḥarram in that year (April, 1903). At the top of the title-page it bore the following inscription: "This Royal paper, which appears by special command and enjoys the particular regards of His Most Sacred and Imperial Majesty, is entirely free from all control or limitation, and whatever it writes is truly written" (!). Of its more pleasing contents one portion was devoted to literary matters. Amongst these was the "Niṣáb of Abu'z-Zafar Šádiq-i-Faráhání," an imitation of the well-known rhymed vocabulary of Abú Naṣr-i-Faráhí known as the Niṣáb-i-Šibyán, composed by Mírzá Šádiq Khán Adibu'l-Mamálík, poetically named Amirí, editor of the newspaper Adab. This rhymed glossary of old Persian words began to appear in No. 4 of the paper, and was continued in the succeeding numbers, one chakáma, or canto, being published in each. I possess the whole in manuscript, and here subjoin as a specimen some verses from the beginning of the first chakáma, written in the metre called Khafif ("The Light").

آن بُتِ شوخ چشمِ مه سیمَا،	نظمِ فرهنگِ فُرسِ جُست از ما،
فاعلاتن مفعلاتن فعلاتن،	شو ببحرِ خفیفِ چامه سرا،
پاك یزدان و ایزدست خدا،	هده حق زنده حیّ عیان پیدا،

سحر فرهست و معجزه فرهود،	نیز فرجاد فاضل دانا،
کعبه آباد خوان نوی فرقان،	کنگ دژهوخت مسجد الاقصی،

This changáma comprises more than forty couplets, and includes in its verses many unfamiliar and obsolete words to which it assigns definite scientific meanings.

The year A.H. 1321 (= A.D. 1903-4) in which the Rúsnáma-i-Írán-i-Sultání first appeared under this title is described at the top of the page as the "fifty-sixth year of publication," and so is continued until it came to an end in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7), which is described as the "fifty-ninth year of publication." Now the first foundation of a Government newspaper in Persia was in A.H. 1267 (= A.D. 1850-1), before which date we are unaware of the existence of any newspaper; and this is confirmed by the following passage in the third volume of the Muntaẓam-i-Náṣirí treating of the events of the year A.H. 1267: "It was also in this year that there was founded in this Empire of eternal duration, that is to say in the glorious metropolis thereof, a Government newspaper containing domestic and foreign news, commercial advertisements, etc." Now according to this computation, the year A.H. 1321 would be the fifty-fifth, not the fifty-sixth, of this foundation, and in order to solve this difficulty I wrote to H.E. the Ítimádu's-Saltána, who returned the following answer, which I give verbatim:

"The solution of this difficulty is as follows. During the period of the late lamented ʿImādu's-Saḡana and the earlier period of my management of the paper, no allusion was ever made in the title of the newspaper to the year of its foundation. But when the management of the paper passed into the hands of the Nadīmu's-Sultān, he changed the title of the old Irān to Rūznāma-i-ʿIrān-i-Sultānī, and added the words 'fifty-sixth year' at the top of the page. Afterwards when Mujīru'd-Dawla, the writer of the paper, withdrew for a while from it, and it was written by Afṣalu'l-Mulk, at this juncture an error of two years crept into the computation. When I again accepted this service, I repeatedly called the attention of Mujīru'd-Dawla to this error, but he always replied, 'There is no need to reverse this act or revise this date, for it is now a thing of the past.' It is, however, certain that there was an error here."

As a specimen of the manner in which the contents of the newspapers of that period were edited, I here append a paragraph of a few lines occurring in N^o. 4 of this paper, dated Tuesday, Ṣafar 21, A.H. 1321 (= May 19, 1903), under the heading of "Court News," which runs as follows.

"Praise be to God, the auspicious and fortunate person of His Most Sacred Majesty, the Shadow of God on this earth (may our lives be his sacrifice!), is in the extreme of health and happiness, and daily devotes attention to matters of importance conducive to the well-being of the community. On the ninth day of this month His Most Sacred Majesty, the Shadow of God, attended by the nobles of the Court and intimates of the Royal Threshold, set out for a stay of some days at the village of Kan, situated at a distance of two parasangs from Ṭih-rān, in order to divert and refresh the mind, and to practise horsemanship and marksmanship. There they alighted in Royal state, with all due pomp and circumstance, and signal splendour and glory, and abode in that village several days and nights. Every day until after noon His Majesty busied himself with the perusal of the reports received from the different Ministries and Governors, and with reading telegrams from the home provinces and remoter districts of Persia, while in the afternoon he employed his auspicious time in marksmanship and the chase.

On the morning of Wednesday the fifteenth he returned from Kan to the capital of Tīhrán, which is the Abode of the supreme Sovereignty, in order to deal with various domestic and foreign affairs."

It is worth noting that this specimen of journalistic style belongs to the latter period of Muẓaffarū'd-Dīn Sháh's reign, only a short time before the Constitution was proclaimed!

Not in Rabino. I possess No. 4 of this paper, dated Šafar 21, A.H. 1321, and May 19, 1903. It comprises 8 pp. of 9"×6½", and is very well printed in double columns.

Rúznáma-i-Tabríz (The Tabríz Gazette).

روزنامه تبریز

A newspaper published in Tabríz in A.H. 1275 (= A.D. 1858-9) of which mention is made in the Rúznáma-i-Waqáyi-i-Ittifáqiyya (see footnote on the article dealing with that paper). As the correct title of this newspaper is unknown to us, we have placed it under the above title, but it is very probable that it is that same Tabríz which was afterwards revived when Muẓaffarū'd-Dīn was Crown Prince.

(182)

Rúznáma-i-Hakímu'l-Mamálík

روزنامه حكيم الممالك

(The Hakímu'l-Mamálík's Journal)¹.

A paper printed in Tīhrán under the editorship of Mírzá 'Alí Naqí the physician, son of Áqá Isma'íl, a Jew converted to Islám, entitled Hakímu'l-Mamálík, chief page-in-waiting (Pish-khidmat-báshí) of Náṣiru'd-Dín Sháh. This man, having completed his studies in Europe, returned to Persia in A.H. 1278 (= A.D. 1861-2), received the title of Hakímu'l-Mamálík during the Sháh's journey to Khurásán in A.H. 1284 (= A.D. 1867-8), and was made Governor of Burújird in A.H. 1293 (= A.D. 1876). Náṣiru'd-Dín Sháh was himself the writer of this newspaper, though he attributed it by way of a joke to the Hakímu'l-Mamálík, under whose signature it was published. In all, three numbers were published, all written by Náṣiru'd-Dín Sháh. Of these, one describes the emotions of a young man who comes forth from his house on a Spring morning to enjoy the Spring season ; another the emotions of an old man who likewise tastes the Spring ; and the third the Ascension to Heaven (mī'rāj) of the Hakīmu'l-Mamālik, which led to his being denounced as an infidel and to the paper being discontinued. These three sheets are very amusing. (The last particulars are taken from a letter from H.E. the I'timādu's-Saltāna.)

¹ The proper name of this paper is not certainly known, and it has been inserted under this title only for the sake of introducing it to the reader.

As is well known, Nāṣiru'd-Dīn Shāh used to "chaff" the Hakīmu'l-Mamālik a great deal, especially on the journey to Khurāsān, when the Shāh himself composed, in the form of a panegyric, some verses satirizing him. As these verses are not lacking in wit, some of them are here given.

Rūznāma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Īrān روزنامه دولت علیه ایران (Journal of the Sublime State of Persia).

A paper lithographed in Tīhrān early in A.H. 1277 (July-Aug. 1860), and containing accounts of happenings in the various provinces of Persia, and portraits of statesmen and persons of note, with narratives of their circumstances. Probability points to its having succeeded the Waqáyi'-i-Ittifáqiyya ("Fortuitous Events"), which assumed this new name in about the 470th issue.

See Rabino, No. 112, according to whom No. 471 (i.e. the first number of the Waqáyi' which appeared under the new name) was dated the 28th of Muḥarram, A.H. 1277 (= Aug. 11, 1860), while No. 565 was dated the 17th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1281 (= Nov. 17, 1864).

Rúznáma-i-Dawlati (State Journal).

روزنامه دولتی

A paper lithographed in Ṭihrán, containing domestic, foreign and Court news. I have seen No. 622 of this paper, which is dated Thursday the 7th of Jumáda ii, corresponding to the auspicious Year of the Leopard, A.H. 1285 (= Sept. 25, A.D. 1868). Above the title on the first page stand the Lion and the Sun, over which is written: "Printed in the Victorious Abode of the Caliphate" (Dáru'l-Khiláfa, i.e. Ṭihrán) "in the Blessed College of the Dáru'l-Funún, in the workshops of the State Printing-Press. Price of each copy, 14 sháhís; yearly subscription, in addition to the Rúznáma-i-Ilmí ('Scientific Gazette') and the Rúznáma-i-Millatí ('National Gazette'), 36 qráns." This paper, according to the most probable conjecture, succeeded the previously-mentioned Rúznáma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Írán (No. 183 supra). A brief account of both of these papers has been given in the Introduction (pp. 10 et seqq.).

I possess No. 622, mentioned above. It comprises 5 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$, bears a large Lion and Sun on the top of p. 1, and is lithographed in good ta'liq.

Not mentioned by Rabino.

(185)

Rúznáma-i-Rasmí-i-Dawlat-i-Írán

روزنامه رسمی دولت ایران

(Official Gazette of the Persian Government).

A daily paper printed in Ṭihrán in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of the Mu'ayyidu'l-Mamálík, editor of the Pulís-i-Írán (q.v.). It used to publish full reports of the debates of the Second National Assembly, and its publication is still continued.

See Rabino. No. 113, who says that three numbers a week were published, and that the date of inception was the 18th of Rabí ii, A.H. 1329 (= April 18, 1911). I possess No. 1, which, in fact, is so dated. It comprises 50 pp. of $10'' \times 7\frac{1}{2}''$ and is printed in three columns. Yearly subscription, 45 qrâns in Tihrán, 55 elsewhere in Persia, 70 abroad.

(186)

Rúznâma-i-Shaykh Fazlu'lláh

روزنامهٔ شیخ فضل الله

(Shaykh Fazlullâh's Journal).

A paper lithographed at Sháh 'Abdu'l-'Azím in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) on behalf of the Reactionaries (Shaykh Fazlu'llâh-i-Núrí and his confederates) who had taken sanctuary in the above-mentioned shrine, and who remained there, at the instigation and by the encouragement of Muḥammad 'Alí Mírzá, the deposed Sháh, for nearly five months, endeavouring to subvert the Constitution. During this period they used to publish a paper for the propagation of their ideas amongst the common people, with the professed object of demanding the Shar'at (or Religious Law of Islâm, as opposed to any Qânûn, or Civil Law), and denouncing as a blasphemous innovation the Majlis and the Constitution. Of this paper some 19 numbers appear to have been published, mostly under the name and title of "Objects of those now in sanctuary in the Holy Shrine," but sometimes under that of "Explanation of the pious objects of the Proof of Islâm and the Muslims, and the other fugitives in sanctuary at the Holy Shrine," or under the heading of the verse from the Qur'ân (viii, 48), "And obey God and His Apostle, and be not refractory, lest ye be discouraged, and your success depart from you; but persevere with patience, for God is with those who persevere." Nearly all of the contents of these issues were quoted and refuted in the Hablu'l-Matin.

For lack of certainty as to the correct title, this paper is placed under the descriptive title given above.

Rúznâma-i-'Ilmî (The Scientific Gazette).

روزنامهٔ علمی

A newspaper published in Tihrán in A.H. 1293 (= A.D. 1876-7), concerning which Zaka'u'l-Mulk writes: "This paper was founded by Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán Şanʿu'd-Dawla. In all, sixty-four numbers of it were published, the first dated the 22nd of Dhu'l-Ḥijja, A.H. 1293 (= Jan. 8, 1877), and the last the 23rd of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1297 (= June 2, 1880).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(188)

روزنامه علمیه دولت علیّه ایران

Rúznáma-i-ʿIlmiyya-i-Dawlat-i-ʿAliyya-i-Írán

(Scientific Gazette of the Sublime State of Persia).

A monthly newspaper lithographed in A.H. 1280 (= A.D. 1863-4) under the management of 'Alí-qulí Mírzá I'tizádu's-Saltāna, Minister of Sciences, of which the first number was published on Sha'bán 1 of the above year (= Jan. 11, 1864), and the last number on Shawwál 1, A.H. 1287 (= Dec. 25, 1870). In all, 53 numbers were published. This paper was sometimes spoken of by the abbreviated title of Rúznáma-i-ʿIlmí, and was published under the same management as the Rúznáma-i-Millatí and Rúznáma-i-Dawlatí, the combined subscription for all three being 36 qráns. It was sometimes issued in three languages, Persian, Arabic and French, and sometimes only in the two last, as in the case of No. 52, which I possess, and which is dated "Tuesday the eleventh of Mihr-máh in the auspicious year 792 of the Jalálí era," or in the concurrent Arabic portion, Rajab 1, A.H. 1287 (= Sept. 27, 1870). The contents of this number consist for the most part of investigations into the nature of a certain form of literary composition used by modern writers and entitled "prose-verse" (Shi'r-i-manthúr), or, as the paper puts, "a kind of poetry which in truth one may consider as intermediate between verse and prose." On this subject it puts forward an explanation referring to the invention of this method by Abu'l-'Alá al-Ma'arrí (d. A.H. 449 = A.D. 1057-8); afterwards by Muẓaffar b. Ibráhím, the blind Egyptian (d. A.H. 623 = A.D. 1226); and still later by Khwája Mas'úd, known as 'Işmat, of Bukhárá; and gives some specimens of discourses and anecdotes in this kind of poetry. The Arabic is an exact translation of the Persian portion of the paper, which is indeed a useful and admirable production. In this same number it refers to previous remarks on the same subject in the last issue of the Rúznáma-i-Millatí, where some mention is made of Sayyid 'Alí Mihri of Jabal-'Ámil and of some of his verses of this sort; which indicates that both papers dealt with common topics.

The number of this paper alluded to above comprises one sheet of the size customary in Persia, folded into four pages, of which one is blank. On the top of the first page, under the title Rúznáma-i-Ilmiyya-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Írán, stand the words "No. 52: yearly subscription, in conjunction with the Rúznáma-i-Dawlatí and the Rúznáma-i-Millatí, 36 gráns. Printed in the Victorious Capital, in the auspicious Dáru'l-Funún College, in the Government Printing-press." There is also an illustration, which appears to represent the Shamsu'l-Imárah and the Maydán-i-Tüp-i-Marwárid.

Rabino (No. 114) mentions No. 2 of this paper, dated the 26th of Bahman-máh in the year 785 of the Jalálí era; and No. 4, dated the 9th of Farwardín-máh in the year 786 of the same era. Although nominally the paper was published monthly, yet it is evident that it appeared at irregular intervals. The total number of issues and the dates of the first and last numbers are given on the authority of H.E. Zaká'u'l-Mulk. I possess the above-mentioned No. 52, which comprises 4 pp. (one blank) of 12" x 7½". The Persian portion is lithographed in ta'liq and the Arabic in naskh.

Rúznáma-i-Millatí (The National Journal).

روزنامهٔ ملت

A paper lithographed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1283 (= A.D. 1866-7). At the top of the page it bore the figure of a mosque, a conventional sign of its National character. Mírzá Fath-'Alí Ákhúndoff of Tiflís wrote a long and laughable criticism of this paper, analyzing one of its numbers which had come under his notice, and of which more than half was taken up with an account of the genealogy and circumstances of a poet who bore the nom de guerre (takhallus) of Surúsh and the title of Shamsu'sh-Shu'arâ ("Sun of the Poets"), and with two of his poems, a qaşıda and a ghazal. The criticism in question begins as follows: "On Friday the 14th of the month of Rabí'u'l-Awwál A.H. 1283 (= July 27, 1866) I happened to see in Tiflís a copy of the Rúznáma-i-Millat-i-Írán under circumstances which will be mentioned below. First of all I read this sentence: 'It has been ordered and determined on the Illustrious part of His Imperial Majesty (may God immortalize his Kingdom and Sovereignty !) that the Rúznáma-i-Millí shall be written in the freest fashion, so that gentle and simple may share alike in its advantages.' The meaning of this sentence is..." etc.

Zaká'u'l-Mulk writes: "The Rúznáma-i-Millatí used to be published, together with the Rúznáma-i-Dawlatí and the Rúznáma-i-Ilmí, under the superintendence of the late I'tizádu's-Saltana. Its first number was dated Friday, the 14th of Rabí' i, A.H. 1283 (= July 27, 1866), and its last number the 20th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1287 (= Sept. 17, 1870). It was published monthly, and in all 33 numbers appeared. Its contents consisted chiefly of the biographies of eminent poets."

I'timádu's-Saltana writes: "Another paper was the Rúznáma-i-Millat-i-Írán [of which the first number was] dated Wednesday, Muḥarram 15, A.H. 1283 (= May 30, 1866). This paper appeared while Mírzá Muḥammad Khán Sipahsálár was Prime Minister, and was under the management of the Ministry of Sciences."

As may be seen from the above, there exists a certain discrepancy and contradiction as to the date of this paper's first appearance, unless, indeed the Rúznáma-i-Millat-i-Írán is a different paper from the Rúznáma-i-Millatí, which seems somewhat improbable.

Rúznáma-i-Millí (The National Journal).

روزنامهء ملی

A quarto-sized weekly paper lithographed in Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7), the first number of which appeared on Ramazán 1st (= Oct. 19, 1906) of that year. This was the first newspaper published in Tabríz after the Revolution and the Proclamation of the Constitution. Its founder and editor was Mírzá 'Alí Akbar Khán, son of the well-known Sayyid Háshim of Charandáb, who used at first to sign under the nom de guerre of Surúsh-i-Ghaybí ("The Angel from the Unseen World"), but who afterwards wrote under his own name when, in the latter part of the same year, the paper changed its title to Jarída-i-Millí (see No. 123, supra). A little later, namely in the early part of A.H. 1325 (= Feb.-March, 1907), it again changed its name, and was published under the title of Anjuman (see No. 64, supra). This paper, and likewise its successors, i.e. the Jarida-i-Millî and the Anjuman, were produced under the supervision and at the expense of the Anjuman-i-Millî, or National Council, of Tabriz.

See Rabino, No. 115. I do not possess a copy.

Rúznáma-i-Nizámî (The Military Newspaper).

روزنامه نظامی

A paper published in Tihrán, of which Mírzá Husayn Khán Sipahsálár was probably the founder. In any case it was founded before A.H. 1296 (= A.D. 1879), for, as Zaká'u'l-Mulk states in a letter, its place was taken in that year by the Murrikh (q.v.).

(192)

Rúznáma-i-Waqáyi'-i-Ittifaqiyya

روزنامه وقایع اتفاقیه

(Journal of Current Events).

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Tihrán in A.H. 1267 (= A.D. 1850-1), concerning which something has been already said in the Introduction. This was the first Persian newspaper published in Persia, and was started while Mírzá Taqí Khán Amír-i-Nizám was Prime Minister. At first, i.e. until the appearance of No. 16, dated Rajab 21, A.H. 1267 (= May 22, 1851), it was published every Friday, but afterwards until the end of its career on Thursdays. The yearly subscription was 24 gráns, while a single copy cost 10 sháhís. It was published very regularly and punctually, without any delay, sometimes comprising one sheet of the size usual in Persia (4 pp.), like Nos. 1 to 9; sometimes 6 pp, like Nos. 17, 23, 24 and 25-40; sometimes 8 pp., as was generally the case in its middle and later period, occasionally regularly for some considerable time, though still numbers comprising 4 or 6 pp. would appear occasionally.

This paper continued publication until A.H. 1277 (= A.D. 1860-1), after which period it apparently received the 'title of Rûsnâma-i-Dawlat-i-'Aliyya-i-Îrân (q.v.). There exists a complete set of this paper in the State Library at Tihrán, while Nos. 409-456 inclusive are preserved in the British Museum under the class-mark 757.1.12 amongst the Periodical Publications. I myself possess Nos. 7-444.

"The first number of this paper," writes the I'timâdu's-Saltâna, "appeared on Friday the 5th of Rabî' ii, A.H. 1267 (= Feb. 7, 1851), and bore only the superscription 'O Victorious Lion of God!' ('Yâ Asada'llâhi'l-Ghâlib!'), but subsequently it bore the title Waqâyi'-i-Ittifâqiyya with the Lion and the Sun."

Zakâ'u'l-Mulk writes: "Originally, that is in the time of Mirzá Taqí Khán Atábak, when the paper was first founded, Hájji Mirzá Jabbár Tazkira-ahí and the father of the present Sa'du'd-Dawla, who owned a printing-press, were instrumental in producing and circulating the paper, which was written by a certain Mirzá 'Abdu'lláh. No. 474 of this paper, which I have seen and possess, is dated the 18th of Rabî' ii, A.H. 1277 (= Nov. 3, 1860)."

See Rabino, No. 116, who states that it was published by the Ministry of the Press, that No. 261 was dated the 22nd of Jumáda i, A.H. 1273 (= Jan. 18, 1857), and that it "appears to be the same newspaper which Mirzá Taqí Khán Amir-Nizâm founded about A.H. 1265 (= A.D. 1848-9) in the early part of the reign of Nâsir-u-Dín Sháh." I do not possess an original copy, but have a transcript of No. 8.

Rahbar-i-Îrân-i-Naw (The Guide of the New Persia). رهبر ایران نو

A daily paper printed in Tihrán in the latter part of A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). It was the successor of the Îrân-i-Naw, which, after its suppression, appeared under this name, but only one number was published. See above under No. 77.

رهنما

A weekly paper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of 'Abdu'lláh Qájár.

See Rabino, No. 167, who gives the date of inception as the 26th of Jumada ii, A.H. 1325 (= August 6, 1907). I possess Nos. 1, 3, 5-10, 12, 14 and 23, the first dated as above, the last the 21st of Rabî' i, A.H. 1326 (= April 23, 1908). Each number comprises 8 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7\frac{1}{4}''$, with a large coloured title (the colour varying in each number) illustrating the idea of Progress with a railway-train, a steamer, a lighthouse and factories. Yearly subscription, 15 grâns in Tihrán, 20 grâns elsewhere in Persia, and 25 grâns abroad.

Zâyanda-rúd.

زاینده رود

An illustrated weekly newspaper lithographed in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of the Murínû'l-Islâm of Khwânsâr. In politics it was Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 118. I possess Nos. 10, 37 and 39 of the Second Year, and Nos. 3, 7, 9 and 13 of the Third Year, the first dated the 19th of Rabi' i, A.H. 1328 (= March 31, 1910), and the last the 27th of Rabi' ii, A.H. 1329 (= April 27, 1911). All these numbers are printed except the first, which is lithographed, and a rather rude lithographed caricature or cartoon occupies the last page of each printed number. Each number comprises 8 pp. of $12'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, in Iṣfahán 16 grâns, elsewhere in Persia and abroad, 24 grâns.

Zabân-i-Millat (The Tongue of the Nation).

زبان ملت

A paper printed in Tihrán twice a week in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907).

See Rabino, No. 119. I possess No. 3, which is dated the 28th of Ramazán, A.H. 1325 (= Nov. 4, 1907), and comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 15 grâns in Tihrán, 18 grâns elsewhere in Persia, and 12 francs abroad.

Zisht u Zibá (Foul and Fair).

زشت و زیبا

An illustrated weekly paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Fatḥu'l-Mamálík.

See Rabino, No. 120, where the date of inception is given as the 2nd of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1325 (= July 13, 1907). I possess Nos. 1, 2 and 3. Each comprises 8 pp. of 12" × 7½". Yearly subscription, 30 gráns in Tīhrán, and the same plus postage elsewhere in Persia.

(200)

Zamán-i-Wisál (The Time of Union).

زمان وصال

A weekly paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Alí Aṣghar of Shíráz entitled Náṣiru'sh-Shu'ará.

See Rabino, No. 121, who states that only eight numbers appeared, the first on the 19th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1329 (= May 18, 1911), and the last on the 22nd of Rajab (= July 19) of the same year. I possess Nos. 1, 2, 3, 5, 7 and 8. Each comprises 4 pp. of 12½" × 6½". Yearly subscription, 10 gráns.

Sáhil-i-Naját (The Shore of Safety).

ساحل نجات

A paper printed in Anzalí twice a week in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Afṣahu'l-Mutakallimín, the editor of the Khayru'l-Kalám (q.v.).

See Rabino, No. 122, who states that only eight numbers were published, the first on the 26th of Rajab, A.H. 1325 (= Sept. 4, 1907). I possess Nos. 1-5, but No. 1 is dated not as above but the 7th of Sha'bán (= Sept. 22) of the same year. Each number comprises 4 pp. of 12" × 7". Yearly subscription, 18 gráns in Gilán, 20 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 5 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, and 14 francs in Europe.

Sáhil-i-Naját (The Shore of Safety).

ساحل نجات

A daily paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Afṣahu'l-Mutakallimín.

See Rabino, No. 122. I possess Nos. 8-13, the former dated the last day of Shawwál, A.H. 1328 (= Nov. 3, 1910). Each number comprises 4 pp. of 12" × 7". Yearly subscription, 25 gráns in Rasht, 30 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 6 roubles in Russia.

(203)

Siráju'l-Akhbár (The Lamp of News).

سراج الأخبار

A fortnightly paper lithographed in the nasta'liq hand in Kábul (Afghánistán) in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). Its editor and chief writer was Maḥmúd Tarzí, and it was under the supervision of 'Alí Aḥmad the Chief Chamberlain (Ishik-ághásí) of His Majesty the Amír. The first number was dated the 5th of Shawwál (= Oct. 10) of the above year.

Surúsh.

سروش

A weekly newspaper printed in Constantinople in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909-1910) under the editorship of Sayyid Muḥammad Tawfíq. It was founded during the time of the Persian Revolution or the "Lesser Autocracy" (June, 1908-July, 1909) by the Anjuman-i-Sa'ádat-i-Íráníyán, and received contributions from the pens of Mírzá 'Alí Akbar Khán (formerly a regular contributor to the Šúr-i-Isráfíl, q.v.), Aḥmad Bey Aghayeff, and Hájji Mírzá Yahyá of Dawlatábád.

See Rabino, No. 123, who erroneously describes it as lithographed. According to him it first appeared on the 12th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1327 (= July 1, 1909).

سعادت

A weekly paper printed (not lithographed) in Hamadán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907)—not 1326—under the editorship of Muḥammad Taqí Niráqí.

See Rabino, No. 126. I possess Nos. 43, 46 and 47. Each comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7''$. Yearly subscription, 10 gráns in Hamadán, 15 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus. No. 43 is dated the 10th of Šafar, A.H. 1326 (= March 14, 1908).

Sa'ádat (Felicity).

سعادت

A fortnightly paper printed (not lithographed) in Tabríz in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). The first number was dated the 23rd of Rabí' ii (= April 23) of that year. It was edited by Sa'íd-záda, the Superintendent of the Madrasa-i-Sa'ádat, and founded by Mírzá Ibráhím, the Director of the above-mentioned College. Its contents were purely academical and literary.

See Rabino, No. 125. I possess No. 4, dated the 8th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1329 (= June 6, 1911). It comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 9\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 5 gráns in Tabríz, 10 abroad.

Safína-i-Naját (The Ark of Deliverance).

سفینه نجات

A weekly paper first "jelly-graphed" and then lithographed at Yazd in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Muḥammad Šádiq.

See Rabino, No. 127, according to whom the paper was first issued on the 22nd of Shawwál, A.H. 1329 (= Nov. 28, 1907). He adds that on the arrival of the Bakhtiyári chief Sardār-i-Jang as governor at Yazd this paper was suppressed, on account of the publication of a caricature of the Sardār, and his Deputy Mudíru'd-Dawla, and his Treasurer Mushíru'l-Mamálík. The latter was represented in the form of a dog, while a dog's tail was visible under the Mudíru'd-Dawla's coat, and both of them were urging the Sardār to take money from the people. As it was supposed that this caricature had been produced by lithography on the gelatine process in the workshops of the Safína-i-Naját, the paper was suppressed. I possess Nos. 3, 6, 16, 20 and 21 of the First Year, and No. 10 of the Second Year. The first is dated the 22nd of Shawwāl, A.H. 1325 (as stated above by Rabino), and the last the 22nd of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1328 (= Nov. 25, 1910). Of the six numbers which I possess, the first three are "jelly-graphed" and the last three lithographed. Each contains 4 pp. of $10\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$ (later enlarged to $12\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$), and is written in a large, clear naskh hand. Yearly subscription, 20 grāns in Yazd, 25 grāns elsewhere in Persia, and 30 grāns abroad.

A weekly newspaper published every Sunday in Calcutta in A.H. 1262 (= A.D. 1846).

Mentioned in Zenker's Bibliotheca Orientalis, No. 1830, but not in Rabino, and not otherwise known. It appears probable that there may be a mistake in the name of this paper, and that Zenker never saw it, but only its title written in Roman characters, in which what was probably its real title Sultānu'l-Akhhār ("The King of News") might easily be corrupted into the obviously incorrect title Sultānu'l-Akbar.

سید الاخبار

A large-sized weekly newspaper lithographed at Ḥaydarābād in the Deccan in A.H. 1306 (= A.D. 1888-9) under the editorship of Āqā Sayyid Āqā Shīrāzī. It was published regularly on Saturdays, and comprised eight large-sized pages. Amongst the Periodical Publications in the British Museum, under the class-mark 757. m. 1, are preserved 35 numbers of this paper, of which No. 1 is dated the 4th of Rabí' ii, A.H. 1306 (= Dec. 8, 1888), and No. 35 the 5th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1306 (= August 2, 1889). At the top of each title-page stands the Lion and the Sun, beneath which are placed some Arabic and Persian verses in praise of the newspaper, of knowledge, etc., which verses are textually repeated in each number. Beneath these in turn the name of the newspaper is contained and inscribed in the following hemistich :

جَيْدِ اَخْبَارِ عَالَمِ سَيِّدِ الْاَخْبَارِ شَدْ

(The Sayyidul-Akhabár is the best newspaper in the world.)

This paper (like the present day papers in Persia) was very instructive, containing full information, foreign news and telegraphic despatches. It translated from the English papers important political articles about Persia and Russia, and generally wrote against Russia and its designs in Persia. Some of its numbers contain particulars as to the third and last journey of Náṣiru'd-Dín Sháh in Europe, which corresponded in time with those issues. In No. 35 there appears an announcement concerning the reduction in size of the newspaper in the forthcoming number.

One rather comic incident is that in the later numbers the editor complains much about the non-payment of subscriptions, and in one of them he writes in praise of Tabríz, its leading men, and the progress of science and education there. Finally, after giving a most brilliant and glowing account of Mírzá Yúsuf Khán Mustasháru'd-Dawla of Tabríz, he observes that the above-mentioned personage has been "graciously pleased" to remit the full amount of his subscription to the newspaper. In the first number he complains very much of obtaining permission in Haydarábád to publish the paper, and describes the editor's protracted wanderings in pursuit of this object. At the end of each copy is the signature "Sayyid Áqá-yi-Shirází, owner and editor of the paper."

In some numbers he reproduces matter from the newspaper Farhang published at Iṣfahán, while in the tenth number he publishes an attack on and refutation of the Persian paper Ázád (apparently published in Delhi), which, in the fourth number of the fifth volume, published on Friday, Feb. 1, 1889, attacks and reviles the higher circles of Ḥaydarábád in the Deccan, and the newspapers of that place, which do not enjoy freedom. From this it appears that a paper named Ázád, otherwise unknown to us, was published in India in A.D. 1885 (= A.H. 1302-3).

I possess No. 34 of the second volume, dated Ramazán 21. A.H. 1307 (= May 11, 1890). It comprises 12 pp. of $12'' \times 7\frac{3}{4}''$, and is lithographed in a fairly good ta'liq.

Sháhseven (The King-lover :—name of well-known tribe). شاهسون

A "jelly-graphed" paper produced in Constantinople about A.H. 1306 (= A.D. 1888-9) or perhaps a little earlier, which vehemently criticized in a comical and sarcastic vein the autocratic Government of Persia. The production and publication of this paper was attributed to Hájji Mírzá 'Abdu'r-Raḥím Táliboff and some of his associates, who were aided in its publication by Sayyid Muḥammad Shabistarí Abu'z-Ziyá, afterwards editor of the Írán-i-Naw, who was at that time in Constantinople and shared in this enterprise; indeed it appears to have been reproduced from his handwriting. It was published secretly, and the issue was limited to 300 copies, which were placed in envelopes like letters and sent with various precautions to statesmen, theologians, merchants and others in Persia. Often, in order to conceal the place of publication, they were first sent to Paris, London, etc. to be forwarded thence to Persia. At the top of one copy which I possess stands the inscription, "Published once in forty years." In the portion devoted to "telegraphic news" occurs the following passage :

"The British Consul at Hamadán has sent an official communication to the Government in which he complains that there is a public bath in the neighbourhood of the Consulate, and that the Consulate is sorely troubled by the filth thereof, and by the infection which emanates from it, by reason of which two of its employés have died; and requesting that the Government will either close the bath, or provide a more suitable place for the Consulate."

Another runs as follows:

"Our correspondent of the Foreign Telegraphic Agency in Tīhrán observed a great activity, accompanied by much haste and bustle, in the principal avenues, where most of the notables, ministers and leading personages of the kingdom, mounted in their carriages, were rapidly driving one after another in a particular direction. Before he had succeeded in ascertaining the true state of the case, he telegraphed to London stating that on that day a serious political crisis had arisen in Tīhrán, and that an important movement was visible in official circles. After having despatched this telegram, he applied himself to the investigation of this matter and its real nature, and after a while was compelled, with the utmost shame, to send another telegram contradicting his first conjecture, and stating that it now appeared that all these gentlemen were merely going to attend a commemorative religious function (majlis-i-rawza-khwání) given by one of the great ecclesiastics (mujtahidín) of Tīhrán."

There are many telegrams of this sort, whereof the above (of which only the substance, not the exact phraseology, is given) will suffice to serve as a sample.

I have only seen one copy of this paper.

Sháhinsháhi (The Imperial).

شاهنشاهی

A weekly illustrated paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1323 (= A.D. 1905-6) under the editorship of Mīrzá 'Abdu'l-Ḥusayn Khán, entitled Maliku'l-Mu'arrikhín ("The King of Historians").

See Rabino, No. 134, who gives the date of inception as the 9th of Shawwál, A.H. 1323 (= Nov. 7, 1905). I possess Nos. 18, 21, 26, 43, 44, 45, 46 and 47. The first is dated the 13th of Rabi' i, A.H. 1324 (= May 7, 1906), and the last the 13th of Muharram, A.H. 1325 (= Feb. 26, 1907). Each number has on p. 1 the portrait of some notable Persian or foreign statesman, and comprises 4 pp. of 12" x 6½". Yearly subscription, 20 gráms. Similar in form and character to the Shari' and Sharáfat. (See infra.)

Shab-náma (Nocturnal).

شب نامه

A publication which appeared in Tabríz about A.H. 1310 (= A.D. 1892-3) and circulated for some time, but not in any regular or journalistic fashion, but only amongst a number of those who were inspired by the new ideas in a very secret manner. These publications were sarcastic and very amusing, and were written by 'Alí-qulí Khán, editor of the Ilitiyáj and the Ázarbayján (q.v.), who was at that time known as Áqá-qulí. The name Shab-náma was, however, subsequently applied in a general way to all secret "jelly-graphed" publications. One or two specimens may be given of the contents of the Shab-námas, though it is difficult to give the preference to one over another. Concerning the deplorable condition of bread and the detestable confusion of the bread-market it wrote:

"Yesterday I sent the servant to get a loaf of bread for luncheon from the bazaar. He went early in the morning, and returned three hours after dusk, his clothes torn to rags, his face scratched, and his body wounded and bruised, bringing one cake of 'pebble bread' (nán-i-sangak), on which, by reason of our extreme hunger, we incontinently fell and tore it in pieces. Out of it fell the objects enumerated below: one night-shirt; one ewer and basin; one head of...; one bundle of...; one..., etc."

Concerning the mud in the streets he writes:

"A string of camels sunk in the mud in the main street in front of the Royal Gynaecium, and disappeared from sight. They afterwards reappeared in the bed of the Ájí River (distant about one parasang)." And so on.

Not in Rabino. I possess one Shab-náma of Nov. 1906, written in Turkish. It consists of a single sheet of 14" x 8½", "jelly-graphed" in violet ink. A caricature occupies the upper half of the page, and below it are thirteen lines of letter-press. There is no date, title, or indication of author or place of publication.

Portrait of Mirza Ali Asghar Khan
Amini's-Sultân by Musawwirul-Mulk

From No. 31 of the illustrated monthly Sharafat of Oct.-Nov. 1900

(219)

Sharáfat (Nobility).

شرافت

A monthly illustrated paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1314 (= A.D. 1896-7) under the management of the Ministry of the Press. It was a continuation of the newspaper Sharaf (see infra), and was founded by Muḥammad Báqir Khán, the present ʿImádu's-Saltána, early in the reign of Muẓaffaru'd-Dín Sháh.

See Rabino, No. 129, who says that No. 3 was issued in Rabi' ii, A.H. 1314 (= August-Sept. 1896). I possess No. 51, dated Rajab, A.H. 1318 (= Oct.-Nov. 1900). It comprises 4 pp. of 13" x 7½", and the front page is adorned with a portrait of the Atábak-i-Aẓam (ʿAmínu's-Sultán). Yearly subscription, 12 gráns.

Sharáfat (Nobility).

شرافت

A monthly paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908) under the editorship of Áqá Sayyid Ḥusayn, Director of the Sharáfat Library. This paper has a special importance inasmuch as it was written in very popular language, in the idiom of the Tīhrán "Mashhadís" (common people), and was sold at a very low price, so that it had a considerable influence on the humbler classes. It was instructive as regards subject-matter, and strongly supported the fullest form of Constitutional Government.

See Rabino, No. 130, who describes this paper as bi-weekly, and gives the date of No. 2 as the 4th of Šafar, A.H. 1326 (= March 8, 1908). I possess Nos. 8, 22, 23, 24, 25 and 26. Each number comprises 4 pp. (with continuous pagination throughout the "set," or daṭara, of 40 numbers) of 12½" x 6¾". Sub-cription for the "set" of 40 numbers, 3 gráns in Tīhrán, 5 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 6 gráns abroad.

Sharaf (Honour).

شرف

A monthly illustrated paper lithographed in Tīhrán, of which the first issue was published on the first of Muḥarram, A.H. 1300 (= Nov. 12, 1882). This paper and its successor the Sharáfat (see supra, No. 219) used to publish portraits of nobles and statesmen, accompanied by explanatory and biographical matter, and enjoyed a certain distinction and value by reason of the excellence of these portraits, which were executed by Kamálu'l-Mulk, the well-known Persian artist. Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán I'timádu's-Saltāna founded this paper, of which in all 78 numbers were published.

See Rabino, No. 131, according to whom this paper lasted until A.H. 1309 (=A.D. 1891) and published in all 87 numbers. I do not possess a copy.

(222)

Sharaf (Honour).

شرف

A weekly paper printed (not lithographed) in Tīhrán in A.H. 1326 (=A.D. 1908) under the editorship of Ghulám Ḥusayn of Tīhrán.

See Rabino, No. 132. I possess No. 1, which is dated the 17th of Rabī' ii. A.H. 1326 (=May 19, 1908). It comprises 4 pp. of 11" 7". Yearly subscription, 5 qirāns in Tīhrán, 6 qirāns elsewhere in Persia, and 5 francs abroad.

Sharq (The East).

شرق

A daily paper of large format printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1327 (=A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Sayyid Ziyá'u'd-Dīn Ṭabáṭabá'ī (son of Sayyid 'Alí of Yazd), who was also editor of the Nidá-yi-Islám ("Call of Islám") and Barq ("Lightning," q.v.). This newspaper, in consequence of its violent and revolutionary attacks on those at the head of affairs, was several times suspended, and finally changed its name and came out under the title of Barq. Many numbers of this paper contained one page in French. Under the title of "literary contributions" (adabíyyát) there appeared in this newspaper poems, criticizing in a metaphorical manner the doings of the Government, which, in point of literary value, were both important and beautiful, and, by reason of their natural simplicity and approximation in style to the colloquial language, were as distinguished in merit as they were plain in language, and, alike by virtue of their novelty and their originality, are worthy to be taken as models and exemplars. The writer of these verses was a poet of Kirmánsháh. In politics this newspaper originally represented the views of the Party of Union and Progress, but afterwards became Revolutionary.

See Rabino, No. 123. I possess a fairly complete set, including No. 1, which is dated the 14th of Ramazán, A.H. 1327 (=Sept. 30, 1909). Each number comprises 4 pp. of $21\frac{1}{2}'' \times 14\frac{1}{2}''$, and the French supplement first appears in No. 91 (June 18, 1910). Yearly subscription, 45 grâns in Tihrán, 50 grâns elsewhere in Persia, and 56 grâns abroad.

(224)

Shafaq (The Afterglow).

شفق

A weekly paper printed in Tabriz in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910). Its owner and editor was Mírzá Hájji Áqá Rizá-záda; the editorship was subsequently transferred in name to Mírzá Maḥmúd Ghaní-záda of Salmás, editor of the Faryád, Bū Qalamún, etc. This paper was remarkable for its boldness and violent writing, and especially in consequence of its patriotic articles became the object of vehement hatred on the part of the Russians, so that on the occasion of their aggressions in Muḥar-rám, A.H. 1330 (= January, 1912), they arrested and hanged one of its contributors, Mírzá Aḥmad, known as "Suhaylí," and suppressed the paper. It published some poetical fragments in the new style, rhymed in the European fashion. In politics it was Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 136, according to whom it was first issued on Ramiázán 27, A.H. 1328 (= Oct. 3, 1910). I possess a good many copies, including Nos. 1 and 22 of the First Year, and Nos. 1-40 (with some gaps) of the Second Year, the last dated the 18th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1329 (= Dec. 21, 1911). Each number contains 4 pp. of $15\frac{3}{4}'' \times 9''$. Yearly subscription, 7 grâns in Tabriz, 10 grâns elsewhere in Persia, and 14 grâns abroad.

Shafaq (The Afterglow).

شفق

A "jelly-graphed" paper published in Khúy.

See Rabino, No. 137, on whose authority it is included here.

(226)

Shakar (Sugar).

شکر

A weekly paper lithographed in Tabriz in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Muḥammad 'Alí 'Abdu'l-Manáf-záda.

See Rabino, No. 135. I possess a copy of No. 3, which is dated the 17th of Rabí' i, A.H. 1325 (= April 30, 1907). It comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$, and is written in Ázarbáyjáni Turkish, and lithographed in a poor but legible ta'liq. Yearly subscription, 5 grâns in Tabriz, 7 grâns elsewhere in Persia, and 2 roubles in Russia.

(227)

Shams (The Sun).

شمس

A weekly illustrated paper printed in Constantinople in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Sayyid Muḥammad Tawfīq of Baṣra, and owned by Sayyid Ḥasan of Tabrīz. In politics it is Moderate.

See Rabino, No. 138. I possess a fairly complete set from the beginning. No. 1 is dated the 8th of Shaḥrān. A.H. 1326 (=Sept. 5, 1908), and the paper is still appearing. Each number contains 8 pp. of 9" x 6½", but since the end of the Second Year the size of the paper has been considerably enlarged. Yearly subscription, 60 piastres in Constantinople, 75 piastres elsewhere in Turkey, 35 gráns in Persia, 6 roubles in Russia, and 17 francs in Europe.

Shams-i-Táli' (The Rising Sun).

(229)

Shúrā-yi-Írán (The Council of Persia).

شورای ایران

A weekly paper published in Tabrīz in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908). It was founded and published by the Anjuman-i-Mash-warat ("Society of Council"), and was jointly written by those three martyred patriots Mīrzá Sa'īd of Salmás, Áqá Sayyid Ḥasan Sharif-záda, and Hájji 'Alī Dawá-furúsh ("The Druggist"). Its politics were Conservative and Moderate Constitutional.

See Rabino, No. 140, according to whom No. 2 was dated the 19th of Rabī' ii, A.H. 1326 (= May 21, 1908). I do not possess a copy.

Shaykh Chughundar (The Reverend Beetroot).

شیخ چغندر

A weekly illustrated comic paper lithographed in Tīhrān in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911), of which the first number was dated the 14th of Shawwāl of that year (= Oct. 8, 1911). Its proprietor, Mīr Fath 'Alī, and its editor, Abu'l-Ma'ālī, known as Sayyid-i Āhan-bardār ("The Iron-lifter"), were both reactionaries, but the paper was connected with the Party of Agreement and Progress (Ittifaq u taragqī).

See Rabino, No. 241. I possess a copy of No. 3, dated the 28th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1329 (= Oct. 22, 1911). It comprises 4 pp. (pp. 2 and 3 containing caricatures) of $12\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$, lithographed in ta'liq. Yearly subscription, 12 grāns in Tīhrān, 20 grāns in other parts of Persia, 30 grāns abroad.

Shaydā (Mudcap).

شیدا

A serio-comic illustrated fortnightly paper printed in Constantinople in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Muḥammad Ziyā'u'd-Dīn. It was founded by a committee of Persian students. Its proprietor and writer was Hājji Ḥasan Khān Ja'far-zāda, its managing editor Muẓaffar Khān Isma'īl-zāda, and its artist-illustrator Mīrzā 'Abdu'l-Ḥusayn Khān Ṭāhīr-zāda. Not more than four or five numbers of it were issued. In politics it was Democrat.

Not in Rabino. I possess Nos. 1-5, the first dated the 29th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1329 (= Oct. 23, 1911), and the last the 2nd of Muḥarrām, A.H. 1330 (= Dec. 23, 1911), with a supplementary sheet dated the following day. Each number comprises 4 pp., and, as a rule, two caricatures (on pp. 1 and 4), of $13\frac{1}{4}'' \times 8''$. Yearly subscription, 15 grāns in Persia, 30 piastres in Constantinople.

Ṣubḥ-i-Ṣādiq (The True Dawn).

صبح صادق

A daily paper printed in Tīhrān in the early part of A.H. 1325 (= Feb.-March, 1907) under the editorship of Murtaẓā-qulī Khān Mu'ayyidu'l-Mamālik, editor of the Pulīs-i-Īrān (q.v.).

See Rabino, No. 142, according to whom the paper first appeared in Ṣafar (March-April) of that year, and was subsequently edited by Mahdī-qulī Khān Mu'ayyid-i-Diẓwān. I possess 16 copies, ranging from No. 32 (May 14, 1907) to No. 149 (Oct. 8, 1907). Each number comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 45 grāns.

(236)

Ṣubḥ-nāma (Morning Letter).

صبحنامه

A weekly "jelly-graphed" paper published in Tīhrān in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) before the proclamation of the Constitution and for a short time after it. Its editor and writer was Āqā Sayyid Muḥammad Riẓā of Shīrāz, editor of the Musāwāt ("Equality"). This paper was circulated secretly, and not more than seventeen or eighteen numbers were published. It opposed the autocracy, and was revolutionary in politics.

See Rabino, No. 143. I do not possess a copy.

(237)

Ṣuḥbat (Conversation).

صحبت

A paper in the Āzarbāyjānī Turkish dialect lithographed in Tabrīz in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), under the editorship of Mīrẓā Ḥusayn Khān, editor of the papers al-Ḥadīd, ʿAdālat and Khabar. In consequence of having published in No. 4, by way of a joke, an article in Turkish entitled Kej Qāburqā ("The Crooked Rib") on the evils of the veiling of women and the necessity of improving their condition, it drew upon itself the violent hostility of the clergy and common people, as a result of which the paper was suspended and the editor arrested and imprisoned after judgement had been given against him.

Şûr-i-Isrâfil (The Trumpet-call of Isrâfil).

صور اسرافیل

A weekly paper printed in Tihhrân in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907). Its proprietor and editor was Mîrzâ Jahângîr Khân of Shîrâz; the second editor and publisher was Mîrzâ Qâsim Khân of Tabrîz; while its chief contributor was Mîrzâ 'Alî Akbar Khân of Qazwín, known as Dihkhudá or Dakhaw. It is reckoned one of the best of the Persian papers, old and new, and in particular the comic or satirical portion, entitled Charand Parand ("Charivari"), is the best specimen of literary satire in Persian. It became the special object of hostility on the part of the Reactionaries, and its editor Mirzá Jahángír Khán, who was captured on the occasion of the bombardment of the Majlis (June 23, 1908), was put to death by strangling by order of Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh. One of the most important incidents in the history of this paper was its controversy with the clergy and its critical remarks on the decline of the Islamic nations through the Doctors of Divinity, which appeared in No. 4, and gave rise to a great outcry amongst the Mullás and common people, and led to the suppression of the paper for about two months. In No. 7 there appeared a defence proving its innocence, which is also worthy of attention. The literary style of this paper was modelled, so far as the serious portion was concerned, on the style of Mirzá Malkom Khán, and greatly resembled his writings, while the comic or satirical portion was inspired by the Turkish Mullá Nasru'd-Dín, published at Tiflis. In politics the Šúr-i-Isráfíl was Liberal and thorough-going Constitutionalist.

See Rabino, No. 145, according to whom this paper first appeared on the 17th of Rabí' in, A.H. 1325 (= May 30, 1907), and was brought to an end on the 20th of Jumáda 1, A.H. 1326 (= June 20, 1908), three days before the bombardment of the Majlis, and four days before the editor, Mirzá Jahángír Khán, was put to death by Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh. I possess an almost complete set. Each number comprises 8 pp. of $11\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 12 qráns in Tihrán, 17 qráns elsewhere in Persia, and 20 qráns abroad.

Šúr-i-Isráfíl (The Trumpet-call of Isráfíl).

صور اسرافیل

A weekly paper printed at Yverdon in Switzerland in the beginning of A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Mirzá 'Alí Akbar Khán Dihkhudá, formerly on the staff of the Tihrán Šúr-i-Isráfíl. Not more than four numbers of this Swiss edition were published, and the paper did not possess its former eloquence and sweetness.

See Rabino, No. 145. No. 1 was dated the first of Muḥarram, A.H. 1327 (= Jan. 23, 1909), and No. 3 the 15th of Šafar (= March 8) of the same year. I possess

عدالت

An illustrated weekly paper lithographed in Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Mírzá Maḥmúd Khán known as Hakkák-báshí ("The Seal-engraver"), and afterwards of Mírzá Sayyid Ḥusayn Khán, editor of the newspapers al-Ḥadíd, Ṣuḥbat and Khabar (q.v.). This paper succeeded al-Ḥadíd, and both of them were founded by the above-mentioned Mírzá Sayyid Ḥusayn Khán.

See Rabino, No. 148, according to whom it reached the Third Year of publication. I possess a good many numbers, ranging from No. 15 of the First Year (dated the 11th of Sha‘bān, A.H. 1324=Sept. 30, 1906) to No. 4 of the Third Year, dated Jumáda i, A.H. 1325 (=June-July, 1907). Each number contains 8 pp. of 12" x 6½", lithographed in fair ta‘līq, but a few numbers are in naskh. Only the later numbers contain illustrations of celebrated men like Mirabeau, Cicero, etc. Yearly subscription, 22 qráns in Tabríz, 26 qráns elsewhere in Persia, 5 roubles in Russia, 13 francs elsewhere.

‘Adl-i-Muṣaffar (The Justice of Muṣaffar).

عدل مظفر

A weekly paper "jelly-graphed" (afterwards printed) in Hamadán in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906) under the editorship of Dr Ḥasan Khán Ṭabīb ‘Alí. It was established at the instigation and maintained by the support of Zahír-u’-Dawla, who was at that time Governor. After some twenty numbers had been published, the paper changed its name to Ekbátán (Ecbatana). See No. 59 supra.

See Rabino, No. 242. Not in my possession.

(253)

‘Iráq-i-‘Ajam.

عراق عجم

A weekly paper printed in Ṭihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá Ṣádiq Khán Adib-u’l-Mamálík, sub-editor of the newspaper Adab. It was published on the part and at the charges of the political club called 'Irāq-i-'Ajam in Tihrán.

See Rabino, No. 149. I possess Nos. 5, 6, 8, 16-19, and 22, the first dated the 3rd of Jumáda 1, A.H. 1325 (= June 14, 1907), and the last the 12th of Dhu'l-Hijja of the same year (= Jan. 16, 1908). Each number contains 4 or 8 pp. of 12" x 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 12 gráns in Tihrán, 17 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 5 roubles in Russia, 10 francs in Europe.

'Ur watu'l-Wuthqá (The Firm Hand-hold).

عروة الوثقى

A weekly newspaper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907).

See Rabino, No. 150, who gives no further particulars. I do not possess the paper.

(255)

'Asr (The Age).

عصر

A weekly paper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910), owned and written by Mírzá Áqá of Isfahán, known as Mujáhid, and edited by Hájji Shaykh Hasan of Tabriz, formerly editor of the Khiláfat (q.v.). In politics this paper was Moderate.

See Rabino, No. 151. I possess Nos. 3-31 of this paper, the first dated the 17th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1328 (= Dec. 20, 1910), and the last the 3rd of Sha'bán, A.H. 1329 (= July 30, 1911). Each number comprises 4 pp. of 14 $\frac{1}{2}$ " x 8 $\frac{1}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 10 gráns in Tihrán, 12 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 8 francs abroad.

'Asr-i-Jadíd (The New Age).

عصر جدید

A bi-weekly paper lithographed in Mashhad early in A.H. 1328 (= Jan. 1910) under the editorship of Sayyid Hasan-i-Músawí.

See Rabino, No. 152. I possess Nos. 2, 4, and 18, the first dated the 23rd of Rabí' 1, A.H. 1328 (= April 4, 1910), and the last the 16th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1328 (= Nov. 19, 1910). Each number contains 4 or 8 pp. of 13" x 7", lithographed in a large naskh hand. Yearly subscription, 16 gráns in Mashhad, 20 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 25 gráns abroad.

'Ilm-ámúz (The Teacher of Knowledge).

علم آموز

A paper published in Tihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(258)

Ghayrat (Zeal).

غیرت

A "jelly-graphed" newspaper secretly published in Tihrán in A.H. 1319 (= A.D. 1901-2) by a secret society, and chiefly directed against the Amínu's-Sultán. Something has been said about it in the Introduction (p. 21 supra).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(259)

Fárs.

فارس

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Shíráz in A.H. 1289 (= A.D. 1872-3), edited and written by Mírzá Taqí Khán of Káshán, editor of the Farhang (mention of which has been already made on p. 12 of the Introduction), and Chief Physician (Hakím-báshí) of the Zillu's-Sultán. The first number of this paper appeared on Sunday, the 9th of Shahríwar, in the year 794 of the Jalálí era, corresponding to the 25th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1289 (= August 30, 1872), and coincided with the first arrival of the Zillu's-Sultán at Shíráz on the occasion of his third appointment as Governor of Fárs. The first 19 numbers of this paper are preserved in the British Museum amongst the periodical publications, under the class-mark M. 2.757. These I have seen, but they are erroneously entered in the Catalogue as published at Iṣfahán.

This paper as originally issued comprised eight pages, four in Persian and four in Arabic, the latter being an exact translation of the former. Only the first three numbers, however, appeared in this form, the Arabic part being discontinued from No. 4 onwards, an announcement in that issue declaring it to be unnecessary. No. 19 is dated the 23rd of Day-máh in the year 794 of the Jalálí era, corresponding to the 6th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1289 (= Jan. 5, 1873), so that the paper seems to have appeared regularly every week. Its title appears in the form of a very intricate monogram in the thuluth script, the deciphering of which is somewhat difficult. It appears to contain the words "printed in Fárs." At the top of the title-page stand the words "in the private printing-press in the Mirror-room of the Seat of Government of the Province: yearly subscription, 3 tímáns"; and at the end the signature "Director of the Fárs printing-press and writer of the paper, Mirzá Taqí Ḥakīm-bāshí." The paper is written in a fine nasta'liq, and contains excellent verses composed by the poets of that period and sometimes by Mirzá Taqí Khán himself. At the foot of the page are dissertations on various topics, written in the diwání hand, amongst these being a treatise on "the Education of Children," and another on "a Scientific Problem," dealing with the Creation of the Earth and the Science of Geology, which appeared in the eleventh and subsequent numbers. At the beginning of the latter the author says that he has written and published separately a more detailed monograph on Geology. All these treatises and articles are written by the editor himself.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(260)

Faraj ba'd az Shiddat (Joy after Grief).

فرج بعد از شدت

A weekly paper lithographed in Tihrán.

See Rabino, No. 154, on whose authority it is here given. He describes it as Conservative, and adds that only about seven numbers were issued. I have not seen it.

(261)

Farwardín.

فروردین

A weekly newspaper printed at Urmiya (Ázarbáyján) in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Mirzá Ḥabíb Áqá-záda, and written by Mirzá Maḥmúd Khán Ashraf-záda. This paper contained a comic or satirical section in Ázarbáyjání Turkish entitled "Dághdán-Bághdán." In politics it was Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 155, according to whom it first appeared on the 28th of Jumáda i. A.H. 1329 (= May 27, 1911). I possess No. 2, which comprises 4 pp. of 15½" x 9½". Yearly subscription, 12 qráns in Urmiya, 15 qráns elsewhere in Persia, 18 qráns abroad. The above-mentioned Mirzá Maḥmúd Khán was beaten almost to death by Russian soldiers at the command of the Russian Consul at the time of the Russian aggressions in Ázarbáyján which began on Dec. 20, 1911. A full account of this event was published in the Constantinople Terjuman-i-Haqáiqat of Feb. 11, 1912.

Farhang (Culture).

فرهنگ

A weekly newspaper lithographed in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1296, and edited by Mirzá Taqí Khán of Káshán, editor of the newspaper Fárs (see above, No. 259), and after his death by Mírzá Maḥmúd Khán, father of Mírzá Muḥammad Khán, the present Farhang-i-Mamálík, under the general control of the Zillu's-Sultán. One number of it, which lies before me (No. 364) is dated the 21st of Ramazán, A.H. 1303 (= June 23, 1886). The first page is numbered (in continuation of what precedes) 53, and at the end is the imprint "Manager and Editor, Mírzá Maḥmúd Khán; writer, 'Abdu'r-Raḥím." At the foot of the page is published an instalment of a book entitled "The War in the East of A.D. 1877," translated by Mírzá Kázim, Professor of Natural Sciences in the Dáru'l-Funún College of Tíhrán.

Some persons ascribe the original foundation and inception of this paper to Mírzá Ḥusayn Khán (son of the late Mírzá Yúsuf Khán Mustasháru'd-Dawla of Tabríz) who is at present resident in Paris and was formerly physician to the Zillu's-Sultán, and say that he was its founder and originator.

See Rabino, No. 156, according to whom it first appeared (under the patronage of the Zillu's-Sultán) on the 2nd of Jumáda i, A.H. 1296 (= April 24, 1879), and came to an end on the 12th of Muharram, A.H. 1308 (= August 28, 1890).

Farhang (Culture).

فرهنگ

A weekly paper printed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of the I'tizadu'l-'Ulamá Murtazá-yi-Sharíf.

See Rabino, No. 157. I possess No. 2, which is dated the 19th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1325 (= June 30, 1907). It comprises 4 pp. of 12" x 6¾". Yearly subscription, 12 qráns in Tíhrán, postage extra in other parts of Persia, 3 roubles in Russia, 7 francs in Europe.

(264)

Faryád (The Lament).

فرياد

A weekly paper printed in Urmiya in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mírzá Maḥmúd Ghaní-záda, editor of the Shafaq and Bü Qalamún (q.v.). It was written partly in Persian and partly in Turkish.

See Rabino, No. 158. I possess No. 22, which is dated the 27th of Sha'ban, A.H. 1325 (= Oct. 5, 1907). It comprises 4 pp. of 11" x 7¼". Yearly subscription, 12 qráns in Urmiya, 18 qráns elsewhere in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia, 50 piastres in Turkey, and 12 francs in Europe.

(265)

Fikr (Thought).

فکر

A weekly paper printed in Tabríz in A.H. 1330 (= A.D. 1912). Its proprietor and chief contributor is an Armenian named Alexander Dir Wartáníyáns, one of the teachers in the Armenian College. This paper was founded after the Russian aggressions and executions of the Liberal and Nationalist leaders, the suppression of all the newspapers, the entry of Šamad Khán Shujá'u'd-Dawla of Marágha into Tabríz, and the triumph of violent reaction (Muḥarram, A.H. 1330 = January, 1912), at the secret instigation of the Russians and with the encouragement of Šamad Khán, in order to glorify the actions of the Russians in Persia and to belittle the Constitution. It may be considered the only Persian newspaper in Persia which is an open traitor to its country. Amongst Persian newspapers it has, indeed, but one rival in this respect, namely the Transcaspian Gazette (Majmú'a-i-Máwará-yi-Baḥr-i-Khazar), published at 'Ishq-ábád, which will be mentioned presently.

As this paper was not started until after the publication of Rabino's Work, it is naturally not mentioned by him, nor have I seen it, though quotations from it amply sufficient to prove its detestable and unnatural tone have been published in the Ḥablu'l-Matn and other papers.

Fikr-i-Istiqbál (The Thought of the Future).

فكر استقبال

A paper printed in Constantinople in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of 'Alí Sharíf-záda of Tabríz. The first number was dated the 21st of Sha'bán, A.H. 1328 (= Aug. 28, 1910).

See Rabino, No. 159. I possess No. 1, which comprises 8 pp. of $8\frac{3}{4}'' \times 5\frac{1}{4}''$. The subscription price is not mentioned.

Faláḥat-i-Muẓaffarí (Muẓaffarí Agriculture).

فلاحت مظفری

A monthly scientific paper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1318 (= A.D. 1900-1) under the management of the College of Agriculture, and treating of agricultural matters.

See Rabino, No. 160, according to whom the second number appeared on the first of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1318 (= Sept. 26, 1900). I possess No. 2 of the First and

No. 16 of the Second Year, the latter dated Šafar, A.H. 1325; but if the paper was founded in A.H. 1318, as stated above, this must be an error (easily made with Arabic figures) for A.H. 1320 (= May–June, 1902). It comprises 16 pp. of 7" × 4½". Yearly subscription, 6 qrâns in Tihrán, 8 qrâns elsewhere in Persia, and 12 qrâns abroad.

Fawá'id-i-Ámma (Public Benefits).

فوائد عامة

A weekly paper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907). Its editor and chief contributor was the notorious Yúsuf Khán of Herát, who was also the editor of the Kilid-i-Siyásí ("Political Key"), and who was responsible for the recent disturbances in Mashhad (April, 1912) and the bombardment of the Holy Shrine of the Imám Rizá (Rabí' ii, A.H. 1330 = March–April, 1912). The editor of this paper had formerly resided in Mashhad, and was suspected of being connected with the Russian Consulate there, and of being an instrument in their hands. Soon after the granting of the Constitution he came to Tihrán and founded this paper and the Kilid-i-Siyásí. He wrote chiefly against the English. [He was captured and shot by the Persians on May 23, 1912.]

See Rabino, No. 161. Not in my possession.

From the Qasim-ul-Akhbar of June-July, 1907

7. Each consists of a single lithographed sheet, with rude cartoons on one or both sides, measuring $12\frac{1}{2}'' \times 7\frac{3}{4}''$. The writing is a large but clumsy ta'liq. Yearly subscription, 8 qrâns in Tihân, 12 qrâns elsewhere in Persia.

(272)

Qânûn (The Law).

قانون

A paper printed in London in A.H. 1307 (= A.D. 1889-90), edited and written by Mîrzâ Malkom Khân Nâzîmû'd-Dawla. The entry of this paper into Persia was forbidden, so that numbers of it were highly prized by such as possessed them. For the same reason, after the proclamation of the Constitution, in order to increase the number of copies it was reprinted by Hâshim Âqâ Rabi'-zâda.

See Rabino, No. 163, who states that the reprint was made in A.H. 1326, and that he had seen 24 numbers of it. I possess a complete set of the original London edition, of which 41 numbers appeared, the first on Feb. 20, 1890. For further details, see my History of the Persian Revolution, pp. 35-42. Each number comprised 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{3}{4}''$.

Qazwîn.

قزوین

A paper printed in Qazwîn twice a week in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Mîrzâ Abu'l-Qâsim. In politics it was Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 164. I possess No. 21 of the First Year, dated the 29th of Jumâda ii, A.H. 1328 (= July 8, 1910), and No. 16 of the Second Year, dated the end of Jumâda i, A.H. 1329 (= May 29, 1911). One contains 8 and the other 4 pages of $12\frac{1}{4}'' \times 7''$. Yearly subscription, 10 qrâns in Qazwîn, 12 qrâns elsewhere in Persia.

Kâshifu'l-Haqâ'iq (The Revealer of Truths).

کاشف الحقایق

A paper printed in Tihân twice a week in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Mîrzâ Habibu'llâh Khân, known as "Gospodin," director of the college called Madrasa-i-Waṭan.

See Rabino, No. 165, who states correctly that the paper was published at Rasht, and that only one number appeared on the sixth of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1325 (=Jan. 10, 1908). This number I possess. It comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 12 grîns in Rasht, 18 grîns elsewhere in Persia, 10 francs in Europe, 4 roubles in the Caucasus, and 10 rupees in India.

Kakhwâ (The Star).

کَکْه‌وَ

A political paper in the Chaldaean (Syriac) language printed in Urmiya in A.H. 1326 (=A.D. 1908) under the editorship of Yûkhannâ Mûshâ.

Not in Rabino, and not seen. I have a manuscript note in Persian in my copy of Rabino (I think by the author of this treatise, Mîrzâ Muḥammad 'Alî Khân "Tarbiyat"), to the effect that besides this paper, which was political and national, the Chaldaean or Syrian Christians of Urmiya had two other newspapers in their language, both religious, the one Protestant and the other Catholic.

Kirmân.

کِرمَن

Rabino (No. 166) mentions a paper of this name (omitted by Mîrzâ Muḥammad 'Alî Khân) printed at Kirmân under the editorship of Mîrzâ Ghulâm Ḥusayn of Kirmân, and adds that it was Democrat in politics and was started on the 17th of Rabî'î, A.H. 1329 (=March 18, 1911). I do not possess a copy.

(279)

Kirmânshâh.

کِرمَن‌شَاه

A weekly newspaper printed at Kirmânshâh in A.H. 1327 (=A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Faṣṭhû'l-Mutakallimîn. Democrat in politics.

See Rabino, No. 167, who says that it first appeared on the 3rd of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1327 (=Dec. 16, 1909), and was published for three months at very irregular intervals, after which it was suspended. I possess No. 11, which comprises 4 pp. of $12'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$, and is dated the 7th of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1327 (=Dec. 20, 1909), which hardly agrees with the date of inception given above. Yearly subscription, 12 grîns in Kirmânshâh, 15 grîns elsewhere in Persia, 8 francs abroad.

(280)

Kashgúl (The Alms-gourd).

كشكول

A weekly illustrated comic paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Majdu'l-Islám, also editor of the Nidá-yi-Waṭan and Muḥákamat.

See Rabino, No. 168, who gives the date of No. 2 (really No. 4) as the 22nd of Šafar, A.H. 1325 (= April 6, 1907). I possess Nos. 4-39 of the First Year, and Nos. 1-32 of the Second, extending from April 1907 to May 1908. Each number comprises 4 pp. of $12\frac{1}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$ ", of which as many as three are often occupied by rude caricatures. The writing is ta'lliq. Yearly subscription, 8 gráns in Tīhrán, 10 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 5 francs in Europe, 3 roubles in the Caucasus and Russia, 4 rupees in India.

Kashgúl (The Alms-gourd).

كشكول

A weekly comic paper lithographed in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Majdu'l-Islám, editor of the above-mentioned Tīhrán Kashgúl.

See Rabino, No. 168, according to whom 23 numbers were issued in Iṣfahán between the 12th of Rabī' 1, A.H. 1327 (= April 3, 1909), and the 9th of Shawwál (= Oct. 24) of the same year. I do not possess a copy.

(282)

Kilíd-i-Siyásí (The Political Key).

كلید سیاسی

A weekly paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Yúsuf Khán of Herát, who used to sign himself "Muḥammad Yúsuf Khán, Sardár-i-Muḥájir-i-Hirawí." As has been already mentioned in connection with the newspaper Faṭwá'id-i-'Ámma (No. 268 supra), this person recently raised the standard of Autocracy at Mashhad in the name of Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh, gathered round him a number of Reactionaries, filled Khurásán with disturbance for a long while, gave great trouble to the Government, and finally took sanctuary in the Shrine of the Imám Rizá, until at length he afforded a pretext for the Russian aggressions against that Holy Place (in April, 1912).

See Rabino, No. 169. I possess No. 3, dated the 7th of Rábr 1, A.H. 1325 (= April 20, 1907). It comprises 32 pp. (numbered 17-48) of $7 \times 3\frac{1}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 10 gráns in Tīhrán, 12 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 3 roubles in Russia, and 4 rupees in India.

کوکب درّی ناصری

A paper lithographed in Tīhrān in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Nāẓimu'l-Islām of Kirmān, editor of the paper Naw-rūs ("New Year's Day," q.v.), and author of the Tārikh-i-Bidāri-yi-Īrāniyān ("History of the Persian Awakening"). Forty numbers of this paper were published yearly.

See Rabino, No. 172. I possess No. 12 of the Third Year, dated the 22nd of Rabī' ii, A.H. 1325 (= June 4, 1907). It comprises 8 pp. of 12½" x 6½", and is lithographed in a fine large naskh. Yearly subscription, 20 grins in Tīhrān, 25 grins elsewhere in Persia, 5 roubles in Russia, 12 francs elsewhere.

Ganjína-i-Funún (The Treasury of Arts).

کنجینه فنون

A fortnightly scientific magazine lithographed at Tabríz in A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902-3) under the management of the "Tarbiyat" Library. This periodical continued publication for just a year, and published 24 numbers, each of which comprised four parts. The first, entitled Ganjína-i-Funún, was a scientific and technical miscellany; the second, entitled Hunar-ámúẓ ("The Instructor in Arts") was a book compiled by the writer (Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí Khán "Tarbiyat"); the third, entitled Tamad-dunát-i-qadíma ("Ancient Civilizations"), was translated from the French of Gustave le Bon by Sayyid Ḥasan Taqí-záda; while the fourth, entitled Safína-i-ghawwasa ("The Diving Ship," or "The Submarine") was translated from the French of Jules Verne, the novelist, by Mírzá Yúsuf Khán I'tiṣámul-Mulk.

See Rabino, No. 175, according to whom the magazine in question began on the 1st of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1320 (= March 1, 1903), and ended on the same date of A.H. 1321 (= Feb. 18, 1904). I do not possess this publication.

A newspaper published at Tihrán in French in A.D. 1876 (= A.H. 1293). See above in the Introduction, pp. 16-17.

See Rabino, No. 227, who states that it began (and ended) on Feb. 5, 1876.

Mujáhid (The National Volunteer).

مجاهد

A paper printed in Tabríz in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) and appearing every other day, edited by Sayyid Muḥammad Sha-bistari, known as Abu'z-Ziyá, editor of the papers al-Hadíd and Írán-i-Naw. In consequence of the publication in its last number, which coincided with the Abortive Coup d'État (of December, 1907), or Event of the Artillery Barracks (Waqa'i-Túpkhána), of a letter from Baghdád containing an attack on Sayyid Kázim of Yazd, a mujtahid residing at Najaf, it incurred the hatred and vengeance of certain fanatics, and its editor was subjected to a severe bastinado, and was expelled from the city. This paper was published on behalf of the Social Democrats, and served as their organ.

See Rabino, No. 178, who gives the 9th of Sharbân, A.H. 1325 (=Sept. 17, 1907), as the date of inception, and adds that No. 22 was dated the 9th of Dhu'l-Qa'da (=Dec. 14) of the same year. I possess Nos. 1, 20, 21 and 22, which comprise 4 pp. of $10\frac{1}{4}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 15 qrâns in Tabriz, 20 qrâns elsewhere in Persia, and 25 qrâns abroad.

مجاهد

A paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907-8).

See Rabino, No. 179, who says that only five numbers were published, the first on the 9th of Shawwâl, A.H. 1325 (=Nov. 15, 1907), and the last on the 2nd of Muharram, A.H. 1326 (=Feb. 5, 1908). I possess Nos. 1 and 4, which comprise 4 pp. of $12'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 12 qrâns in Gilân, 15 qrâns elsewhere in Persia, 6 roubles in Russia.

(299)

Majlis (The Assembly).

مجلس

A paper printed in Tih-rân, which first appeared on the 8th of Shawwâl, A.H. 1324 (=Nov. 25, 1906), edited by Sayyid Muḥammad Šâdiq (son of the well-known Sayyid Muḥammad-i-Ṭabāṭabâ'î), and written by the Adibul-Mamâlik, editor of the Adab (q.v.). This was the first paper in Persia which reported the debates of the National Assembly after it was opened, on which account it achieved a great celebrity, so that in the provinces it was generally supposed that it was connected with the Assembly. After the restoration of the Constitution (in July, 1909) it again began to appear under the supervision of Shaykh Yahyâ of Kâshân, a former contributor to the daily (Tih-rân) Hablu'l-Matîn, and continued publication until these latter times (end of 1911 or beginning of 1912). During the Second Constitutional Period the politics of this paper were Moderate¹.

شاد باش ای مجلس ملی که بینم عنقریب 'از تو آید درد ملت را در این دوران طیب'

"Hail, O National Assembly! For I see that at this epoch there will shortly issue forth from thee a healer for the Nation's ills."

See Rabino, No. 180. I possess a fairly complete collection of this paper. It underwent several enlargements. Thus No. 1 comprised 4 pp. of $11\frac{3}{4}'' \times 7''$; No. 8 increased in size to $14\frac{1}{2}'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$; while No. 37 of the Third Year still further increased to $21'' \times 14''$. The yearly subscription also increased from 45 grāns in Tīhrān, 55 grāns in the provinces, and 26 francs abroad, to 60 grāns in Tīhrān, 75 grāns in the provinces, 40 francs abroad, and 16 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus.

Majmū'a-i-Akhlāq (Ethical Miscellany).

مجموعهٔ اخلاق

A magazine printed every ten days in Tīhrán in A.H. 1323 (=A.D. 1905-6) under the editorship of Mīrzā 'Alī Akbar Khān (Muṣawwir 'Alī), and under the patronage of the Anjuman-i-Ukhuwwat ("Society of Brotherhood") of Zāhiru'd-Dawla, that is to say the followers of the Mystical Path of Ṣafī 'Alī Shāh. This paper discussed ethical matters and was for the most part written by Mīrzā Ibrāhīm Khān, Deputy for Iṣfahān in the Second National Assembly.

See Rabino, No. 183. I possess Nos. 2-10, and 12-15, which are not dated. Each contains 8 pp. of $7\frac{1}{2}'' \times 4\frac{1}{4}''$, and is priced at 4 shāhīs. No yearly subscription is mentioned. The magazine contains a great deal of poetry, and professedly avoids political and religious matters.

مجموعهٔ ماورای بحر خزر

Majmū'a-i-Mā-warā-yi Bahr-i-Khazar(The Trans-Caspian Review).

A weekly newspaper printed at 'Ishqābād (Askabad) in A.H. 1322 (=A.D. 1904-5) under the editorship of the Russian Fedoroff. This paper was the instrument of Russian policy and the vehicle of Russian political aims in Persia. It was founded during the Russo-Japanese War to proclaim the Russian advances and victories, and was distributed gratuitously throughout Persia by the Russian Consulates.

See Rabino, No. 184, according to whom No. 4 of the Fourth Year was dated the 13th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1327 (=Nov. 26, 1909). I possess Nos. 3, 4 and 8 of the Third Year. Each contains 4-8 pp. of $13'' \times 8\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 3 roubles in Russia, $4\frac{1}{2}$ roubles abroad.

Muḥākamat-i-Yazd (Judgements of Yazd).

محاکمات یزد

A weekly paper lithographed in Yazd in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Muḥammad Šādiq.

See Rabino, No. 186, who states that after the arrival at Yazd of the Bakhtiyári Sardár-i-Jang, the newspaper Ma'rifát (see below, No. 328) was published under the title of Muḥākamát, but not more than two or three numbers were printed and circulated. I possess a copy of No. 2 of the First Year, which is dated the 17th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1327 (= Nov. 30, 1909). It comprises 4 pp. lithographed in large, clear ta'tlīq, of 11" x 6 $\frac{3}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 16 qráns in Yazd, 20 qráns elsewhere in Persia, 23 qráns abroad.

Mudarris-i-Fársi (The Persian Teacher).

مدرس فارسی

A monthly magazine published in Bombay, partly lithographed and partly printed in small (book) form, in A.D. 1883 (= A.H. 1300-1). Its contents were partly Persian and partly English, and, as its name implies, were chiefly educational and connected with the study of the Persian language. It treated of Persian grammar and literature, and contained Persian stories, anecdotes, proverbs, specimens of calligraphy, biographies, and notices of old poets and Kings of Persia, accompanied in most cases by English translations. Its first number was dated Thursday, January 1, 1883, and the following verse of poetry was printed on the top of each copy :

ز لایِ حمد و نعتِ اولی است بر خاکِ ادبِ خفتن
سجودی می توان کردن درودی می توان گفتن

A complete collection of three years (36 numbers) of this periodical is preserved in the Library of the British Museum under the class-mark 757.cc.20. The last (36th) number is dated December, 1885.

This periodical was edited by Khán Bahádúr G. M. Munshí and his sons. Each number comprised 16 pp., and the yearly subscription was 4 rupees, if paid in advance, and 5 rupees if paid at the end of the year. At the beginning of each number is written in English: "to save much time trouble and money." In the number for August, 1885, appears an advertisement of the Farhang, published at Işfahán, and an encomium on it, and in subsequent numbers news is occasionally quoted from that paper.

In the later numbers of the Mudarris-i-Fársí there appear advertisements of a paper entitled Mufarriḥu'l-Qulúb, which is highly praised, and of which it writes as follows: "This is a weekly Persian newspaper published at Karáchí in Sind, and is the best Persian newspaper in India. It has appeared regularly for thirty years, and it is now the thirtieth year of its publication. Its Persian style is very good, and entirely accords with the spoken and written idiom of Persia. It contains the latest news from every country, and is in every respect a first-class newspaper. It is chiefly maintained and published by subventions from the rulers, princes, nobility and gentry of Persia, Turkey, Afghánistán, India, Europe, etc. Its proprietors and publishers possess testimonials, guarantees and letters from most of the above-mentioned rulers, nobles and gentry which afford ample evidence as to the excellence of its style and taste. It is especially suitable for the use of students of Persian in India. It is edited and published by two learned, accomplished and well-known persons, Mirzá Muḥammad Jafar (the editor) and Mírzá Muḥammad Sádiq of Mashhad, Persian Consul at Karáchi. Yearly subscription for Indian nobles, 12 rupees, if paid in advance, and 24 rupees if post-paid: for people of the middle class, 10 and 20 rupees, respectively: and for students, 5 and 10 rupees respectively."

Madí (? Media).

مدی

A weekly paper printed in Tihrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8), edited and written by Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Alí, known as Miḥabá, on account of his sentiments with regard to Ancient Persia and the pure Persian language. After the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, and the bombardment of the Majlis, he became acquainted with the celebrated M. Panoff, the correspondent of certain Liberal Russian papers in Persia, who also took part in the Gilán Rebellion in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), at the time when the Russian Legation had expelled him from Tihrán. He accompanied him to St Petersburg under the name of "Mírzá Shaykh 'Alí the Mujtahid," and endeavoured to influence public opinion in Russia in a manner favourable to Persia by means of public speeches.

Mirát-i-Janúb (The Mirror of the South).

مرآت جنوب

A weekly newspaper lithographed at Kirmán in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Sayyid Jalálu'd-Dín Ḥusaynī Mu'ayyidu'l-Ashráf.

See Rabino. No. 187. I possess a copy of No. 1. which is dated the 3rd of Muḥarram, A.H. 1329 (= Jan. 4, 1911). It is lithographed in a large, clear naskh, and comprises 4 pp. of 11½" × 6½". Yearly subscription, 20 grāns in Kirmān. This number contains, on p. 1, a portrait of Mīrzā Husayn Khān Sardār-i-Nusrat.

(314)

Mirātu's-Safar wa Mishkātu'l-Ḥaḍar مرآة السفر و مشکوة الحضر
(The Mirror of Travel and Lamp of Sojourn).

A newspaper published in Rabī' i, A.H. 1288 (= May-June, 1871) on the march and at the halting-places during Nāṣiru'd-Dīn Shāh's summer journey to Māzandarān. It gave an account of the events of the journey from start to finish, and was printed and edited by Muḥammad Ḥasan Khān I'timādu's-Saltāna. In all thirteen numbers were published.

This information is supplied in a letter from H.E. the I'timādu's-Saltāna. The paper is not mentioned by Rabino, and is not otherwise known.

(315)

Mirrīkh (Mars).

مَرِّخ

A newspaper lithographed in Tīhrān in A.H. 1296 (= A.D. 1879) under the editorship of Mīrzā Ḥasan Khān San'ū'd-Dawla. The first number was dated Muḥarram 5 of that year (= Dec. 30, 1878) and the last number the 16th of Jumāda ii, A.H. 1297 (= May 26, 1880). In all eighteen numbers were published. This paper took the place of the Rūzu'na-i-Niẓāmī ("Military Journal") which preceded it, and would seem to have been founded by Mīrzā Husayn Khān *Sipahsālār*¹. See No. 191 supra.

Most of the above particulars are derived from information supplied by Zakī' u'l-Mulk. The paper is not mentioned by Rabino, nor have I seen it.

Musāwāt (Equality).

مساوات

A weekly paper printed in Tīhrān in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Sayyid Muḥammad Rizā of Shīrāz, and ¹ The I'timādu's-Saltāna in one of his letters attributes the foundation and circulation of this newspaper to Prince Kāmran Mīrzā, entitled Nāṭhu's-Saltāna, the son of Nāṣiru'd-Dīn Shāh, who published it with the assistance of the present Sardār-i-Kull. It came to an end, however, after only twelve or thirteen numbers had appeared. It is, however, highly probable, nay, almost certain, that the details mentioned in the text are more correct and accurate, and that the other particulars refer to some other paper of which we have no further information.

Sayyid 'Abdu'r-Rahím of Khalkhál. This paper, by reason of its extreme boldness and steadfastness in Constitutional Principles, was one of the foremost champions in the Press of the First Constitution. It achieved great notoriety in consequence of its criticism of the Press Law, on the promulgation of which it published a number full of idle stories, fables and phantasies, saying that henceforth, in consequence of the above-mentioned Law, everything except such matters would be prohibited; and also in consequence of a celebrated article entitled "How is the Sháh?" directed against Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh. These actions led to the suppression of the paper and legal proceedings against the editor. The editor of this paper, Sayyid Muḥammad Rizá, was one of the eight persons whose surrender Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh demanded of the First National Assembly, but after the bombardment of the Majlis (June 23, 1908) he escaped and could not be captured. Finally he succeeded in reaching the Caucasus, whence he made his way to Tabríz, where, during the Revolution and siege of that city, he again published the Musáwát. Finally he was elected by Tabríz as one of the Members of the Second National Assembly. In politics the paper was thorough-going Constitutionalist and Liberal.

See Rabino, No. 188, who says that in all 25 numbers of the Tíhrán edition appeared, the first on the 5th of Ramazán, A.H. 1325 (= Oct. 12, 1907), and the last at the end of Rabí' i, A.H. 1326 (= May 2, 1908). I possess a fairly complete collection.

A paper lithographed in Tabríz in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7) under the editorship of Mīrzá Abul-Qásim of Tabríz.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(321)

Muṣawwar (The Illustrated).

مصور

Inserted on the authority of Rabino, No. 189, who gives no particulars. Perhaps what he had in view was the Illustrated History of the War in the Far East, which was published in parts in Tīhrān.

(322)

Muzaffarí.

مظفری

A fortnightly, and subsequently weekly, paper, first lithographed and subsequently printed in Bushire in A.H. 1319 (= A.D. 1901-2), under the editorship of 'Alí Áqá of Shīrāz.

See Rabino, No. 190, who states that the paper was Democrat in politics, and that No. 2 was dated the 15th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1319 (= Jan. 25, 1902). I possess a large collection of this paper from the First to the Tenth Year (A.H. 1319-1329 = Jan. 1902-April, 1911). Of these, Nos. 2-66 (Jan. 1902-Sept. 1904) are lithographed, and the remainder printed. Each number comprises 16 pp. of 9" x 5". Yearly subscription, 22 grāns in Bushire, 28 grāns elsewhere in Persia, 8 rupees in India, 14 francs in Europe, Turkey and Egypt, and 5 roubles in Russia and Turkistán.

Muzaffarí.

مظفری

A paper printed in Mecca in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of 'Alí Áqá of Shíráz, editor of the homonymous Bushíre paper mentioned immediately above. Only one number was published during the season of the Pilgrimage.

See Rabino, No. 190, according to whom this paper (which I have not seen) first appeared in Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1326 (= Dec. 1908-Jan. 1909).

(324)

Mazhar (The Manifestation).

مظهر

Of this weekly paper, not mentioned by either Rabino or the author of this treatise, I possess one copy. No. 13, dated the 27th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1327 (= Dec. 10, 1909). It is printed at Tiflis, partly in Turkish, partly in Persian, and bears a superscription in Russian. It comprises 4 pp. of $16\frac{1}{2}'' \times 10''$, and contains on page 1 a portrait of Sardár-i-Humáyún, the Persian Consul-General at Tiflis. Yearly subscription, 6 roubles. It describes itself as:—

ادبی سیاسی اقتصادی و وطنه خدمت ایدر هفته‌ك ترك غزته‌سی

—"a weekly literary, political, economic and patriotic Turkish newspaper."

(325)

Ma'árif (Instruction).

معارف

A paper lithographed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1317 (= A.D. 1899-1900) under the supervision of the Society of Instruction (Anjuman-i-Ma'árif).

Not in Rabino, unless this be merely the early beginning of the next following.

(326)

Ma'árif (Instruction).

معارف

A weekly paper printed in Tíhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Shaykh Muḥammad 'Alí Bahjat of Dizfúl, editor of the magazine entitled Da'watul-Haqq.

See Rabino, No. 191, who gives the date of No. 16 as the 12th of Šálar, A.H. 1325 (= March 27, 1907). I possess Nos. 13, 25, 31, and the supplement to 10. As the paper appeared weekly, it appears by reckoning backwards that it began to be published in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7), not 1325, a fact also indicated on each issue, where "1324" stands immediately beneath the title. Each number comprises 8 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 17 qrâns in Tihrán, 20 qrâns in the provinces, and 12 francs abroad. In No. 36 the title is printed in naskh instead as heretofore in ta'liq.

Ma'árif (Instruction).

معارف

A paper printed twice a week in Tihrán in Sha'bán, A.H. 1326 (= Sept., 1908) under the management of the Society of Learning (Anjuman-i-Ma'árif).

See Rabino, No. 192, and No. 326 supra, of which I suspect it to be a continuation. Not seen by the Translator.

Ma'rifat (Knowledge).

معرفت

A weekly paper lithographed at Tabríz in A.H. 1319 (= A.D. 1901-2) under the editorship of Mírzá 'Abdu'lláh Khán, son of Mírzá Taqí, President of the Courts of Justice (Şadr-i-'Adliyya), one of the Jahán-sháhi Sayyids of Tabríz, and Director of the Ma'rifat College.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(329)

Ma'rifat (Knowledge).

معرفت

A weekly paper "jelly-graphed," and subsequently lithographed, in Yazd, in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of Shaykh Abu'l-Qásim Iftikháru'l-'Ulamá.

See Rabino, No. 193. I possess Nos. 6 and 8. The former, dated the 15th of Muharram, A.H. 1326 (= Feb. 18, 1908), is "jelly-graphed"; the latter, dated the 18th of Ramazán, A.H. 1327 (= Oct. 3, 1909), is lithographed. From the long interval separating these two numbers, as well as from sundry differences apparent in arrangement and production, I am disposed to believe that in reality two independent papers named Ma'rifat were published in Yazd, one ("jelly-graphed") towards the end of A.H. 1325, and another (lithographed) about the middle of A.H. 1327. In size the two agree (4 pp. of $10\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6''$), but the yearly subscriptions differ as follows. No. 6 (the "jelly-graph"), 20 qrâns in Yazd, 23 qrâns elsewhere in Persia; No. 8 (the lithograph), 10 qrâns in Yazd, 12 qrâns elsewhere in Persia. No editor's name appears on No. 6.

Ma'rifatu'l-Akhláq (Knowledge of Ethics).

معرفة الاخلاق

A paper published in Tihrán in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(331)

Miftáhu'z-Zafar (The Key of Victory).

مفتاح الظفر

A weekly scientific paper lithographed at Calcutta in A.H. 1315 (= A.D. 1897-8) under the editorship of Mírzá Sayyid Hasan of Káshán, afterwards editor of the Tihrán Hablu'l-Matn.See Rabino, No. 194. I possess Nos. 13 and 4 (sic) of the Second Year, the former dated the 26th of Dhu'l-Qa'da. A.H. 1316 (= April 4, 1899), and the latter the 25th of Jumádá I, A.H. 1317 (= Oct. 1, 1899). The number of pages varies from 4 to 8 of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$, lithographed in a rather large and ungraceful ta'liq. Yearly subscription, 10 rupees in India and the Persian Gulf, 3½ qráns in Persia and Afghánistán, 2½ francs in China, Japan, Russia and Europe, and 5 mejidiyyés in Turkey.

(332)

Mufarrihu'l-Qulúb (The Rejoicer of Hearts).

مفرح القلوب

A weekly newspaper published at Karáchi (Sind) in A.H. 1302-3 (= A.D. 1885) and edited by Mírzá Muḥammad Ja'far and Mírzá Muḥammad Šádiq of Mashhad, Persian Consul at Karáchi.

See above, No. 310, under the Mudarris-i-Fársi, through which alone it is known to us.

(333)

Mukáfát (Recompense).

مكافات

A paper published in Khúy (Ázarbáyján) in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of Mírzá Áqá Khán Hirandí, director of the Madrasa-i-Musáwát ("College of Equality"). Most of the articles in this paper were from the pen of Abu'l-Hasan Khán, Muḥammad 'Alí-záda, entitled Sa'idu'l-Mamálik, and Amír-i-Ḥishmat, who at that time held Khúy and Salmás on behalf of the Revolutionaries. Its proprietor was Mírzá Núru'lláh Yakání. In politics the paper was Revolutionary.See Rabino, No. 195. I possess No. 5, dated the 24th of Šafar, A.H. 1327 (= March 18, 1909). It comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Price of each copy, one 'Abbásí.

(334)

Maktab (The School).

مکتب

A paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1323 (= A.D. 1905-6) under the editorship of Hájji Mírzá Ḥasan of Tabríz, known as Rushdiyya.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(335)

Mu'ayyad (Aided).

مؤید

A paper "jelly-graphed" in Láhiján in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8).

See Rabino, No. 196, on whose authority it is here inserted.

(336)

Mahdí Hammál (*Mahdí the Porter*¹).

مهدی حامل

A paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Akbar-záda. Only one number of it appeared.

See Rabino, No. 197, on whose authority it is here inserted. The date of publication was the 16th of Ramazán, A.H. 1328 (= Sept. 21, 1910).

Mízán (The Balance).

میزان

An illustrated comic paper lithographed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911) under the editorship of Fakhru'l-Wá'izín of Káshán. In politics it was Democrat.

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(338)

Mitq (Thought).

میتق

A paper printed at Tabríz in the Armenian language in A.H. 1330 (= A.D. 1912) under the editorship of Alexander Dir Wartáníyáns, also editor of the Persian Fikr. (See No. 265 supra.)

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

¹ Mahdí Hammál ("the Porter") was well known in Tīhrán as a man of immense height, bulk and strength, and of voracious appetite. He would eat 1½ or 2 maunds of bread and cheese, and could carry the weight of a kharwár on his shoulders. His voracity has become proverbial.

(339)

Násiri.

ناصری

A paper lithographed in Tabríz every ten days in A.H. 1311 (= A.D. 1893-4) under the editorship of Mullá Muḥammad Nadīm-bāshī ("Chief Courtier"), director of the Muẓaffarī College in Tabríz, and subsequently Nadīm's-Sultān and Minister of the Press. The paper was subsequently edited by Iqbālū'l-Kuttāb, and finally by Hájji Mirzá Mas'ūd Khān Ṣafā'u'l-Mamālik, son of Hájji Sayyid Ḥasan Adhū'l-Mulk of Tabríz. It was semi-official, and was even considered as one of the official newspapers, and continued to be published for nearly seven years. Its polemics against the Constantinople Akhṭar ("Star," q.v. No. 34 supra) deserve attention.

See Rabino, No. 198. I possess No. 33 of the Third Year, dated the first of Ramazān, A.H. 1314 (= Feb. 3, 1897). It comprises 4 pp. of $12\frac{1}{2} \times 6\frac{1}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 16 grāns in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, 40 piastres in Turkey, and 5 rupees in India.

Náqūr (The Clarion).

ناقور

A paper lithographed twice a week in Iṣfahān in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of Mirzá Masīḥ Túysirkání. The comic or satirical portion of this paper, entitled Zisht u Zibā ("Foul and Fair"), was written in a very agreeable literary style. In politics it was thorough-going Liberal and Constitutionalist.

See Rabino, No. 200, according to whom 25 numbers appeared in all, the first on the 21st of Dhū'l-Qa'ida, A.H. 1326 (= Nov. 25, 1908). I possess No. 9, dated the 24th of Šafar, A.H. 1327 (= March 17, 1909). It comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{3}{4} \times 6\frac{1}{2}$ ". Yearly subscription, 14 grāns in Iṣfahān, 17 grāns elsewhere in Persia. Lithographed in good nash.

Nála-i-Millat (The Nation's Cry).

نالهء ملت

A paper lithographed in Tabríz in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of Mirzá Áqá, editor of the Istiqlál. In politics the paper was thorough-going Liberal and Constitutionalist.

See Rabino, No. 199. I possess No. 38 of the First Year, dated the 14th of Muharram, A.H. 1326 (= Feb. 17, 1908), which seems to show that the paper was founded in the latter part of A.H. 1325, not in 1326. It comprises 4 pp. of $12\frac{1}{4} \times 8\frac{1}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 8 grāns in Tabríz, 10 grāns elsewhere in Persia, 4 roubles in Russia.

Náma-i-Ḥaḡíqat (The Letter of Truth).

نامه حقیقت

A paper published in Ṭihrán in A.H. 1326 (= A.D. 1908-9).

Not in Rabino, and not seen.

(343)

Náma-i-Waṭan (The Letter of the Fatherland).

نامه وطن

A paper lithographed in Ḥaydarábád in the Deccan in A.H. 1326 (?) (= A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of the Ṣaḥḥáf-báshí, a fugitive from Ṭihrán. The articles of this paper dealt with the supernatural, and it laid down sundry religious laws.

See Rabino, No. 201. I possess No. 7 of the Second Year, dated Ṣafar, A.H. 1326 (= March, 1908). It comprises 16 pp. of 10½" × 6½", lithographed in poor ta'liq. No price is indicated.

(344)

Naját (Salvation).

نجات

A newspaper printed at first once and subsequently twice a week in Ṭihrán in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909), before the capture of Ṭihrán by the National Armies, under the editorship of Mírzá Muḥammad of Khurásán, editor of the paper Ḥuḡúq ("Rights," q.v.), and afterwards Member of the Second National Assembly. In consequence of a somewhat Liberal article, this paper was suspended by Sa'du'd-Dawla's Cabinet, which suspension provided one of the causes which led to the attack of the National Volunteers (Mujáhidin) of Qazwín on Ṭihrán. After the capture of Ṭihrán it again resumed publication. In politics it was thorough-going Liberal and Constitutionalist, but not Democratic as Rabino asserts.

See Rabino, No. 202. I possess Nos. 1, 6, 15, 18 and 25, the first dated the 3rd of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1327 (= June 22, 1909), and the last the 4th of Shawwál (= Oct. 19) of the same year. Contains 4 or 8 pp. of 12¼" × 6¾". Yearly subscription, 10 gráns in Ṭihrán, 17 elsewhere in Persia, and 15 francs abroad.

Naját (Salvation).

نجات

A "jelly-graphed" paper published in Rasht.

See Rabino, No. 203, on whose authority it is here inserted.

(346)

Naját (Salvation).

نجات

A paper printed in Khúy in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). In politics it was Democratic.

See Rabino, No. 204. Not seen by the translator.

(347)

Naját-i-Waṭan (The Country's Salvation).

نجات وطن

A paper published in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909).

See Rabino, No. 205, on whose authority it is here inserted. He adds that not more than seven or eight numbers were published.

Najaf.

نجف

A weekly paper printed at Najaf in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Sayyid Muslim Zawín-záda and Hájji Muḥammad ibn Hájji Ḥusayn, and owned by Shaykh Ḥusayn of Tíhrán.

See Rabino, No. 206. I possess No. 6, dated the 16th of Jumáda i. A.H. 1328 (= May 26, 1910). It comprises 8 pp. of $9\frac{1}{2}'' \times 6\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 25 piastres in Najaf, 30 piastres elsewhere in Turkey, 15 gráns in Persia, and 8 francs abroad.

Najm-i-Bákhtar (The Star of the West).

نجم باختر

See above under Payámbar-i-Bákhtar ("The Prophet of the West"), No. 96 supra.

See Rabino, No. 207. It was published at Washington.

(350)

Nidá-yi-Rasht (The Voice of Rasht).

ندای رشت

A paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911). Only two numbers of it appeared, the first, according to Rabino, on the 28th of Rabí' i, A.H. 1329 (= March 29, 1911), and the second on the 2nd of Rabí' ii (April 2) of the same year.

See Rabino, No. 208.

(351)

Nidá-yi-Islám (The Voice of Islám).

ندای اسلام

A weekly newspaper lithographed at Shíráz in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Sayyid Ziyá'u'd-Dín-i-Ṭabáṭabá'í of Yazd, editor of the newspapers Sharq and Barg (q.v.).

See Rabino, No. 209. I possess Nos. 7, 14, and 25. The first is dated the 11th of Šafar, A.H. 1325 (= March 26, 1907). Each number consists of from 4 to 8 pp. of 10" x 7"; lithographed (the earlier numbers in green ink) in a large and good naskh. Yearly subscription, 30 gráns in Shiráz, 36 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 40 gráns abroad.

(352)

Nidá-yi-Waṭan (The Country's Call).

ندای وطن

A weekly, subsequently bi-weekly, and finally, daily paper printed at Ṭihrán in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7) under the editorship of Majdu'l-Islám of Kirmán, editor of the newspapers Kashgúl and Muḥákamát (q.v.).

See Rabino, No. 210, who gives the 11th of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1324 (= Dec. 27, 1906) as the date of first issue. I possess a fairly complete set. Each number comprises from 4 to 8 pp. of 11½" x 6¾". Yearly subscription, 30 gráns in Ṭihrán, 36 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 5 mejdiyyés in Turkey and Egypt, 17 francs in America and Europe, 10 roubles in Russia, and 15 rupees in India.

Nidá-yi-Janúb (The Voice of the South).

ندای جنوب

Of this paper, which is not mentioned either by Mírzá Muḥammad 'Alí "Tarbiyat" or by Rabino, I possess one copy, No. 2, dated the 22nd of Dhu'l-Qa'da, A.H. 1329 (= Nov. 15, 1911). It comprises 8 pp. of 15" x 8¼", and was printed in Ṭihrán. Proprietor and chief contributor, Mírzá Báqir Khán, teacher and translator, of Tabríz; responsible editor, Muḥammad Báqir Khán Tangistání. Yearly subscription, 18 gráns in Ṭihrán, 20 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 22 gráns abroad. The paper is described in the title as founded in Shawwál, A.H. 1329 (= Sept.-Oct., 1911).

(354)

Nasím-i-Shimál (The Breeze of the North).

نسیم شمال

A paper printed in Rasht in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Sayyid-Ashraf. This was one of the best literary papers, and in particular contained many notable poems, both serious and satirical.

See Rabino, No. 211, according to whom it appeared at irregular intervals, the first issue on the 2nd of Sha'bán, A.H. 1325 (=Sept. 10, 1907), and the "Third Year" began with No. 69. I possess Nos. 9-12, 14, 16, 18, 19, 22, 23, 27, 33, 45, 48; Nos. 5 and 7 of the Third Year, No. 10 (dated the 2nd of Sha'bán, A.H. 1329 = July 29, 1911), and Nos. 12-14, 16. The numbering is somewhat erratic, and the intervals of publication were very irregular.

Nazmiyya (The Police).

نظمیه

A weekly illustrated newspaper lithographed in Tabriz in A.H. 1326 (=A.D. 1908-9) under the editorship of Mashhadí Maḥmúd Isgandání. The first number of it contains the portrait of Ijlálu'l-Mulk, Chief of the Police at Tabriz.

See Rabino, No. 212, who gives the name of the proprietor as Muḥammad 'Alí, and states that the first issue was on the 23rd of Rabi' i, A.H. 1326 (=April 25, 1908). I possess No. 1, which is lithographed in an indifferent ta'liq, and comprises 4 pp. of 12 $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 6 $\frac{1}{4}$ ". Yearly subscription, 8 gráns in Tabriz, 10 gráns elsewhere in Persia.

Naqsh-i-Jahán (The Picture of the World).

نقش جهان

An illustrated weekly paper lithographed in Iṣfahán in A.H. 1325 (=A.D. 1907-8), and published by the office of the newspaper Iṣfahán. (See No. 49 supra.)

See Rabino, No. 213, who gives the date of No. 1 as the 23rd of Shawwál, A.H. 1325 (=Nov. 29, 1907). I possess No. 1, which comprises 4 pp. of 11 $\frac{3}{4}$ " x 6", lithographed in ta'liq, with two cartoons. Yearly subscription, 12 gráns in Iṣfahán.

Naw-Bahár (Early Spring).

نوبهار

A paper printed in Mashhad twice a week in A.H. 1328 (=A.D. 1910), of which No. 1 was dated the 9th of Shawwál (=Oct. 14, 1910) of that year, under the editorship of the Maliku'sh-Shu'ará ("King of the Poets"), who signed under the nom de guerre of "M. Bahár." This paper had a special importance on account of its extreme boldness and fiery denunciations, especially against the Russian aggressions. Finally, in consequence of the complaints of the Russian Legation in Tihrán, the Ministry for Foreign Affairs ordered its suppression, but it subsequently resumed publication under the title of Tāza Bahár. (See No. 98 supra.) In politics this paper was Democrat.

See Rabino, No. 214. I possess Nos. 1, 28, 39 and 48, the first dated as above, the last the 12th of Jumáda i, A.H. 1329 (= May 11, 1911). Each comprises 4 pp. of $16\frac{1}{4}'' \times 10\frac{1}{2}''$. Yearly subscription, 25 gráns in Mashhad, 30 gráns elsewhere in Persia, 6 roubles abroad.

Naw-rúz (New Year's Day).

نوروز

A weekly paper lithographed in Tihrán in A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902-3), edited by Názimu'l-Islám of Kirmán, also editor of the Kawakib-i-durri-yi-Násirí (see No. 286 supra), and written by Mírzá Kázim Khán of Kirmán.

See Rabino, No. 215, who gives the date of first issue as the 2nd of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1320 (= March 22, 1903). I do not possess a copy.

Naw-rúz (New Year's Day).

نوروز

A paper lithographed in Isfahán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8).

See Rabino, No. 216, on whose authority it is here inserted.

(360)

Naw'-i-Bashar (The Human Race).

نوع بشر

A paper printed in Rasht twice a week in A.H. 1329 (= A.D. 1911).

See Rabino, No. 217, who says that only six numbers appeared, the first on the 25th of Rabi' ii, A.H. 1329 (= April 25, 1911), and the last on the 23rd of Jumáda i (= May 22) of the same year. I possess Nos. 1, 3 and 6. Each comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Yearly subscription, 15 gráns in Rasht, and the same elsewhere plus postage.

Nayyir-i-A'zam (The Greater Luminary).

نیر اعظم

A paper printed in Tihrán twice a week in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907), under the editorship of the Mu'tmu'l-'Ulamá of Isfahán, who was afterwards suspected of favouring the Reaction, and, after the capture of Tihrán by the Nationalists (in July, 1909), was imprisoned for nearly a year with other political offenders.

See Rabino, No. 218. I possess Nos. 2 and 13, of which the former is dated the 16th of Ramazán, A.H. 1325 (= Oct. 23, 1907), and the latter the 6th of Dhu'l-Qa'da (= Dec. 11) of the same year. Each comprises 4 pp. of $12'' \times 7''$. Yearly subscription, 14 gráns in Tihrán, 17 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 11 francs abroad.

Waṭan (Fatherland).

A weekly paper printed, and afterwards lithographed, in Ṭih-rán in A.H. 1324 (= A.D. 1906-7).

See Rabino, No. 219. I possess Nos. 3 and 10, dated Jan. 27 and April 22 respectively, both of which are printed; and Nos. 17, 20, 21 and 22, all of which are lithographed. The last number is dated the 12th of Ramazán, A.H. 1325 (= Oct. 19, 1907). Each number comprises 4 pp. of 11" x 6¾". Yearly subscription, 16 gráns.

وطن دلی

This paper, mentioned only by Rabino (No. 220), was lithographed at Tabríz in the Ázarbáyjáni Turkish language.

I possess one (probably incomplete) copy, consisting of a single sheet, lithographed on both sides in a good, clear naskh, and bearing this title at the top of p. 1, but no date, subscription price, or other particulars. The sheet measures 12" x 6¾". I am doubtful from its appearance whether it is a newspaper at all, in the proper sense of the word, and not rather an isolated sheet. It contains one long and complete article or appeal.

Waqt (Time).

وقت

A full-sized daily paper printed in Ṭih-rán in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910) under the editorship of Mírzá Ḥusayn Khán Kasmá'í. It was a strong supporter of the Sipahdár's Cabinet, and the Moderates, and used to attack with vehemence the Írán-i-Naw (see No. 77 supra) and the Opposition (i.e. the Democrats), generally striving to cast suspicion on their orthodoxy in matters of Religion and Law. It had a comic or satirical section entitled Darí-Warí, which is almost unintelligible. In politics it was Moderate.

See Rabino, No. 221, who says that in all 66 numbers were published, the first on the 21st of Rabi' 1, A.H. 1328 (= April 2, 1910), and the last on the 11th of Jumáda 11 (= June 20) of the same year. I possess Nos. 1-46, the first, a single sheet printed on one side only, being dated 11 days earlier than Rabino says (March 22, 1910), and the last May 26 of the same year. Most of the numbers comprise 4 pp. of 21½" x 14¾". Yearly subscription, 50 gráns in Ṭih-rán, 60 gráns elsewhere in Persia, and 80 gráns abroad.

Hidáyat (Guidance).

هدایت

A weekly paper printed in Tīhrán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907) under the editorship of Mīrzá Muḥammad of Tīhrán.

See Rabino, No. 222, according to whom it first appeared on the 7th of Rajab, A.H. 1325 (= Aug. 14, 1907). This is correct, but the paper seems to have been suppressed or suspended for eight months immediately afterwards, for No. 2 is dated the 5th of Rabī' i. A.H. 1326 (= April 7, 1908). I possess Nos. 1, 2 and 4. Each comprises 4 pp. of 12½" × 7". Yearly subscription, 34 grāns in Tīhrán, 40 grāns in the provinces, 9 roubles in Russia and the Caucasus, and 25 francs in other foreign countries.

همدان

Hama-dán (All-knowing—a word-play on Hamadán, the well-known city).

A weekly paper printed at Hamadán in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Hájji Ḥusayn.

See Rabino, No. 224, who states that No. 18 was dated the 19th of Shawwāl, A.H. 1325 (= Nov. 25, 1907). I do not possess a copy.

(368)

Hawá wa Hawas (Freak and Fancy).

هوا و هوس

A paper "jelly-graphed" in Láhiján in A.H. 1325 (= A.D. 1907-8) under the editorship of Hájji Ḥusayn.

See Rabino, No. 225, on whose authority it is here inserted. I have not seen it.

Yádígár-i-Inqiláb (Memorial of the Revolution).

یادگار انقلاب

A paper lithographed in Qazwīn twice a week in A.H. 1327 (= A.D. 1909) under the editorship of the Mu'tamadul-Islám of Rasht during the sojourn of the National Volunteers (Mujáhidín) at that place. After the Conquest of Tíhrán, the paper was transferred thither and published there. In politics it was Revolutionary.

See Rabino. No. 226. I possess Nos. 1, 2 and 5, dated the 1st, 5th and 18th of Jumáá ii. A.H. 1327 (= June 20, June 24 and July 7, 1909). Each number comprises 4 pp. of $11\frac{3}{4}'' \times 6\frac{3}{4}''$. Price in Qazwín, 100 dinárs ($\frac{1}{10}$ of a qrán) a copy. Elsewhere in Persia, 12 qráns a year.

MODERNISING INFLUENCES IN THE PERSIAN PRESS OTHER THAN MAGAZINES AND JOURNALS.

Since the most important effect of the Press in every country is the awakening of political and literary opinion amongst the people, it is not inappropriate that we should conclude with a brief survey of the relations which exist between the early activities of the Press in Persia, and the latest movement of renaissance and renovation.

That portion of this subject which is connected with periodical publications, i.e. newspapers and magazines, has been discussed in the preceding section, and we shall here speak only of the effects of certain books and pamphlets which were operative in bringing about this awakening of thought, most of which were either translations of European books, or were inspired by European civilization and culture, and which acted for the most part by means of a gradual and peaceful progress.

Amongst printed books of this class the first place must be assigned to the earlier scientific and technical works, whether translated or compiled, published in the early days of the foundation of the State College, or Dáru'l-Funún, at Tíhrán (when a large number of European teachers were imported to give instruction there and in the Military College) to be used for teaching purposes; to which must be added a few earlier books ranging from the time of Prince 'Abbás Mírzá Ná'ibü's-Saltána to that period. The greater number of these books were composed by these new European teachers or the old Persian teachers of the College, such as Lieut. Krziz, M. Buhler, M. Lemaire, M. Vauvillier, Dr Polak, Dr Albu, M. Nicolas, M. Richard, M. Andreini, and M. Gasteiger of the former¹, and Hájji Najmu'd-Dawla, Mírzá Zakí of Mázandarán, Mírzá Kázim, Instructor in

¹ I am indebted to General Sir A. Houtum Schindler, K.C.I.E., for the identification of these gentlemen and for particulars concerning them. Artillery Lieut. Krziz and Dr Polak were two of the seven Austrians brought to Persia in 1851. The former returned to Europe in 1859, the latter in 1860. Capitaine Alexandre Buhler, Natural Sciences, 'Alí Khán Nāẓim'-Ulūm, Zaká'u'l-Mulk and others of the latter. As an appendix to this brief sketch we shall give a partial and incomplete table of the most important of these new scientific and literary works. By the special kindness of H.E. Rizá-qulí Khán, General Superintendent of the Ministry of Sciences and of the Dáru'l-Funún College (son of Nayyiru'l-Mulk, and grandson of the celebrated Rizá-qulí Khán Lala-báshi) I am enabled to include in this table a list of printed books composed by the older and younger writers of the Government Colleges (such as the Dáru'l-Funún and the Military and Political Colleges). The remaining items I have myself supplied, and the result I now put forward in the following pages so as to leave a foundation, poor and defective though it may be, which others devoted to the collecting of such information and interested in the study of the history of books and arts, may render more complete and comprehensive.

Amongst the more celebrated of the older Persian writers of this class were the late Hájji Najmu'd-Dawla (Mírzá 'Abdu'l-Ghaffár, son of Mírzá 'Alí Muḥammad of Isfahán) the Chief Astrologer (Munajjim-báshi), who was entitled "Professor of all the exact Sciences" in the Dáru'l-Funún College, and who was the author of numerous published Works on the Mathematical and Natural Sciences. He only died recently, in A.H. 1328 (= A.D. 1910), his age, according to current report, exceeding 90 years.

11 Régiment de Génie, came to Persia in 1855, captured Herát in Nov. 1856, taught military science at the College, and took part in many expeditions. He died, a General of the First Class, in 1887. M. Albert Lemaire was sent to Persia by the French Government in 1868 to teach military music. He died in 1907. M. Félix Vauvillier came to Persia in 1865 on behalf of a French Syndicate for a railway, but was afterwards employed by the Persian Government in constructing an Arsenal, and afterwards as teacher of Mineralogy at the College. He retired on a pension about 1900 and died a few years later. Dr Allu of Berlin was engaged by the Mukhbiru'd-Dawla for the College in 1882. He returned to Europe after 8 or 9 years of teaching and private practice in Persia. M. J. B. Nicolas, the translator of 'Umar Khayyám, was the father of M. Alphonse Nicolas, now French Consul at Tabriz. M. Richard came to Persia in 1844 or 1846, fell in love with a Kurdish girl, and turned Musulmán in order to marry her. M. F. Andreini was a Tuscan volunteer in the 1848 revolutionary movements, fled to Constantinople in 1849, entered the service of the Persian Government in 1852, and died in 1894. M. Gasteiger, an Austrian adventurer, came to Persia in the early sixties, was engaged on various engineering works and resigned in 1889. He died soon afterwards.

Another was Muḥammad Ḥasan Khān I'timādu's-Saltāna (son of Ḥājji 'Alī Khān, entitled Hājibu'd-Dawla, of Marāgha), Minister of the Press, who contributed many additions to the Sāl-nāmas or "Year Books." Although, according to the statements of credible authorities, he himself was devoid of any profound knowledge or scholarship, and merely caused these works to be written under his supervision and the control of the Ministry of the Press by those men of learning whom he collected from every quarter, afterwards causing their writings to be published in his own name, yet since it was under his name that these books appeared, they are commonly known as his, and must therefore necessarily be described as such.

Another was Rizā-qulī Khān of Shīrāz, known as Lala-bāshi, and poetically named Hidāyat (father of the present Nayyirū'l-Mulk), whose literary works are some of the most important which have appeared in Persia in the last century.

Others are the late Mīrzā Muḥammad Ḥusayn Zakā'u'l-Mulk and his son Mīrzā Muḥammad 'Alī Khān, the present Zakā'u'l-Mulk, who co-operated in the translation and compilation of many works.

Then mention must be made of certain well-known doctors, such as Dr Muḥammad of Kirmānshāh, Dr Rizā, Dr Abu'l-Ḥasan Khān, Dr 'Alī, and others, who have left as memorials of their learning and energy numerous works on Anatomy, Medicine, and other Natural Sciences.

After these mention may be made of the following (not in chronological order). Mīrzā Yūsuf Khān Mustashāru'd-Dawla of Tabrīz; Ḥājji Mīrzā 'Abdu'r-Raḥīm Najjār-zāda of Tabrīz, known as "Ṭāliboff"; Mīrzā Ḥabīb of Iṣfahān, long resident in Constantinople; Ḥājji Muḥammad Ṭāhir Mīrzā (the father of the present Kaflū'd-Dawla and the grandfather of Sulaymān Mīrzā, Member of the Second National Assembly); Mīrzā Taqī Khān of Kāshān; Mīrzā Āqā Khān of Kirmān, and others. Amongst the beneficent agencies which rendered valuable services to the cause of education was the Society for the publication of books (Shirkat-i-ṭab'-'i-kutub) in Ṭihrān, which was founded about A.H. 1320 (= A.D. 1902) or a little earlier, and published a great many important works. One of the most active members of this was Hájji Mírzá Yahyá of Dawlatábád.

Here is subjoined a brief list of the scientific, literary and historical publications of recent times, printed in Persia or abroad since the introduction of the art of printing into that country¹.

161. A History of the Sásánian Kings of Persia, translated from Rawlinson's well-known work by Mírzá Muḥammad Ḥusayn Zaká'u'l-Mulk, in two volumes, published in A.H. 1314-15 (= A.D. 1896-8).

162. Náma-i-Dánishvarán ("the Book of the Learned"), compiled by a committee of scholars consisting of Mírzá Abu'l-Faẓl of Sáwa, Mírzá Ḥasan of Ṭálaqán, 'Abdu'l-Wahháb of Qazwín, known as "Mullá Áqá," and Muḥammad called al-Mahdí. This work, which was not completed, is a detailed Dictionary of Biography of the notable and eminent persons, men of letters, divines, philosophers, mystics, etc., who were most celebrated in Islám, and contains accounts of their biographies, adventures, characteristics and writings. Its publication was begun in A.H. 1296 (= A.D. 1879) under the supervision of 'Alí-qulí Mírzá I'tiẓádu's-Saltána. On his death in A.H. 1298 (= A.D. 1881), after the publication of two volumes, the editorial committee made over the supervision to Muḥammad Ḥasan Khán I'timádu's-Saltána, so that the last five volumes (III-VII) were published as appendices to the Year Books (Sál-náma) of A.H. 1318, 1319, 1321, 1322 and 1323 (= A.D. 1900-5).

Here ends that which, with restricted facilities and defective materials, I have been able to collect in this brief summary, and I hope that the learned may make good its deficiencies and the discerning overlook its short-comings.

THE first specimen given below belongs to a much earlier period than the remainder, for it was printed and published in London by Messrs W. H. Allen and Co. and R. J. Mitchell and Sons in 1882. It is taken from a qaṣīda of 366 verses entitled "A London Sunlet" (Shumaysa-i-Landaniyya) composed by my old friend and first Persian teacher Mīrzā Muḥammad Bāqir of the district of Bawánát in Fārs, surnamed Ibrāhīm Jān Mu'attar. Of this remarkable and eccentric individual I have given some account in the first chapter of my Year amongst the Persians, published in 1893 by Messrs A. and C. Black (pp. 12-15), and I have there explained how he compelled me to read with great attention the extraordinary poem of which I subjoin a sample. Reading it again after the lapse of nearly thirty years, I cannot help being very much struck by its clear foreshadowing of the recent Anglo-Russian understanding, which at that time, midway between Plevna and Panj-dih, seemed of all things most improbable. In the rhymed translation which I have added to the original I have endeavoured to preserve as far as possible not only the sense of the latter, but its extraordinary half-prophetic half-punning style, which affords a strange mixture of rhapsody and lampoon, of grim jest and bitter earnest. The poem, which preserves the same rhyme throughout, is divided into two parts between verses 120 and 121, with which last I begin, selecting 29 verses out of the following 90 (i.e. between 121 and 211).

(از شَمِیسَهٗ لَندَنِیّهٗ میرزا محمّد باقر مواناتی)

- (۱۲۱) گوش! که بانگِ نفیر روس بر آمد' هوش! که گوش از خروش کوس کر آمد'
 (۱۲۲) ولوله بر زن که صوتِ هلهله افزود' سلسله بنگن که فوتِ شیرِ نر آمد'
 (۱۲۴) بهنهٔ قُبّاق زبر دهنه قزاق' قلیم زخارِ آهنین لیر آمد'

The photograph was taken at Beyrout about 1885

(۱۲۴) پشت اندر پشت و بر بیر همه هامون' از تخم زشت کشت پا و سر آمد'

(۱۴۰) هیهات هیهات وعدهای دروغین' آخرمان راست تا دیم سفر آمد'

(۱۴۱) افسوس افسوس لقمه در بُن دندان' و آوازِ حفرِ قبرِ لقمه خور آمد'

* * *

(۱۵۲) هنت دادم که شکر گوئی و حمد' شُکرت بس نُکرو و حمدِ توحهر آمد'

(۱۵۳) گفتم با روس چون عروس میآمیز' کاولادِ خرس وارثِ پدر آمد'

(۱۵۴) از من گفتن و از تو بس نشنفتن' شَرِ دینگ و دینگ! گفتگو هدر آمد'

(۱۵۵) شرفت دادم که پی بری تو بنورم' نورم دیدی و ظلمتِ خیر آمد'

* * *

- (۱۶۷) خرسی بیدا شد از کنارهُ کوهی ' وز دَعَرَش دلیرِ مرا دَعَر آمد '
 (۱۶۸) از دل و از جان بسوی خرس چمان شد ' کاینم محبوب و قِرْنِ منتظر آمد '
 (۱۶۹) وه وه زین جنیش و خرامش و خوبی ' درخوردِ حلقِ گَتّی نَبَر آمد '
 (۱۷۰) من شکرِ هند و یارِ شیرِ سهرقند ' ترکیبِ این دوشیر در شکر آمد '
 (۱۷۱) شیرِ جنوبِ این دلیر و خرسِ شمالِ آن ' کیست که با خرس و شیر هم دَعَر آمد '
 (۱۷۲) این غرب و شرق هر دو زیرِ نگیش ' آن را خود شرق و غرب در زگر آمد '
 (۱۷۳) هر جا خرس است جای وحشت و ترس است ' هر جا شیر است لیر در فِقَر آمد '
 * * * * *
 (۱۷۵) انسانیت ز روی ارض بر اُفتاد ' حیوانیت دو باره مُنْتَخَر آمد '
 * * * * *
 (۱۸۶) کیزُوس که؟ که هنده عاشقِ روس است ' گاهِ بوس و کنار و بُر و بر آمد '
 * * * * *
 (۲۰۴) ای خرس این شیر را بگیر و بیاموز ' از آن علمی که خرس را هنر آمد '
 * * * * *
 (۲۱۰) وین خرس و شیر را برند بجائی ' کآنجا هر خرس و شیر چون سَغَر آمد '
 (۲۱۱) چندی در حس و در قنششان دارند ' ناشان طبع درر پی هرر آمد '

(Translation)

(121) Hark! the blare of Russian trumpets on the Northern breezes comes!

Heed ye! for the ears are deafened with the roar of Russian drums!

(122) Weep and wail! the sounds of turmoil loud and ever louder rise:

Shake thy chains and burst thy fetters, for the Lion surely dies!

(123) 'Neath the hosts of savage Cossacks all the boundless
Qipcháq Plain

Seems a sea of iron billows, seems a roaring, surging main!

(124) Back to back and breast to breast throughout that spacious Plain they stand,

While an evil seed of severed heads and limbs fulfils the land.

* * * *

(126) Boundless, countless is their army, so that if the stars should see,

They would ask, "Of these two armies which may claim infinity?"

* * * *

(128) Even from the Bridge of Kábul to the regions of the Pole,

Clubs and maces, chests and shoulders, in one seething eddy roll.

(129) Frowning brows and knotted muscles doth each warrior display:

Little do they care for China, little reck they of Cathay!

(130) Think ye, Lion-Ass, or Ass with Lion's head, that yonder Bear

Doth not know the Ass will better yield to him the Lion's share?

(131) Quit the grounds wherein you hunted; turn your steps to house and town,

For the Tiger, Wolf and Leopard forces join to hunt you down!

- (132) Call the Stone whereon you stumble "glad": 'tis but an empty name!
And thy Beauty Bright is surely caught within the claws of shame!¹

* * * *

- (138) Hail, thou great Caucasian Monarch! Full success attends thy plan!
Such success is thine by virtue of the strength which makes a man!

* * * *

- (140) Welladay! Each lying promise, which, it seemed, would serve so well, Now hath caught us, and hath brought us even to the gates of Hell!

- (141) Welladay! The toothsome morsel still within thy molars lies,
While the sounds of spades which dig the morsel-eater's grave arise.

* * * *

- (152) Graceless one! I gave thee India, seeking from thee prayer and laud,
But for praying heard but braying, and for laud got naught but bawd!

- (153) Did I not command thee, saying, "Mate not with the Russian Bear, For the Russian parent's offspring is the Russian parent's heir"?

- (154) Mine it was to speak, and thine to lend an inattentive ear:
Mine to warn thee, thine to scorn me: mine to counsel, thine to jeer!

¹ Gladstone and Bright, the prototypes of our modern Russophil Ministers, were, however, at once more magnanimous and more moderate than these, and Gladstone on occasion showed a firmness for which we look in vain in Sir Edward Grey.

- (155) I bestowed the East upon thee that thou might'st behold my Light :
Thou didst see the Light, and turning didst prefer the mirk of night.

* * * *

- (167) Sudden from a mountain fastness doth the grizzly Bear appear,
And my Darling sees it, loves it, swoons away with passion sheer.

- (168) Heart and soul fulfilled with longing, to the Bear she draweth nigh,
Saying, "This is my beloved, this the Apple of mine Eye!"

- (169) See her form so sleek and comely ! See the beauty of her gait !
Worthy such a dainty morsel for the jaws which it await !

- (170) "I," said she, "am India's sugar, he the milk of Samarqand :
"We shall mix like milk and sugar, we shall travel hand in hand !

- (171) "I the Lion of the South, and he the valiant Northern Bear :
"Who shall venture to oppose us when together forth we fare?"

- (172) Subject to the former's sceptre are the realms of West and East :
East and West lie in the pouch and pocket of the second Beast.

- (173) Where the Bear is, there is terror, there are cruelty and fear :
Where the Lion is the powers of nerve and muscle disappear.

* * * *

- (175) From the face of earth all human kindliness hath passed away:

Brutish cruelty becomes once more the order of the day.

* * * *

- (186) Where is Cyrus, now that India's sick with love for Russia's sake?

Let them kiss and hug each other, ere they share the stolen cake¹!

* * * *

- (204) Come, O Bear, and take this Lion: lead her to thy dismal lair,

There to teach her all the arts which make the cunning of the Bear.

* * * *

- (210) Till at length there cometh one to take them both unto a place

Where like conies they shall shiver, threatened by a stronger race.

- (211) There shall they be held in bondage in a prison and a cage,

Till unto a milk-like mildness turns their roughness and their rage!

The second specimen, published in No. 4 of the Šūr-i-Isrāfil ("Trumpet-call of Isrāfil") of June 20, 1907, refers to an event which happened at Qúchán in Khurásán on the Russo-Persian frontier a year or two previously², when a number of the inhabitants, including several young girls, were carried off by Turkmáns subject to Russia, with the connivance, it was asserted, of Áṣafu'd-Dawla and the governor of Burújird, who was subsequently tried for this offence.

¹ "Cyrus" typifies Persia, which, I take it, is also intended by "the stolen cake."

² I think in November, 1905. See my Persian Revolution, p. 111.

This ballad bears the following superscription :

Persian Concert, which the girls of Qúchán, at the request of the Russians and Turkmáns, give in a Café chantant at Tiflis.

Girls, in chorus, to the tune of the taşníf (ballad)

- “Ay Khudá, Laylá yár-i-má nist!”
 (“O God, Laylá is not our friend!”)

(The girls, in chorus)

"Our nobles all are drunk with pride,
 (O God, nobody cares for us!)
 From justice and virtue they stand aside, (O God, etc.)
 Dumb, blind, untaught the people abide, (O God, etc.)
 One seven, one eight, one nine, two naught:
 No one of us taketh heed or thought!

(2)

"Thou seest how Heaven with us doth play,

 From kith and kin we are torn away; (O God, etc.)
 The ill that is wrought us shall ill repay! (O God, etc.).
One seven, one eight, etc.

(3)

"Though exiled far from our home so dear,
(O God, nobody cares for us!)
 And plunged by exile in sorrow and fear, (O God, etc.)
 We love it and dream of it ever here! (O God, etc.)
One seven, one eight, etc.

(4)

(A girl of twelve, solo)

"Pause, O breath in my breast: meseems
(O God, nobody cares for us!)
 That the breeze with the scents of the home-land teems:
(O God, etc.)
 What delicate scent from what land of dreams! (O God, etc.)
One seven, one eight, etc.

(5)

(The girls, in chorus)

"Sweet doth the breeze from the home-land smell!
(O God, nobody cares for us!)
 Life doth it give and grief dispel! (O God, etc.)
 But alas, for of exile it speaks as well! (O God, etc.)
One seven, one eight, etc.

(6)

"Sleep hath o'ercome our men. I ween,
(O God, nobody cares for us!)
 And blunted our townsmen's honour keen, (O God, etc.)
 And our friends dishonoured by foes have been! (O God, etc.)
One seven, one eight, etc.

The following poem, like the last, is taken from the Şúr-i-Isráfil for November 20, 1907. The "Kablá'í" to whom it is addressed is taken by some to refer to the poet himself, but by others to the ex-Shah, Muḥammad 'Alí, who was at that time the ruler of Persia. The word "Kablá'í" or "Kabláy" is a popular abbreviation of Karbalá'í, a title given to those who have visited the holy tombs of Karbalá in Turkish Arabia; just as one who has visited Mashhad is entitled "Mashhadí," and one who has performed the pilgrimage to Mecca, "Hájji." The two former titles, however, are seldom used except by muleteers, tradespeople, and others of humble condition, and "Kabláy" especially has come to be used colloquially in a somewhat familiar or even contemptuous way, as though we should call a man whose name was unknown to us "Johnnie." The original poem is slangy, and this feature I have endeavoured to preserve in the translation, which is somewhat freer than the preceding ones.

"In Persia will bribes ever go out of fashion, O Kabláy?
 Will the mullás for justice develop a passion, O, Kabláy?
 From magic and *murshids*³ can Islám win free?
 Bid the dead come to life, for 'twill easier be,
 You limb of the Devil and son of a gun, O Kabláy!"

(4)

The following poem, by Ashraf of Gílán, is of a much more classical type than the last, and is what is called a mustazád. It appeared in No. 9 of the Nasím-i-Shimál ("Breeze of the North"), published at Rasht on January 2, 1908. Part of it only is translated as a specimen.

² This is an allusion to the paper Şur-i-Isráfíl or "Trumpet of Isráfíl," in which this poem appeared.

| 1 Our country is flooded with sorrow and woe.
Arise, and for coffin and cerements
go! | O, for our land woe! |
| 2 With the blood of our sons for the fatherland shed
Hill, plain and garden blood-red glow: | O, for our land woe! |
| 3 Where are zeal and courage and strife,
The floods of trouble around us flow! | The moon shines red; |
| 4 Foreigners trample on every side
Of our Freedom naught but the name they know: | O, for our land woe! |
| 5 Not only our land is lost and misnamed;
E'en the flowers in the garden
stunted grow: | A Nation's life? |
| 6 The nightingale dares not to sing of the rose:
And red the lily-white flowrets blow, | O, for our land woe! |
| 7 Some of our statesmen are brigands sheer:
And the priests to follow them are not slow: | On Islám's pride: |
| | O, for our land woe! |
| | Our faith's defamed: |
| | O, for our land woe! |
| | Red the daffodil grows, |
| | O, for our land woe! |
| | No mystery here! |
| | O, for our land woe! |

- 8 For Khalkhál's sake are our hearts in gloom : 'tis the Day of Doom !
Not even a shirt hath the peasant to show : O, for our land woe !
- 9 To Urmi the Turkish commander,
we hear, Swift draws near,
While at Astara Shahsevens strike a blow ! O, for our land woe !
- 10 Alas for our pearl-bearing, pearl-raising land Partition is planned,
Though its dust be more fragrant than musk, I trow ; O, for our land woe !

The following poem, also by Ashraf, and also published in the Nasím-i-Shimál (No. 10, dated January 20, 1908), is similar to the last, and is also a mustazád. The allusions in verse 5 are to some of the chief newspapers published at that time, and those in verses 9 to 12 to events connected with what I have called "the abortive Coup d'État" of December, 1907. (See my Persian Revolution, pp. 162 et seqq.) The pessimistic strain which characterizes the last poem is also apparent in this.

- ۱ دوش می گفت این سخن دیوانه بی باز خواست
عاقلی گفتا که از دیوانه بشنو حرف راست
دردِ ایران بیدواست
- ۲ مملکت از جار سو در حالِ بحران و خطر
با چنین دستور این رنجور مهجور از شناست
دردِ ایران بیدواست
- ۳ پادشه بر ضدِّ ملت ملت اندر ضدِّ شاه
حون حقیقت بنگری هم این خطا هم آن خطاست
دردِ ایران بیدواست
- ۴ هر کسی با هر کسی خصم است و بدخواه است و ضدِّ
با چنین شکل ای بسا خونها هدر جانها هاست
دردِ ایران بیدواست

- ۵ صورِ اسرافیل زد صبحِ سعادت در دمید
مجلس و حلّ المتین سوی عدالت رهنماست^۱
۶ با وجودِ این جراید خفتهٔ بیدار نیست
این جراید همچو شبور و نفیر و کرناست
۷ شکر می‌کردیم جمعی کارها مضوطه شد
باز می‌بینیم آن کسه است و آن آتش است و ماست
۸ با خرد گفتیم که آخر جارهٔ این کار چیست
بعد آه و ناله گنتا حاره در دستِ خداست
۹ شیخ فضل الله یک سو آملی از یک طرف^۲
چار سمتِ نوبخانه حربگاه شیخ ماست
۱۰ هیچ دانی قصدِ فاطرجی درین هنگامه چیست
مقصدِ او ساعت است و کیف و زنجیر طلاست
۱۱ مسجدِ مروی پر از اشرارِ غارتگر شده
روحِ واقف در بهشت ازین مصیبت در عزا است
۱۲ نو نینداری قنبلِ دستهٔ قاطرچیان
و عده‌گاهِ انتقامِ اشقیا روزِ جزاست
۱۳ اشرفا هرکس درین مشروطه جابجایی نمود

¹ Concerning Shaykh Fazlullāh of Nūr, see my Persian Revolution, pp. 113, 148-9, 242, 262, and 444-5. By "Āmulī" is meant Mullā Muhammad of Āmul, pīshnamāz of the Masjid-i-Marwī, another noted reactionary priest.

The great Constitutional Mujtahid Mullá Muḥammad
 Kāẓim al-Khurāsānī in A.H. 1324 (A.D. 1906)

(6)

The following poem is from the same paper (No. 11, January 31, 1908) as the two last, and is, I think, also by Ashraf, since it bears the signature Faqir, which he elsewhere uses. He appeals to the 'ulamá' (or so-called "clergy"), the Deputies and the Sháh (Muḥammad 'Alí) to observe the Constitution, enforce the law, and guard the country from the designs of foreign foes, "the Turk, the Two-headed Bird (i.e. eagle), the Bear and the Old Dog," and the Shí'ite faith from its Sunnī adversaries.

امروز چو ما هیچ کس انگشت نما نیست	زیرا که کی جاهل و بی‌علم چو ما نیست
در علم و صنایع همگی عاجز و لنگیم	در مغالطه و فتنه و آشوب ز رنگیم
بر جانِ هم افتاده شب و روز بجنگیم	شرمی ز کلام الله و ترسی ز خدا نیست
اینک کلماتِ علما نصّ صریح است	بر اینکه بنزدِ علما ظلم قبیح است
مشروطه چو در عقل وجود شرع صحیح است	هر کس کند انکار ز جمیع عقلا نیست
افسوس که از ناله و فریاد اثر رفت	هم زحمتِ اربابِ جراید بهدر رفت
مشروطه درین ملک بجوشید و ز سر رفت	چون صحتِ این دوره بغیر از من و ما نیست
زود ای علما مرکبِ مشروطه برانید	دادِ دلِ مظلوم ز ظالم بسنایید
هان ای وگلا قدرِ چنین روز بدانید	زیرا کی امروز باعزازِ شما نیست
مشروطه درختِ بی‌ر از میوه و اثمار	عدلیّه و انصاف و مساوات ورا بار
قانونِ اساسی است درو ناظرِ هر کار	فرقی بهیابِ غنی و شاه و گدا نیست
امروز نگهبانِ خلائق علما اند	بعد از علما حافظِ ملت وگلا اند
مسئولِ بهر جزئی و کلی وزرا اند	در صحتِ مشروطه دگر چون و چرا نیست

امسال دو سالست که مشروطه شد ایران بر شد در و دیوار ز شنامه و اعلان
 کو تجری قانون وجه شد همتِ مردان؟ افسوس که مارا هوسِ صلح و صفا نیست
 هر عقل که فرمانبرِ افسونگر و فالست هر مغز که از جرسِ بنکرست و خیالست
 هر ملک که علمش همگی قل و مقالست قانونِ بچنین مملکتی راهنما نیست
 احوالِ ارومیه اگر مرده شنیدی در قر ز غیرت کفنِ خویش دریدی
 از دیده ارواح همه خون بچکیدی در خلد بجز زمزمه و وطنای نیست
 از جارِ طرف سیلِ بلا گشته سرازیر عثمانی و مرغ دوسر و خرس و سگ پیر
 شاهها مگر از مملکتِ خود شده سیر؟ بی قیدی و اهمال باین پایه سزا نیست
 ای خسرو مشروطه طلب شاه دل آگاه میسند که از لطفِ عثمانی بد خواه
 منسوخ شود لفظِ عَلِيًّا وَلِيَّ اللَّهِ شاهها بخدا صرا زین بیش روا نیست!
 (فنیبر)

(7)

The following poem is also by Ashraf, but it is placed in the mouth of an imaginary reactionary, grotesquely named (as Morier named his characters "Mullá Nádán," "Mírzá Aḥmaq," etc.) "Kharáb-'Alí Mírzá," who is supposed to reproach Ashraf for his enthusiasm for the Constitution. I have appended a prose rendering.

اشرف ازین بیش جسارت مکن	در سرِ مشروطه لجاجت مکن
با همه خلق منم خصم و ضد	می نشوم با احدی متحد
مستلدم مستلدم مستند	هیچ به مشروطه تو دعوت مکن
مطربکا خیز بزن جنگ و رود	ساقیکا باده بده زود زود
دولت اگر رفت بغم رنود	صحت عثمانی و دولت مکن

میخورم از خون رعیت شراب	میکم از گوشت رعیت کباب
هیچ نترسم ز عذاب و عتاب	وعدہ بفردای قیامت مکن
تکیہ بر اقوال فرنگان مزین	دم ز مکاتیب دبستان مزین
طعنہ تو بر کهنہ پرستان مزین	ذوق ز بیداری ملت مکن
من چه کنم خصم شدہ تر دماغ	رخنہ نبودہ است درین باغ و راغ
زیر و زبر شد ہمہ ساوجلاغ	گریہ بر احوال رعیت مکن
رفت ارومہ خراسان بس است	آن ہم اگر رفت صناہان بس است
هیچ نباشد خود طهران بس است	اشرف ازین بیش شرارت مکن

(امضا خرابعلی میرزا)

(Prose Translation)

"O Ashraf, be no longer over-bold! Be not so insistent about the Constitution!

I am an adversary and enemy to all the people; I will not unite with any one;

I am a Reactionary, a Reactionary, a Reactionary! Do not thou preach Constitutionalism!

O little minstrel, arise, strike the harp and the lute! O little cup-bearer, give wine quickly!

If the Empire is lost, to Hell with it! Prate not of the Turk and the Empire!

I drink for wine the blood of the people; I eat for roast meat the flesh of the people;

I have no fear of torment and retribution; do not put me off with threats of to-morrow's Resurrection!

Put not thy trust in the words of the Franks; talk not of the maxims of the schools;

Do not find fault with such as love the ancient ways; do not exult in the awakening of the Nation!

What can I do? the enemy is sharp-witted? He has broken into this garden and meadow:

All Sâwujbulâgh is topsy-turvy. Weep not over the people's condition!

If Urúmiyya is gone, Khurásán is enough; if that too goes, Isfahán is enough;

If naught else be left, Tīhrán itself is enough! O Ashraf, work no further mischief!"

(8)

Dakhaw, to whom the following poem (published in the Nasīm-i-Shimāl of March 5, 1908) is ascribed, is best known for his contributions to the Šūr-i-Isrāfīl, and especially for the weekly column entitled Charand-parand ("Charivari"). His real name was 'Alī Akbar, and his nom de guerre, "Dakhaw," is a local form (used at Qazwīn, his native town) of Dih-khudā ("the villager," "rustic" or "squireen").

(Prose Translation)

- (1) "To-day the appeal of Dakhaw ascends to the Throne of God; with grief for the Constitution the bones of Dakhaw are burned.
- (2) In this land of Qazwín, through the tyranny of Despotism, the household of Dakhaw is utterly forgotten.
- (3) When the luminary of the Constitution arose from Persia the spirit of Dakhaw was illuminated by its dawning.
- (4) When the Sun of the Constitution arose talk of it was ever on Dakhaw's tongue.
- (5) May my tongue be cut out now that I hear that harm befalls the pillars of the Parliament!
- (6) The ambassador of Autocracy hath set his foot in the Majlis; an autumnal blast hath blown over Dakhaw's garden.
- (7) The foreigner hath stepped into the midst of the Deputies; Dakhaw's gelder-rose and cypress and Judas-tree are broken!
- (8) If (which God forbid!) the Parliament suffers hurt, Dakhaw's enemies will set fire to his soul.
- (9) The Imám-Junt'a (Chief Priest) of Qazwín hath cast the fire of tyranny, malice and despotism on the family of Dakhaw.
- (10) On account of the tyranny and spite of this autocrat in sheep's clothing the wailing and lamentations of Dakhaw affect the very stones.
- (11) I will become one of the humble servants of Ashrafu'd-Dín if this piteous poem of Dakhaw's should be inserted [in his paper]."

(9)

The following poem, which, like No. 7, is cast in the form of a letter of remonstrance emanating from an imaginary reactionary, is also by Ashraf, and appeared in No. 16 of the second year of the Nasím-i-Shimál, on April 14, 1908.

- (1) "O Ashraf, what is this outcry and lamentation? What is this sighing and crying for the people?"
- (2) Speak out plainly: who and what are you? Are you [a man of] one maund, or ten maunds, or twenty?
- (3) Even if the flood carries away this city and land, know for a surety that sleep overpowers us.
- (4) What is the newspaper? What is this disturbance? Think of some action, for there is no dearth of talents.
- (5) Russia and Japan are nothing to us! What have we to do with Prussia and Germany?
- (6) If the luminary of the Constitution hath shone forth, what is that [to us]? If the Sun of Knowledge hath arisen, what is that [to us]?
- (7) You vehemently urge and incite the children to [attend] the new schools;
- (8) Then you desire in every town and district to establish a teachers' college.
- (9) Alas for the child who goes to school! A child should run about the streets:
- (10) A child should make kites: a child should play pitch and toss:
- (11) A child should break the mullá's ankles: a child should break [people's] heads with stones.
- (12) A child should be an adept at stone-throwing: a child should be worse than a cat at face-scratching.
- (13) Do not make these children's days more gloomy than nights! Do not call a prison a school!
- (14) When they consign us to the earth, English will not serve to interpret our thoughts¹!
- (15) This Qur'án is sufficient for us: Ṭihrán is sufficient for the Sháh's capital!
- (16) If the floods of misfortune attack us, grieve not, for 'misfortune is love's portion!'

¹ This refers to the "Questioning of the Tomb," when the angels Munkir and Nakir come to the dead man and examine him as to his faith. Naturally he will be expected to reply to them in Arabic, or some other Musulmán language.

- (17) If I am abased in this world, O uncle, yet shall I be glorified in the Resurrection, O uncle!
- (18) Smite us not on the neck with thy pen! Beat not the drum on the roof of our Shaykh!
- (19) O Ashraf, do not urge us to [cultivate] Art! Do not talk to us about foreign sciences!
- (20) I fear that in the end the sooth-sayer, the spiritual director and the admirer of ancient fashions will break your feet and hands!"

The following poem is another of those abounding with slang. It appeared in No. 18 of the Nasim-i-Shiml, dated May 11, 1908.

While addled in our reverend master's pate,
 And dust and rust our spirits obfuscate,
 And drunk and dizzy's he who guides our fate,
 And this old humbug still directs our gait
 Needs must our caravan be lame and late!

(2)

Vainly our lives to hardship we expose
 While in each heart the fire of hatred glows :
 For while the Nation doth the Sháh oppose,
 And while the Sháh supports the Nation's foes,
 And while Reaction dominates the State
 Needs must our caravan be lame and late!

(3)

We say that now at last the Press is free,
 That Persia shall regain prosperity,
 That firmly based is now our Liberty,
 That colleges abound increasingly.
 Bottle and stone best typify our state!

The following poem appeared in the Nasím-i-Shimál for June 18, 1908 (No. 22), five days before the Coup d'État.

ایران ز عطرِ علم معطر نمی شود	در شوره زار لاله میسر نمی شود

The following taṣnif, or ballad, appeared in the same issue of the Nasim-i-Shimāl (No. 22) as the last. It is written in a very simple and somewhat colloquial style. Mi-shé and na-mi-shé ("will it be?" "it cannot be!") are common colloquial contractions for mī-sharwad and namī-sharwad; siyá (black) = siyáh; shahwat-charání means "self-indulgence," "pampering the passions"; ján-i-Mawlá (analogous to ján-i-pidar) means literally "Soul of the Lord," i.e. "God's beloved," and is equivalent to "my good friend"; and yáru ("that friend" of ours) refers to some person, known to the speaker and the hearer only, whom it is not desired to name. It is often used contemptuously, and here, presumably, refers to Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh.

After the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, and the destruction of the First National Assembly, the free press of the first Constitutional Period entirely disappeared for some months, and Mírzá Jahángír Khán of Shíráz, the editor of the Šár-i-Isráfíl ("Trumpet-call of Isráfíl"), one of the most notable publications of that period, was put to death by the ex-Sháh Muḥammad 'Alí in the Bágh-i-Sháh. "Dakhaw¹," one of the most talented contributors to that paper, escaped to Europe, and again began to publish the paper at Yverdon in Switzerland on Muḥarram 1, A.H. 1327 (January 23, 1909). Only three numbers, so far as I know, appeared ; the third, published on March 8, 1909, contained the following elegy on Mírzá Jahángír Khán, "that Martyr of the Path of Liberty and most faithful defender of the rights of his country," by his associate and friend, the above-mentioned Mírzá 'Alí Akbar Dih-khudá, better known as "Dakhaw." It will be noticed that this poem, in the arrangement of its rhymes, shows strong traces of European influence. It runs as follows :

"In Memory of my incomparable Friend: the offering of an unworthy brother at the shrine of that most high and holy Spirit.

(1)

"O bird of the morning, when this gloomy night puts aside its dark deeds,
And, at the life-giving breath of the Dawn, besotted slumber departs from the heads of those who sleep,
And the Loved One enthroned on the dark blue litter loosens the knots from her golden-threaded locks¹,
And God is manifested in perfection, while Ahriman of evil nature withdraws to his citadel,
Remember, O remember, that extinguished Lamp²!

(2)

"O companion of Joseph in this bondage, when the interpretation of the Dream becomes plain to thee,
And thy heart is full of joy, and thy lips with sweet laughter, and thou art as thy friends would have thee, and envied
by thy foes,
And thou hast gone back to thy friends and kin, freer than the zephyr or the moonlight, Remember him who, for a while throughout the night, in the desire to meet the friends, with thee counted the stars until the morning.

(3)

"When the garden smiles again, O poor, longing nightingale,
And when the horizons become like the picture-gallery of China with hyacinths, red roses and marjoram,
And when the rose is red, and the dew stands like sweat on its cheek, while thou hast relinquished rest and consideration,

¹ The golden rays of the sun in the dark blue pavilion of the sky are intended. In Persian there is no gender, but it is worth noting that in Arabic the sun is feminine, while the moon is masculine.

² i.e. Mírzá Jahángír Khán, who lighted us on our way ere the Dawn broke, until his light was quenched in death.

Remember that budding rose which bloomed before its time, and which withered in sorrow in the chill of December ere it had assuaged the fires of its cravings!

(4)

"O thou who wert the companion in the Desert of 'Imrán's son! When these few years have elapsed,
And that sweet comrade at the Banquet of Wisdom hath made manifest his promise,
And when each morning the fragrance of ambergris and aloes ascends to Saturn from the Golden Altar, Remember him who, for the sins of an ignorant people, yielded up his life in the Desert, hoping for a sight of the Promised Land!

(5)

"When the times are once more propitious, O Child of the Golden Age,
And God, gladdened by the obedience of His Servants, once again assumes Divinity,
And there endures neither the fashion of Iram nor the name of Shaddád¹, but earth stops the mouth of him whose food was filth (i.e. whose words were folly), Remember him who, punished for the crime of glorifying the truth, drained the draught of Union from the point of the headsman's sword!"

(15)

This and the two following poems are of some historical interest in connection with the incipient rising in Rasht, which, in conjunction with the gathering of the Bakhtiyári clans at Iṣfahán, culminated in the capture of Tīhrán and deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí Sháh in July, 1909. The first of these three poems appeared in the Nāsm-i-Shimál (No. 23) of February 15, 1909, and recommends "deeds not words" to the people of Gílán.

¹ For the ancient Arabian tyrant Shaddád and his wonderful Garden of Iram, see surá lxxxix of the Qur'án, verses 5—7, and the commentaries on it. Here Muḥammad 'Alí, the ex-Sháh, and his garden, the Bágh-i-Sháh, are meant.

سلطنت بهرِ شہان با ستم و ظلم نباید ' جان نزاری پی اصلاحِ وطن باید و شاید '
 تا کہ ہمتِ نکئی کس برُخت در نگشاید ' مرد آن است کہ لب بندد و بازو بگشاید '
 انبیا درج نمودند مقالاتِ عدالت ' اولیا جملہ سرودند عباراتِ عدالت '
 علما جملہ نوشتند روایاتِ عدالت ' گفتگو بپہدہ از مظلہ امروز نشاید '
 مرد آن است کہ لب بندد و بازو بگشاید '
 جاهدوا گفت خداوند بانجیل و بقرآن ' خیز از بہر وطن همچو مجاہد بفشان جان '
 خنجر و تبر و خدنگ است گل و نرگس و ریحان ' نغمہٴ توپ و تفنگ است کہ غمہا برداید '
 مرد آن است کہ لب بندد و بازو بگشاید '

(Prose Translation)

Sovereignty endureth not for cruel and tyrannical kings : to lay down life for the amelioration of one's country is meet and proper.

So long as thou makest no effort, no one will open the door before thee : he is a man who shuts his lips and stretches out his arm !

The Prophets have included in their utterances discourses on Justice : all the Saints have celebrated the praises of Justice : All the learned have enshrined in their writings traditions of Justice : unseemly to-day is vain talk about Injustice : He is a man who shuts his lips and stretches out his arm !

"Strive" (jāhidū) saith God both in the Gospels and in the Qur'ān : arise, then, and like a "striver" (mujāhid) lay down thy life for thy country's sake¹ !

¹ See Qur'ān, v, 39; ix, 41, 87; xxii, 77. Mujāhid (the title given during the Persian Revolution to the National Volunteers) is the participle corresponding to the noun Jihād, which means a "striving" "in God's way" (fi sabīlillāh), and in the Qur'ān especially fighting for the Faith, but in these days for the Fatherland. The appeal to the Gospels as well as the Qur'ān is interesting and characteristic, for it must be remembered that many of those Mujāhidīn were Armenian Christians.

Dagger, arrow and javelin are as the rose, the narcissus and the basil: it is the roar of cannons and guns which will dissipate our sorrows!

He is a man who shuts his lips and stretches out his arm!

(16)

The following verses appeared in the same issue of the Nasim-i-Shimál as the last, and celebrate the adhesion (or apparent adhesion) of the Sipahdár, who had previously been employed by the Sháh in the siege of Tabriz, to the Nationalist Cause. The quatrain immediately following these verses appeared in the issue of the same paper dated March 5, 1909, and like them celebrates the praises of the Sipahdár.

شده گیلان دگر باره پر انوار	ز یمنِ مقدم سعد سپهدار
سزد گیلانیان بکسر نمایند	غبارِ مقدمش را کحلِ ابصار
جهانگیرا امیرِ دستگیرا	که نامت منتشر گشته در افطار
بعمیرِ خود ندیدست و نبیند	چو تو ملتِ پرستی هیچ دیار
ز ديلم گر عیان شد آلِ بویه	ز تنکابن چو تو گشته پدیدار
میانِ صد هزاران خلق چون دید	خدایت لایقِ هر شغل و هر کار
ز لطفِ خویش برگوشِ دلت گفت	که هان بشتاب و گیلان را نگهدار
نگهدارش که نامت باد باقی	نگهدارش که عمرت باد بسیار
الا تا رایبِ مشروطه بر پاست	هلا تا جامِ مشروطه است سرشار

همیشه باد مداحِ تو اشرف
نگهدارت خداوند جهاندار

روشن و تابنده باد نام سپهدار	باقی و پاینده باد نام سپهدار
هم بفلکِ ثبِت در جرایدِ عرشی	هم بزمینِ زنده باد نام سپهدار

(Translation)

Once again Gílán is filled with radiance by the blessing of the auspicious advance of the Sipahdár.

It were meet that all the people of Gílán should make the dust of his advance collyrium for their eyesight!

O Conqueror of the world, O Saviour-Chief, whose fame hath become spread abroad throughout the lands,

No inhabitant [of this land] hath ever in his life beheld or will behold a patriot like thee!

If the House of Buwayh appeared from Daylam, from Tankábun hath appeared one like thee¹!

Since, amongst hundreds of thousands of the people, God saw thee worthy of every work and deed,

In His Mercy He whispered into the ear of thy heart, "O make haste, and take charge of Gílán!

"Take charge of it, that thy name may endure for ever! Take charge of it, and may thy life be long!"

O, so long as the Standard of the Constitution stands, and so long as the cup of the Constitution brims over,

May Ashraf ever be thy panegyrist! May God the Ruler of the world keep thee in safety!

May the name of the Sipahdár be bright and resplendent,

May the name of the Sipahdár continue and endure!

May the name of the Sipahdár live on earth,

And may it be inscribed in the register of Heaven!

(17)

The following poem also appeared in the Nasím-i-Shimál, in
No. 27, issued on March 5, 1909. It is supposed to express the despair of the Devil at the downfall of Despotism, and is not lacking in merit and originality.

¹ The House of Buwayh ruled over the greater part of Southern Persia from A.D. 932 to 1055, and came originally from the shores of the Caspian Sea. Though their immediate ancestor was of humble station, they claimed noble Persian descent, and the learned al-Bírúní supports this claim.

The wily old Devil did groan and greet,

"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

"For the Constitution has found its feet;

"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

"The Bird of Liberty preens its wings in a rose-girt land,

"And Tyranny's vein is severed at last by Justice's hand,

"And the Despot's eyes are blinded by Freedom's gleaming brand,

"And the autocrats are, it would seem, dead beat,

"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

The wily old Devil did groan and greet,

"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(2)

"I, the Devil, with this vexation am now laid low;

"All the despots are dead, and I am grown old with woe;

"In very truth I am sorry and sick at the way things go.

"I'm exposed to the finger of scorn in the street:

"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

The wily old Devil did groan and greet,

"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(3)

"Men of sense! I am mad: 'Twere best you should let me alone!

"Lest I arise and break your heads with stick or with stone!

"For the autocrats all are uprooted and scattered and overthrown,

"And the Flag of Freedom the people greet:
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"
The wily old Devil did groan and greet,
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(4)

"For many a year from all and sundry I sucked the gore,
"And stole the hard-won moneys I found in the widow's store,
"And afflicted the heart of the people with sorrows and griefs galore:
"But now we're beggars who roam the street,
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"
The wily old Devil did groan and greet,
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(5)

"Deceit is dead, and cruel oppression hath passed away:
"Hypocrisy's crushed and godless bribery's lost its sway:
"Fallen and dead is the despot, his head with grief grown grey:
"His sighs to heaven rise swift and fleet,
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"
The wily old Devil did groan and greet,
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(6)

"For seven months this country no Constitution knew:
"With our whips and our scourges the backs of the peasants were black and blue.
"But now from the libertine's tables the chickens and game and stew
"Have taken their flight with hurrying feet:
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"
The wily old Devil did groan and greet,
"What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(7)

"Heavens! What hath become of our curses and oaths and blows?
 "Our pavilions and pomps, and the thrones and truncheons which we dispose?
 "The sticks and scourges and rods that were ready in ranks and rows?
 "What hath arrested our nimble feet?
 "What'll I do? O what'll I do?"
 The wily old Devil did groan and greet,
 "What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

(8)

"What hath become of our slaughter of peasants and torments grim?
 "What of our roasted lambs and our goblets filled to the brim?
 "What of our sherbets sweet and the succulent capon's limb?
 "Whither is gone our delectable meat?
 "What'll I do? O what'll I do?"
 The wily old Devil did groan and greet,
 "What'll I do? O what'll I do?"

The following poem appeared in No. 45 of the Nasim-i-Shimál on July 12, 1909, the very day on which the first detachment of the Nationalist Volunteers under the command of the Sipahdár entered Tíhrán¹. It depicts Shaykh Faḡlu'lláh, the reactionary mujtahid, hastening to betray Persian independence and ready to sell the country by auction to the highest bidder. A rhymed paraphrase of the first half of this poem is appended.

Hájji, the market's brisk, the bidding high ;
 Here comes the auctioneer ! Who'll buy ? Who'll buy
 I'm here the Persian land to sell or pawn,
 The pride and honour of each Musulmán,
 Both Qum and Rasht, both Qazwín and Káshán,
 Yazd, Khwánsár, every city of Írán.
 All's up for auction at a figure fair :
 Come, gentlemen, where is a bidder, where ?

(2)

Of Liberals I am the stalwart foe :
 I'd like to kill them all, as well you know !
 I represent Shaykh Fazlu'lláh and Co.,
 Brokers, who hawk Religion to and fro,
 Here is the carcase. Gentlemen, draw near !
 Who'll buy ? Who'll buy ? Here comes the auctioneer !

(3)

My countrymen I loathe and execrate ;
 My country is the object of my hate !
 I represent our Monarch wise and great,
 Who to my hapds commits the Nation's fate !
 'Tis time for breakfast. Put this business through !
 Who bids ? Who bids ? Come Sir, a bid from you !

At Shahr-i-Naw behold the patriots' post!
 Scattered at Karach is the Cossack host!
 Well may I rave, or e'en give up the ghost!
 Let's sell the land to him who offers most!
 What offer for this richly-wrought brocade
 With gold enwoven? Is no offer made?

Who wants these trumpets, drums and flags to own?
 Who'd make the Lion and the Sun his own?
 Who'll make a bid for Persian Jamshíd's throne?

 For this fine horse and for this bridle rare
 Who'll make a bid? Where is an offer, where?

The following poem, which celebrates the Nationalist victory and capture of Tīhrán, the deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí, and the accession of his young son Sulṭán Aḥmad Sháh, appeared in No. 48 of the Nasīm-i-Shimál on August 1, 1909, only a fortnight after these stirring events. It and the poem next succeeding are remarkable not only for their spirited words and metre and the wonderful lilt of the lines, but for a note of triumph and optimism which too rarely reveals itself in these poems. The beauty of both poems lies largely in the euphony of the phrases and the splendour of the rhythm and rhymes, which I have despaired of rendering adequately into English, even in the freest paraphrase. As the poems present no particular difficulty I have not given a prose translation, but have contented myself with adding a few notes to explain allusions to current events.

¹ The execution of Shaykh Faḡlu'llāh of Nūr, the reactionary mujtahid, is announced in the latest news in this same issue.

² The allusion is to the Muḡtadīr-i-Nizām, who had been already punished in April, 1908, for the part he took in the Abortive Coup d'État of December, 1907. (See my Persian Revolution, p. 199.) He was not, however, hanged in August, 1909, as this poem implies.

³ The Mufākhru'l-Mulk, who had been Vice-Governor of Tihān and had taken refuge at the Russian Legation, was condemned to death by the Special Court instituted to try such cases, and was shot on July 29, 1909. See my Persian Revolution, p. 329.

"I dream once more I rule o'er Persia's land,
 And in my garden scoff at God's command.
Bahádúr Jang before me still I see,
 Who cries 'O King! May I thy ransom be!'
Liakhoff too, my Russian colonel true,
 Marshals his Cossacks still before my view.
 While old Mushíru's-Saltána, the cow!
 Drains, as of yore, the people's life-blood now,
 And Sa'du'd-Dawla, egotist unique,
 Still to my ears of Russian aid doth speak.
 The Shaykh of Núr and Mírzá Hasan both
 Sanction the breaking of my solemn oath.
 The Imám-Jum'a and his pious peers
 Urge me to break my word and have no fears.
 Kúr Ámulí and Akbar Sháh withal
 Me still 'God's shadow on the Earth' do call.
Mujallal, with the wine-cup in his hand,
 With locks dishevelled doth before me stand;
 While smooth-cheeked pages with love-wanton eyes
 Bemuse my wits and make my heart their prize:
 And 'Aynu'd-Dawla, Şamad and Rahím
 Still loot the town of Tabriz in my dream.
 Still from the Russian Bank my wars to wage
 I beg for cash and offer pledge and gauge¹."

¹ All the persons mentioned in the above poem were notorious reactionaries, and full accounts of most of them will be found in my Persian Revolution, viz. of Amír Bahádúr Jang on pp. 114, 162, 166, 199-200, 227, 261, 321, 330, 334 and 446-7; of Liakhoff, passim; of Mushíru's-Saltána, pp. 334, 405, 445; of Sa'du'd-Dawla, pp. 52, 131, 137, 140, 154-5, 166, 306, 330, 334 and 443; of 'Abidin Khán Mujallalu's Sultán, pp. 198-200, 330, 432, 445 and 447-8; of 'Aynu'd-Dawla,

The following fine poem originally appeared on July 26, 1909, in the Nasīm-i-Shimāl, No. 47; and again in the Īrān-i-Naw, No. 93, on December 19, 1909. In the first only it bears the superscription من کلام عشور عمو. In the second it is followed by another poem signed Mīrzā Taqī Khān Darwīsh, but it is not clear whether this signature is intended to apply to both poems or only to the second.

¹ The two texts of this poem offer a certain number of variants which for my present purpose I have not deemed it necessary to record. I have followed in the main the V.S. version, which contains 3 stanzas (10, 11 and 13) omitted in L.V. The most important variant occurs in the third misra' of stanza 8, where V.S. reads

War's toward, and work for all; no time to waste, with a lám-láy;

Our country's hope on this work is based, with a lám-láy,
lám-láy;

Rise, then, rise, and to college haste, with a lám-láy, lám-láy!

Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy! Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy!

(3)

From the martyrs' blood and thy forbears' dust, with a lám- láy, lám-láy,

A rampart rings thee which thou canst trust, with a lám-láy,
lám-láy;

Sorrow we may, but struggle we must, with a lám-láy, lám-láy!

Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy! Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy!

(4)

A Persian boy art thou, and Persia thy fatherland, with a lám-láy ;
 Well in a faultless body a fearless soul doth stand, with a

 That soul art thou, and this body of thine is the Persian land, with a lám-láy !
Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy ! Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy !

(5)

Rise in arms, and to save the State thy quality show, with a lám-láy !
 Wherefore, O tender rose-bud, is Persia brought so low, with a lám-láy !
 With a garment of glory invest thyself, that it be not so,
 with a lám-láy !
Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy ! Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy !

(6)

No longer the cot but the saddle now is thy proper place,
 with a lám-láy !
 O lion-cub, 'tis time for the chase, with a lám-láy, lám-láy !
 Arise, arise, for a foeman lurks in each sheltering space, with a lám-láy !
Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy ! Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy !

(7)

Suffer not that thy native land be the foeman's share, with a lám-láy !
 Since it hath like thee a hero bold and a champion rare,
 with a lám-láy !
 Let not its honour decline and its hope be turned to despair,
 with a lám-láy !
Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy ! Láy-láy, bálá láy-láy !

(24)

The following poem, also by Láhúti of Kirmánsháh, appeared on February 9, 1910, in No. 129 of the Írán-i-Naw, and is a denunciation of the notorious Rahím Khán Chálíbánlú. The earlier career of this miscreant is recorded in my Persian Revolution. Immediately after the deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí, on August 8, 1909, he began to loot sundry Armenian villages in N.W. Persia and to massacre the inhabitants. Ten days later he openly revolted against the restored Constitutional Government. On August 29 he was captured by Russian troops, but was released by them on September 18 on payment of a considerable sum of money. A month later he marched on Ardabíl, which was reported to have fallen into his hands on November 2. A few days later a second body of Russian troops was sent to Ardabíl, ostensibly to effect his capture, and on November 10 it was stated on the authority of the Times correspondent at Tíhrán that £25,000 had already been expended by the Persian Government on the equipment of an army to take the field against him. This army, commanded by Yeprem Khán, the Armenian, inflicted a severe defeat upon him on December 31, 1909, and four days later had driven him back on the Russian frontier and surrounded him so thoroughly that only across that frontier could he escape. The Persian Government, appealing to the explicit provisions of the Treaty of Turkmán-cháy, begged the Russian Government not to permit him to take refuge across their border; they not only allowed him to do this, however, but refused his extradition on February 4, 1910, and allowed him to proceed to Elizavetpol (the ancient Ganja), where he remained for nearly a year. He subsequently returned to Tabríz (about January 23, 1911) where he was ultimately put to death. His was one of the numerous flagrant cases of Russian patronage and protection accorded to Persian subjects in active revolt against their Government. An illustration facing p. 440 of my Persian Revolution shows him, surrounded by a number of his followers, with his hand affectionately clasping that of a Russian Consular official, while a Russian officer stands a little distance from him on the other side.

(Translation)

Fie on the traitor renegade, outlawed and unashamed,
 Who after all these evil deeds from Russia shelter claimed !
 In all the world save Russia no country do I ken Willing protection to afford to such dishonoured men.
 The villainies of Rahīm Khán are noised o'er land and sea,
 And now 'neath Russia's shelt'ring care he stands, from danger free !

I know not why so great a Power should seem to take a pride
 Such human fiends of scowling mien in calling to its side.
 Alas ! by friendship thus misplaced it maketh but too plain
 How great a hate for us and ours it still doth entertain !
 Profound mistrust and deep disgust grow ever more and more,
 And deeds like these to the Seven Seas spread from the Caspian shore.

If such a tyrant vile were housed in prison it were best,
 Not met with hospitable care, like some much-honoured guest.
 Foes of the human race like these whoever shall befriended Reason his action to regret finds surely in the end !

The following excellent poem, entitled Ququlîqû ("Cock-a-doodle-do!") appeared in the Nasîm-i-Shimâl of December, 1910, and is signed Mâht-gîr ("Fisherman"), perhaps on account of the allusion in the last verse to the obnoxious Fishery Concession (shilât) on the Persian shore of the Caspian granted to a Russian named Lianzof or Lianozoff, of which the original scope was violently extended by the concessionaire, supported by his Government, to the upper waters of all the rivers of Mázan-darán and Gílân discharging themselves into the Caspian.

Floods of trouble have brought our land to a swift decline,
The while we sleep, bemused, like men who are drunk with wine.

Alack and alas for the Winter's cold, Coocoolicoo!

Cry the cocks and the roosters young and old, Coocoolicoo!

 Our village-children are filled with terror and fear, I ween!

 Alack and alas for the Winter's cold, Coocoolicoo!

Rouse ye, Ho! for as yet 'tis but the first of the work!
 Rage like lions: the hunt's toward, and who would shirk?
 Quit ye as men, for in every corner a foe doth lurk!
 Spurned in the dust are the roosters bold, Coocoolicoo!
 A Muslim land shall the heathen hold? Coocoolicoo!

Terrible talk is heard to-day in Anzalí
 Of Lianzoff's claims to the fish which haunt our rivers and sea;
 In a million ways with our homes and lands he now makes free.
 To the sea the fisherman's woes are told, Coocoolicoo!
 Alack and alas for the Winter's cold, Coocoolicoo!

The next poem is a ballad, or taşníf ascribed to a lady named Minára Khánim, but signed "Húp-húp." It is, like so many *taşníf*s, written in a very simple and colloquial style, and contains some forms (like wásat, for wásita-at, "for thee," and mana, for mará, "me") which belong to the colloquial speech or even to dialects.

"Weep not, Mother dear, I pray, nor worry :
 I will buy you sugar-loaves and sweets untold,
 And a pretty out-door mantle stitched with gold,
 For when crushed by household care, Mother dear !
 You fill me with despair, Mother dear !"

The following poem, entitled Khabar dár! ("Look out!") and signed Fikri-yi-Barzgar, appeared in the Nastín-i-Shimál of May 11, 1911 (No. 7 of the Fourth Year). Its real author is said to be Ashraf of Rasht, the editor of the paper above mentioned, and this is very probable.

After your prayers, O reverend Sir, to meditation turn:
 Since each one minds his own affair, you mind your own concern!

In truth in this our age each one doth mind his own affair;
 The scorpion's thinking of his sting, the bulbul of his air;
 The bearded chin of beardless cheek, the beardless chin of hair.

Since each one minds his own affair, you mind your own concern!

O dervish friend, my eyes' delight, at large the fields you graze,
 Who once in schools and colleges did spend laborious days!
 Naught know you save the lecturer's rhetorical displays;

Since each one minds his own affair, you mind your own concern!

One calls himself a Shaykhí, one calls himself a Bábí;

One faction I'tidálí, one party *Inqilábí*¹,

While in "self-help" another lot unto themselves a Law be;

Since each one minds his own affair, you mind your own concern!

¹ The rival sects of the Bábí and the Shaykhís are well known to all students of modern Persian history. The political parties named I'tidálí ("Moderate") and Inqilábí ("Revolutionary") took definite shape after the opening of the Second National Assembly in 1909.

 (امضاء سيد نجف بنا)

The optimistic tone of this poem is partly due to the withdrawal of the Russian troops (except 80 Cossacks, retained as a "Consular Guard") from Qazwín on March 13-15, 1911, alluded to in stanza 8; and partly to the arrival at Anzali on the very day of the poem's publication of Mr Morgan Shuster and the other American advisers, alluded to in stanza 10. This poem is quite easy, and I have not thought it necessary to add a translation, but the following observations may facilitate its comprehension. The newspaper Nasím-i-Shimál boasts itself the champion of the poor artisans and peasants, and then gives a long list of the places in Persia where its advent is hailed with joy. Those mentioned in stanza 3 are towns of importance in various parts of Persia, while the twelve villages enumerated in stanza 4 are all in the Caspian provinces of Gílán and Mázan-darán. The Tangúz Yíl ("Year of the Pig") mentioned in stanza 7 is one of the cycle of twelve years, each called after some animal, brought into Persia by the Tartars (tangúz in Oriental Turkish is equivalent to the Ottoman Turkish domuz). The translation of stanza 9, which may be of interest to feminists is as follows:—

"Henceforth all the girls shall be educated;
 All shall have their share in the Colleges of Science;
 They shall be equal with the boys in their rights of learning.
 Blessed is this participation of the World of Women!"

Stanzas 11 and 12 contrast the luxury and dissipation of the wealthy nobles with the misery of the poor and their half-starved children. The last stanza expresses confidence that God's help will keep Persia for the Persians, however gloomy the outlook may be.

The two following poems both appeared in the Nasim-i-Shimāl of July 30, 1911 (No. 10 of the Third Year), and both refer to the recent attempt (July 19, 1911) of the ex-Sháh Muḥammad 'Alí (aided and abetted by the Russians) to recover his lost throne, an attempt which was ended on September 5 by what the Times correspondent described as "a decisive and brilliant victory of the government troops," the execution of Arshadū'd-Dawla, the ex-Sháh's best and most devoted general, and the flight of the ex-Sháh himself on a Russian ship on September 7.

The first of these two poems, entitled "Congratulation" (Tabrík), is a very short one and runs as follows.

(۱)

دیدى به استرآباد آمد بلای ناگاه' یعنی که سر بر آورد آن مستبد خود خواه'

Behold o'er Astarábad what sudden plague is spread,
 For there that selfish despot once more doth rear his head.
 How well divergent factions to meet this plague combine!
 God bless the Nation's Union! God bless this effort fine!

All, all combine together, for Progress is their quest,
 And Muslim and Armenian each strives to do his best;
 Absorbed are all the Persians in this endeavour blessed.
 With hope deferred is wasted this vagrant libertine!
 God bless the Nation's Union! God bless this effort fine!

(3)

The Democrats and Moderates, like one fraternity,
 Unite their bands and join their hands in all equality:
 Persia and rule of Despots—remote may these two be!
 The just are now exalted, the tyrants loud repine;
 God bless the Nation's Union! God bless this effort fine!

(30)

The next poem, described as a rajaz (a term applied to heroic, or in this case mock-heroic verse) is supposed to express the feelings of the ex-Sháh Muḥammad 'Alí on beholding the failure of his efforts to regain the throne which for two years and a half he so unworthily filled.

- (1) "I am that famous, shameless libertine
 Whose days and nights were passed twixt sleep and wine!
 Although my belly daily larger grows,
 My strength is waning like the melting snows.
 Could I to Tīhrán once an entrance gain
 Its people butcher-like I'd cleave in twain,
 And its inhabitants, both great and small,
 With shot and shrapnel I would dose them all!
- (5) As for the Regent¹, off his head should go,
 Who caused my projects to miscarry so;
 And with my pen-knife out the eyes I'd bring
 Of Sultán Aḥmad Sháh, the reigning king²;
 Out the Sardár-i-As'ad's heart I'd take,
 And the Sipahdár into mince-meat make;
 The Parliament with cannons I would shake,
 For freedom's balm to me's a poisoned snake;

² He succeeded to the throne on July 18, 1909, on his father's deposition.

- And, by my worthless Northern Friend's advice,
I'd crush the folk, as though they were but lice;
- (10) The Deputies to one long rope I'd tie,
And topsy-turvy turn the Ministry.
Now in the dust my head is bowed, and I
Glide like a serpent from the Nation's eye.
A hundred thousand guineas in a year
I wrung as 'road-tax' from the people's fear.
The 'Sea of Light', gold, rubies beyond price
I squandered on my drinking bouts and dice.
To please my Russian mistress when she's glum
I play the tambourine and beat the drum.
- (15) How in Odessa, when my funds ran low,
To Belgium sped my agents, all men know.
Only to change my name I did decide—'Muhammad Husayn, rascal double-dyed.'
Although the vulgar call me 'Mamdali'
I'm not 'dali'; in wits few equal me!
The people's blood in streams I'll cause to pour
From Astarábád unto Sabzawár!
To Ardabíl Mujallal swift doth hie;
Alas! Ill-fortune bears him company!
- (20) Arshad-i-d-Dawla, like a tortoise slow,
At Urmiya about my work doth go.
My flag at Gyumush-tepé I display,
Hoping in ruins town and land to lay.
Thought of three foes my heart with hate doth freeze—
The Bakhtiyáris, Gílán and Tabríz.
But most of all Tabríz—that ruined land
Where Sattár Khán this conflagration planned.
I weep to think that one escaped alive
Of those my foes who in the Park did strive³.

¹ This celebrated diamond (the Daryá-yi-Núr) is the companion gem to the still more celebrated Küh-i-núr ("Mountain of Light").

² "Mamdali" is the vulgar contraction of Muhammad 'Alí. The meaning of the Turkish word "dali" (or "deli") is "mad."

³ This alludes to the conflict of August 7, 1910, in the Atábak's Park at Tíhrán, on the occasion of the disarming of the *fidái*s.

- (25) Should Tīhrán once again become my share
 Not one of all its people will I spare.
 Of grocer, baker and of caterer,
 Of druggist, butcher and of fruiterer,
 Townsman and peasant, toilers without rest,
 Of aged men and children at the breast,
 Of blacksmith, joiner, carpenter therewith,
 Of draper and of pedlar and goldsmith,
 The blood in such wise on the earth I'll shed
 That it shall form a sea with waves of red!
- (30) But cruel fate has tied my hands, alack!
 And fortune sinister doth break my back!
 I'm poor, I'm poor, I'm poor, I'm poor indeed;
 I have not, have not, have not, aught I need!
 O belly, belly, belly, belly mine,
 'Tis you who cause me thus to grieve and pine!
 To thee, Bahádúr, greetings do I send;
 Where art thou? Help me, O my trusty friend!
 Sardár Muhiyy, I hear, hath marched from Ray,
 And wends towards Mázandarán his way.
- (35) This time, for all my bulging paunch, I feel
 That on the gibbet I shall dance a reel!
 With empty purse and brains of sense bereft,
 I've neither foot to fly nor refuge left!"

The following poem, like the last, is supposed to express the feelings of the ex-Sháh Muḥammad 'Alí after the failure of his attempt to regain the throne in August, 1911. It appeared in the Nasím-i-Shimál (No. 12 of the Third Year) on September 11, 1911. It contains a certain number of slang or colloquial expressions, especially in the last bayt of each stanza, e.g. namt-shé (= namt-shawad), Mamdalt (= Muḥammad 'Alí), Shá (for Sháh), mí-khád (for mí-khwáhad), mí-khám (for mí-khwáham), etc. I have not thought it necessary to add a translation of this poem.

Of the persons alluded to in this poem, Rashidu's-Sultán was defeated by the Bakhtiyáris at Fírúzkúh on August 11, 1911, and was said to have been shot or to have died of his wounds two days later. Arshadu'd-Dawla, the best and most capable of the ex-Sháh's generals, was taken prisoner and shot by Yeprem Khán, the great Armenian general of the Constitutionalists, on September 5, 1911. A very graphic account of this event, by Mr W. A. Moore, appeared in the Times a day or two later. The Sardár-i-Muḥiy was the real leader of the Rasht army in the summer of 1909. Photographs of both him and Yeprem Khán will be found facing p. 436 of my Persian Revolution. The other three persons mentioned in stanza 5 are well-known chiefs of the Bakhtiyáris.

The following poem appeared in the Charand Parand column of the Šúr-i-Isráfil (No. 24) for February 27, 1908. It is entitled Ru'asá wa Millat ("the Leaders and the Nation"), and is difficult to understand fully, being written in the language employed by mothers in speaking to their small children. Of all the poems here cited it is the most remote from the ordinary literary language. The "leaders of the people" are, apparently, represented as an ignorant mother, and the Nation as a sickly child, who finally expires in its mother's arms in consequence of her mismanagement.

(1) Dust on my head¹! The child has woken up! Go to sleep, my pet; the Bogey-man² is coming!
Don't cry! The ogre³ will come and eat you up! The cat will come and take away your kiddy⁴!

¹ This expression is equivalent to "Botheration take me!"

² Literally "the two-eared one-head," an imaginary monster with which children are intimidated.

³ Lulu is another kind of bogey.

⁴ Buzbuz is anything, such as a pet animal or a toy, to which a child is much attached.

Oh, oh! What ails you¹, my pet? "I am hungry" [you say]²? May you burst³! You have eaten all this: is it too little⁴?

Get out⁵, dog! Pussy, puss, puss, come here! Hushaby, darling! You are my rose! Hush, hush!

(5) "Mamma! I am ready to die with hunger!" Don't cry! To-morrow I will give you bread!

"O dear, Mamma! My life is ready to leave me!" Don't cry! The pot is just on the boil!

"O my hand! See, it is as cold as ice!" Fie, fie, my Soul! See, the breast is dry⁶!

"Why does my head spin so?" [Because] the lice are digging holes in your head!

Akh-kh-kh!...What ails you, my Soul? Hâq, hâq! O my Aunt⁷! Why are its eyes turned up to the ceiling?

(10) Come here! Alas, see, its body also has become cold! Dust on my head! Why has its colour turned so pale?

(11) Woe is me! My child is gone from my hands! Alas, alas! To me there remain but sighs and grief! Alas, alas⁸!

(33)

I do not know whether or where the following poem was published, but its title, "On the departure of Mr Shuster from Persia," sufficiently fixes its date as the latter part of the year 1911. Mr Shuster's dismissal was demanded by the Russian Government on November 29 of that year, and he handed over his charge to Mr Cairns on January 7, 1912, and left Tīhrān four days later. The poem is by 'Ārif of Qazwīn.

¹ Chitē? = chist-at, "What is to thee?" "What ails thee?"

² Gushnama = gurasna-am.

³ = بطرکی.

⁴ Kamē = kam-ast.

⁵ Chikh ("get out!") is probably Turkish, from the verb chikmaq (chikhmaq).

⁶ Persian mothers, when they wish to wean their babies, smear the nipple with some black or bitter substance (such as opium) to make the child recoil from it. Speaking of this they say, Memē akh shuda ("the nipple has gone sour").

⁷ Hâq, hâq is an onomatopoeic word indicating sobbing.

⁸ This is the literal rendering of Wây, Khâla!—an exclamation used by Persian women in a manner similar to the corresponding English vulgarity.

⁹ The exclamation "Rûd, rûd!" is used by women in lamenting the bad conduct or the death of an only and much-loved child.

(1)

Shame on the host whose guest unfed doth from the table rise!
 Rather than this should happen, make thy life his sacrifice!
 Should Shuster fare from Persia forth, Persia is lost in sooth:
 O let not Persia thus be lost, if ye be men in truth!

(2)

Behold, these Ministers of ours¹ our Muslimhood divide,
 And each unto our common foe his portion doth confide;
 One party still² in unison demands that thou should'st stay;
 We're naught but heathens if we let our Faith thus slip away!

(3)

To-day a gang of thieves become the guardians of our land:
 In all this Kingdom thou alone dost see and understand!
 Close clinging to thy skirts a band of suppliants are we,
 For, should'st thou go, our Country's name, alas! will go with thee!

(4)

Our cup is full unto the brim, our measure overflows;
 Our homes are meanly filched away by base and cruel foes!
 And if we suffer Shuster now to leave our Persian land
 Eternal infamy our name in history shall brand!

(5)

The wolf and shepherd's dog are one like Laylá and Majnún³;
 A cowardly herdsman guards the flock and will betray it soon.
 O what creative energy our Hearts' Exemplar⁴ showed!
 Let not our faithful guardian quit our desolate abode!

(6)

O leave us not, although our life and thought are merged in night!
 The eyes of those who wish us ill grow blind when we unite:
 But, left by thee, the banquet's glee turns to reaction drear,
 And thus it is that 'Árif's wail doth reach to Saturn's sphere⁵!

¹ i.e. the Cabinet who effected the dissolution of the Majlis in December, 1911.

² Presumably the so-called "Democrats," who were the patriotic party.

³ Laylá and Majnún are the typical lovers of Eastern romance.

⁴ The "Ku'ba of hearts" is that to which men's hearts turn as the Faithful turn towards Mecca. "Kun fá-yakún" ("Be!" and it is") is God's Creative Word.

⁵ i.e. the seventh and highest heaven, which is the "Sphere of Saturn."

- To London speed, O breeze of dawning day,
 Bear this my message to Sir Edward Grey.
 To thee in skill, wise Councillor of State,
 Ne'er did the world produce a peer or mate!
 Great Peter's schemes to thine were shifting sand,
 And weak by thine the plans that Bismarck planned.
 Ne'er from Toulon Napoleon's hosts had gone
 If on the Pyramids thy name had shone.
- (5) Had Paris been in league with thee, in vain
 The German hosts had swamped Alsace-Lorraine.
 Had England 'gainst the States sought help from thee
 No Washington had won them victory.
 Had thy prestige companioned England's arms
 Ne'er had the Boers caused England such alarms.
 Would Kuropatkin's hosts before Japan
 Had fled had he been guided by thy plan?
 Had the Manchus been aided by thy thought
 The rebels ne'er against their king had fought.
- (10) And had thy schemes included Persia's life
 Not fruitless had remained this storm and strife.
 "When fortune frowns on man," the proverb goes,
 "His wisest act no good resultant shows."
 Alas that thou, for all thy wits, hast wrought
 A deed which save regret can yield thee naught!
 For India's gates, closed for a hundred years,
 To Russia now you open without fears.

- You nurse the wolf-cub in your arms: a deed
Which folly prompts, and which to grief will lead.
- (15) To this o'erbearing partner you submit,
And bow your head, bereft of sense and wit.
Your pacts with Russia made in time gone by Brought loss unseen by your short-sighted eye.
In Afghánistán, Persia and Tibet
Before your foe a three-doored wall you've set.
Mosul to Sistán's now an open way:
Herát, Tibet they claim, nor fear your "Nay!"
Henceforth this three-fold road to watch, indeed,
A million men on land and sea you'll need.
- (20) India's advantage if you squander so
Naught will you reap except remorse and woe.
You knew not, though both town and desert knew,
What hurt to England would from this accrue.
Not Persia only feels the Russian squeeze;
'Tis felt by Afgháns and by Káshgharís!
"Russia her pact will keep," you answer me:
Her records read, and wondrous things you'll see!
Not I but human nature tells you plain
That pacts weigh naught compared with present gain;
- (25) The more since Russia longs for India still
As longs the hawk for partridge on the hill;
Else why did she o'er Persian lands let loose
Her Cossack hordes to crown her long abuse?
Why in Khurásán, India's broad highway,
Do all these troops of hers unmotivated stay?
Such mischief wherefore hath she wrought, and why Done deeds redounding to her infamy?
From Tabríz to Sarakhs her soldiers dwell,
Some twenty thousand, if you count them well.
- (30) From North to East our land all peaceful lay:
Why without reason do the Russians stay?
Reason, forsooth! The Russians there remain
Waiting for some more glorious campaign
With India for its goal: this goal they crave,
These pampered pirates of the Caspian Wave!

- The more so should you culpably delay
 Till Russian rails to India find their way.
 These rails shall bring thy foeman near to thee :
 Avoid such roads so fraught with jeopardy !
- (35) 'Twas Persia barred the road : woe worth the day
 Which swept this ancient barrier away !
 O cursed obstinacy, which did raise
 This veil, and set the feet in such a maze !
 Headstrong and rash you wrought a deed of shame
 Which stolid Turk and vagrant Arab blame.
 Woe to that judgement cool, that reason bright,
 Which now have put you in so dire a plight !
 All hail that judgement, hail that insight rare,
 Of which, men say, you hold so large a share !

(35)

The following poem, entitled "An offering of thanks and welcome to the honoured and revered guest," is a curious protest against the intrusion of Germany (real or supposed) into Persian affairs; for, by the generality of Persians, Germany was favourably regarded as friendly to Islām and hostile to Russia. It appeared in No. 17 of the illustrated comic paper Āzarbāyyjān on October 11, 1907.

("Fortunate is your advent! Greeting and Welcome to thee, O Germany!")

"O newly-arrived guest of Persia, welcome!
 O Germany! Your place is on our eyes: welcome!
 Persia is like a well-filled table with foreigners for guests;
 O guest unbidden to this table, welcome!
 Thanks be to God! The morning of union hath appeared;
 The nights of separation have come to an end: welcome!
 To take captive the bird-like hearts of your unhappy lovers
 With the snare in your hand and the grain in your apron, welcome!

- (5) Claiming to be the protector of Islám and the Muslims
 Thou hast entered the gang of thieves : welcome !
 But, since your competitors have carried off all that there was,
 I am afraid that disappointment may be your portion :
 welcome !
 Islám was friendless and helpless ; now
 A hundred thanks, it has found a guardian like thee :
 welcome !
 I know thee well, O libertine of many spells !
 The Devil sings the praises of thy cunning : welcome !
 Thy favour ever embraces Islám ; we are unable to voice the thanks which are your due : welcome !
- (10) Cunning prompted thee to extend the hand of friendship to the Turk ;
 Thou didst whisper into his ear the verse of loss : welcome !
 Then, on the pretext of friendship for the Sultan of Fez,
 Thou didst hasten towards Tangier : welcome !
 The injury which Morocco experienced from such a friend as thee
 It had never experienced from the enmity [of another] :
 welcome !
 Having finished with the affairs of these two, without delay
 Thou didst appear in the land of Persia : welcome !
 To shear the heads of a handful of innocents
 Thou bringest in thy hand a sharp razor : welcome !
- (15) Wantonly, with pretexts of College and Bank,
 Thou hast attained thy secret object : welcome !
 Our cry of lamentation still rises to heaven
 On account of the Russian and British Banks : welcome !
 In short it seems that we have now no option Save to submit to the orders of the Franks : welcome !
- (18) Yet the circling heaven remains not in one position ;
 Say, 'Despair not of God !' Welcome !"

POEMS BY BAHÁR OF MASHHAD, ENTITLED MALIKU'SH-SHU'ARA, OR
"THE KING OF POETS."

At the end of October, 1913, I received through one of my Persian friends a collection of fifteen poems by Bahár of Mashhad, transcribed by the poet's own hand, only one of which (No. 20, pp. 218-20 supra) had previously reached me. These poems range in date from Jumáda i, A.H. 1327, to Ramaẓan, A.H. 1329 (= May-June, 1909, to August-September, 1911), and most if not all of them appeared in the Mashhad papers Khurásán, Tús and Naw Bahár, while the most celebrated of them (referred to above as already included in this book) also appeared in the Hablul-Matn, Írán-i-Naw and Taraqgí. I shall give a short description of these fifteen poems and the full text of several of the most striking.

(36)

The first is a fine mustazád (similar in form and metre to No. 5 on pp. 185-6 supra) written and published in the paper Khurásán in Jumáda i, A.H. 1327 (= May-June, 1909), towards the end of the "Lesser Tyranny" (Istibdád-i-ṣaghír), some few weeks before the capture of Tíhrán and deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí by the victorious Nationalists. It was designed to arouse in Khurásán sympathy with the efforts put forth by Ázarbáyján, Gílán and Ísfahán, and is here given in full.

با شو ایران ز آزادی سخن گفتن خطاست کار ایران با خداست

¹ Dawshán-tepé ("Hare Hill") is one of the Sháh's hunting-boxes situated a few miles to the N. E. of Tíhrán. See my Fear among the Persians, pp. 86 and 91.

² This line is a quotation from Háfiz.

(37)

The second poem in this collection is, in the words of the author, a portion of "a metrical history of Persia down to the time of Muḥammad 'Alī, mingled with moving exhortations, sent to the Shāh by means of Mushīrū's-Saltāna, the Court Chamberlain (Wazīr-i-Darbār), which, however, produced no effect." It also was composed in Jumáda i, A.H. 1327 (= May-June, 1909), but seems not to have been published at the time. This poem also I consider worthy of being reproduced here.

(1)

"O watchman, how long this sloth and heavy sleep?
 Sleep is not for the watchman; O, raise thy head from slumber!
 Behold thy flock without watchman or shepherd,
 On one side the raging wolf, on the other the roaring lion;
 That one snatches the morsel from the claws of this one, and this one from that one,
 Each one having dyed his claws and fangs with the blood of this flock.
 The watchman drunk, the flock preoccupied, the enemy watchful—
 The matter rests with God, for it has passed out of our hands!

(2)

"Accept advice freely, O King, from this loyal nature :
 Seek not for fairness from the foul, nor friendliness from thy neighbours ;
 Then put away out of thine head the words of these worthless ones :
 How long wilt thou seek for constancy from these inconstant ones ?
 Thy kingdom, O Prince, is a treasure, a royal treasure,
 And I fear, O King, lest this treasure may slip from thy hands without a struggle.

A wondrous treasure hast thou got in thy hands without trouble!

O King, since thou hast obtained it without trouble, how shouldst thou know the value of the treasure?

* * * *

"All these monuments of the Kings, O prince, are no vain tale ;
A king, O King, cannot dispense with kingly qualities.

Kingship does not befit every sluggard and madman ;

Yea, it is the candle, not the moth, which illuminates the banquet!

Lo and behold, in this house there is no master save thee,

Yet is there no house so desolate as thine, O Prince!

Arise, cause thy house to prosper by Justice and Bounty,

And, little by little, put away the stranger from thee!"

(38)

The third poem, written about the same time as the last (May-June, 1909), is also addressed to Muḥammad 'Alī, then Shāh. It is what is technically known as a takhmīs, or "five-some," and a taẓmīn, or amplification, of one of Shaykh Sa'dī's odes (ghazals), that is to say to each verse of Sa'dī's ode are prefixed three new half-verses, the five half-verses thus obtained constituting a band or stanza¹. This poem runs as follows:

(۱)

پادشاه ز ستبداد چه داری مقصود^۱ که ازین کار جز ادبار نگیرد مشهود^۲
جود کن در ره مشروطه که گردی مسجود^۳ "شرفِ مرد بخودست و کرامت بسجود"

¹ Concerning the takhmīs and mukhammas, see Vol. I of the late E. J. W. Gibb's History of Ottoman Poetry, pp. 92-3, and concerning the taẓmīn ("quotation"), p. 113. The poem of Sa'dī on which this is based will be found on pp. 292-3 of the Calcutta printed edition of A.D. 1791.

 ما پرستندهٔ حقیم و اُلوهیّتِ او ' "کز ثری تا بشریّا بعسودیتِ او ' همه در ذکر و مناجات و قیامت و قعود."

(۹)

سرزند کوکبِ مشروطه ز گردونِ کمال ' بسر آید شبِ هجران و دمد صُبْحِ وصال '
 کار نیکو شود از فرِّ خدای متعال ' "ایکه در شدّت و فقری و پریشانی حال ' صبر کن کین دو سه روزی بسر آید معدود."

(۱۰)

جز خطا کاری ازین شاه نمی باید خواست ' کانچه ما در او بینیم سراسر بخطاست '
 مَدِهَشْ پند که بر بد منشان بند هب است ' "پند سعدی که کلیدِ درِ گنجِ سَعْد است '

(I)

"O King, at what dost thou aim by thy despotism?
 From such deeds naught will be witnessed save evil fortune!
 Shew generosity in the way of the Constitution, that thou may'st be adored:

'The honour of a man is in generosity, and his nobility in worship:

Whoever has not these two, his non-existence is better than his existence !'

(2)

"O King, make not cruelty thy practice, nor break thy promises,
For, if thou dost, Divine punishment will seize thy skirt!

The happenings of the cycle of time will cast dust on thy head:

'Dost thou not see that the gladsome dust of Egypt is the same Dust of Egypt, but [cast] on the heads of Pharaoh and his hosts?'

(3)

"O King, thine obstinacy and tyranny consume Persia ;

To-day the Nation is successful in requiting thee!

The glow of the light of requital is not [a thing] of to-day :

*'This is the same world-enkindling disc of the Sun
Which used to shine on the dwellings of 'Ad and Thamúd!'*

(4)

"O King, strike not the axe more than this on thy root!

Cast not thyself and the Nation into the gulf of abasement!

Do not dig up thine own roots through selfish desires and whims!

*'Do not mar thy worth by frivolous and forbidden pursuits,
If thy belief in the Promised Day¹ be sincere!'*

(5)

"With tyranny thou didst reap clean the Nation's crop ;

The old story of Chingíz Khán hath been renewed by thine injustice ;

After this conversation wherefore shouldst thou set thy heart on the world?

'O thou who art in luxury and wealth, be not deceived by the world,

For to tarry eternally in this halting-place is an impossible contingency!'

(6)

"Pass by the region of Tabríz and the place of its martyrs:
Hearken to that soul-melting story, and rend thy heart with woe!
In that region, after that slaughter and strife,

*'Walk gently on the dust of that road wherever thou passest,
For it is [composed of] eyes and eyelids, cheeks and bodies!'*

(7)

"The King is not single-hearted, and affairs are gone to rack and ruin :

O wearied nation, think of some fresh plan at this stage!

Set not the foot of hope at the gate of this headstrong monarch!

'If thou stretchest out thine hand in supplication, stretch it towards One

Who is generous, merciful, forgiving and kind!'

(8)

"Who, indeed, is the King, with this his pride and egotism,
That his intentions with regard to us should be good?

We are the worshippers of God and His Divinity,

'In whose service, from the dust to the Pleiades,

All are engaged in commemoration, prayers, rising up and bowing down.'

(9)

"The Constellation of the Constitution appears from the Firmament of Perfection :

The Night of Parting draws to an end, and the Morn of Union dawns :

All will be well through the Glory of God Most High.

'O thou who art in hardship, poverty and distracted circumstances,

Be patient, for these few brief days will come to an end!'

(10)

"One must not expect from this King anything but mistakes,
For what we see in him is wrong from one end to the other:
Counsel him not, for vain is counsel to those of evil nature.

*'The advice of Sa'dt, which is the key to the door of the Treasure of the Blessed,
None can put into practice save the favoured!''*

(39)

The fourth poem of the collection, composed "in the latter days of the Lesser Tyranny, and the beginning of the Revolt in Khurásán (i.e. in the early summer of A.D. 1909) in order to excite and encourage the Fidá'is," was recited in the Bágh-i-'Anbar at Mashhad, and afterwards published in the newspaper Khurásán. It is remarkable in form as being what is called Dhú Qáfiyatayn, or having a double rhyme. Only the first of the five stanzas which constitute the poem is here given.

دوشینه ز ریخ دهرِ بد خواه	رفتم سوی بوستان نهانی
تا وا رم از خمارِ جانکاه	از لطف هوای بوستانی
دیدم گل‌های نغزِ دلخواه	خندان بطراوتِ جوانی
مرغانِ لطیف طع آگاه	نالان بنوای باستانی
بر آتش روی گلِ شبانگاد	هر يك سرگرم زند خوانی
من بخیرانه رفتم از راه	از آن نغماتِ آسمانی
با خود گفتم بناله و آه	کای رانده ز عالم معانی
با بال ضعیف و برِ کوتاه	پروازِ بلند کی توانی
بودم در این سخن که ناگاه	مرغی بزبان بی زبانی

این مزده بگوشِ من رسانید

کز رحمتِ حق مباشر نومید

The fifth poem has been already given (No. 20, pp. 218-20 supra). It was published not only in the Írán-i-Naw (from which it was quoted), but also in the papers Khurásán, Taraqí, and Hablu'l-Matín.

The sixth poem was originally declaimed in a great assembly of the notables, officials and people of Mashhad held in the Holy Shrine of the Imám Rizá to celebrate the opening of the Second National Assembly (about November 15, 1909). It is in praise of Freedom, comprises fifteen couplets, and begins :

بیآ ساقی که کرد ایزد قوی ارکانِ آزادی ' نبود آباد از تو خانه ویران آزادی '
جهان بکشد بر غم‌دیدگان ابوابِ آسایش ' فلک بر بست با دلخستگان بهمان آزادی '

The seventh poem was written in July, 1910, at a time of political crisis and change of Cabinet. It is a tarkib-band of four strophes, and appeared in the newspaper Tús, No. 50. The last strophe is as follows :

یارانِ روشِ دگر گرفتند ' وز ما دل و دیده بر گرفتند '
از مسلکِ ما شدند دلگیر ' بس مسلکِ خوشر گرفتند '
در سایه طمع اعتدالی ' بهرایه مختصر گرفتند '
هر زشتی را نکو گزیدند ' هر نفعی را ضرر گرفتند '
وز خارجیان ز ساده لوحی ' زهر از عوضِ شکر گرفتند '
فرمانِ شکوه خویشان را ' از دشمنِ کینه‌ور گرفتند '
باری هر کارِ پر خطرا ' کاینان ز ره خطر گرفتند '
بازی بازی ز کف نهادند ' شوخی شوخی ز سر گرفتند '
غافل که بخانقاهِ احرار '
سبصد گوش است پُشتِ دیوار '

(40)

The eighth poem appeared in No. 31 of the newspaper Tús on the Persian Nawrúz (New Year's Day), March 22, 1910. It is a mustazád of fifteen stanzas, and is worthy of notice both on account of its intrinsic beauty and its allusions to recent events in Persia.

(۱)

 یاد باد آن آتش افروزانِ پنهانِ دیار
 و آن گروه دیوسار

¹ The revolt in Zanjan, headed by Mullá Qurbán 'Alí, began about the middle of August, 1909, and culminated in the Dáráb Mírzá incident in May-June, 1910. The troubles at Ardabil began about the same time.

(۱۲)

یاد بادا آن طبیبِ روسی عیسی نفس

تا که مقصودی بدست آرم بعد از انتظار
لطفِ حق لا ینام
آن عزیز ذو انتقام
در ره ناموس و نام
بر خلافِ همجوار

¹ The "group" photograph of Rahīm Khān and his Russian friends to which reference is here made was published in the Hablu'l-Matin, the Manchester Guardian, and opposite p. 440 of my Persian Revolution.

² A line has evidently fallen out here in the original.

Rahīm Khān Qarāja-Dāghī,
 the notorious Reactionary referred to in verse 13 of Poem No. 40, holding the hand of M. Belneff, the Secretary of the Russian Consulate-General at Tabriz
 From a photograph taken about the end of August, 1909

هجواریان را بها انصاف کاری هست؟ نیست! رُو بکن کارِ دگر
 قومِ مغرب را بر اهلِ شرقِ باری هست؟ نیست! رُو بجو یارِ دگر
 خود خریداری بر این افغانِ وزاری هست؟ نیست! شوْ ببازارِ دگر
 ز آنکه کس را دل بجالِ کس نمی سوزد بهارِ کار باید کرد کار

(41)

The ninth poem, which appeared in No. 30 of the newspaper Tūs about the middle of March, 1910, is a satire on the disgraceful condition of the streets of Mashhad in rainy weather on account of the mud.

افتاده‌ام سخت بدامِ بلایِ گِلِ
 گِلِ مشکلی شده است بهر معبر و طریقِ
 هر گه که ابر خیمه زند در فضای شهرِ
 گِلِ دل نمی‌گند ز خراسان و اهلِ او
 گر صد هزار کفش بدرَد بیایِ خلقِ
 با خضر اگر روند بظلماتِ کوچه خلقِ
 اوّل قدم که بوسه زند گِلِ بیایِ ما
 گِلها ثقیل و درم و کوچه خراب و تنگِ
 گِلِ هر چه را به پتجه در آورد ول نکرد
 از گل ز بسکه خاطر و دلها فُسُرده² است
 بر روزگارِ خویش کنم گریه بامداد
 از بُشت تا بشانه و از پیش تا بریش
 امروز در قلمرو طوس از بلند و پست
 یا رب چو ما مباد کسی مبتلایِ گِلِ
 گامِ روندگان شده مشکل گشایِ گِلِ
 بر بامِ هر سرای بر آید لویِ گِلِ
 ای جانِ اهلِ شهر فدایِ وفایِ گِلِ
 هرگز نمی‌رسند بکشفِ غطایِ گِلِ
 اسکندری خورند¹ درین چشمه‌هایِ گِلِ
 افتنیم بر زمین و بیوسیم پایِ گِلِ
 آه از جفایِ کوچه و داد از جفایِ گِلِ
 صد آفرین به پنجهٔ معجز نمایِ گِلِ
 گل نیز بعد از این ندمد از فضایِ گِلِ
 چون بنگرم بجندهٔ دندانِ نمایِ گِلِ
 هستند خلقِ یکسره غرقِ غطایِ گِلِ
 آنجایکه کجاست که خالی است جایِ گِلِ

¹ Iskandari khurdan is a slang expression meaning "to fall on the face," but there is a tandsub with Khizr in the previous line.

² This is a conjectural emendation for rasida, which gives no good sense.

آید اگر جهاز زره پوش ز انگلند / حیران شود ز لجه بی منتهای گِل
 گر لای و گِل تمام نگردد ازین بلد / اهل بلد تمام بمانند لای گِل
 شرم آیدم ز گفتن بسیار ورنه باز /
 چندین هزار مسئله باشد ورای گِل

(42)

The tenth poem, a musaddas or "six-some," appeared in No. 1 of the newspaper Naw Bahār in the month of Shawwāl, A.H. 1328 (= October–November, 1910). Five of the twelve stanzas of this poem (Nos. 3, 6, 7, 8 and 12) are here given.

(۲)

وُزرا باز نهادند ز کف کار وطن / وُکلا مهر نهادند بکام و بدهن
 علما شبهه نمودند و فتادند بظن / چیره شد کشور ایران را انبوه فتن
 کشور ایران ز انبوه فتن در خطر است /
 ای وطنخواهان زنهار وطن در خطر است

(۶)

باری انگیزند این قوم در اصلاح امور / لیک پارتی شان ز اصلاح بصد مرحله دور
 غرض و حب ریاستشان اول منظور / غافل از اینکه وطن مانده غریب و مهجور
 ملت خسته چه از مرد و چه زن در خطر است /
 ای وطنخواهان زنهار وطن در خطر است

(۷)

خرس صحرا شده همدست نهنک دریا / کشتی مارا رانده است بگرداب بلا
 آه ازین رخ و من آوخ ازین جور و جفا / هان بُز جرات و غیرت نبود چاره ما
 ز آنکه ناموس وطن زین دو من در خطر است /
 ای وطنخواهان زنهار وطن در خطر است

(۸)

رقبارا بهم امروز سرِ صلح و صفاست آری این صلح و صفاشان بره ذلت ماست
 بخبر ز آنکه مهین رایتِ اسلام بیاست غافل آن قوم که قفقاز و لهستان بیاست
 غافل این فرقه که لاهور و دکن در خطر است
 ای وطنخواهان زنهار وطن در خطر است

(۱۲)

وطنیانی با دیده نر میگویم با وجودیکه در او نیست اثر میگویم
 تا رسد عمرِ گرانمایه بسر میگویم بارها گفته‌ام و بارِ دگر میگویم
 که وطن باز وطن باز در خطر است
 ای وطنخواهان زنهار وطن در خطر است

The paper Naw Bahár (see No. 357, p. 149 supra) first appeared on the 9th of Shawwál, A.H. 1328 (= October 14, 1910), at Mashhad. The celebrated Haydar Khán, called Amú-oghli ("cousin"), was its founder, and our poet Bahár, its editor. It was suppressed at the instance of the Russians exactly a year after its inception (on October 14, 1911).

(43)

The eleventh poem is evidently modelled on a well-known fragment by the great poet Jámí, beginning :

بدندان رخنه در پولاد کردن بناخن راه در خارا بُردن and ending :

همه بر جامی آسانتر نماید که بارِ منتِ دونان کشیدن

It was published in the Naw Bahár in Shawwál, A.H. 1328 (= October–November, 1910), and is as follows :

دو رویه زیرِ نیشِ مار خُفتن ' سه پشته روی شاخِ مور رفتن '
 تنِ روغن زده با زحمت و زور ' میانِ لانه زنور رفتن '
 بکوه بیستون بی رهنمائی ' شبانه با دو چشمِ کور رفتن '
 میانِ لرز و تب با جسمِ پر زخم ' زمستان توی آب شور رفتن '
 برهنه زخمهای سخت خوردن ' پیاده راههای دور رفتن '
 پیشِ من هزاران بار خوشتر '
 که یکجو زیرِ بار زور رفتن '

(44)

The twelfth poem is a tašnif, or ballad, in the "Afshár Mode," and appeared in the Naw Bahár in the month of Dhu'l-Hijja, A.H. 1328 (= December, 1910). It runs as follows :

(در پرده افشار)

(۱)

نمی دانم چرا ویرانه گشتی—وطن ' مقام لشکرِ بیگانه گشتی—وطن '
 تو شمع جمع ما بودی وطن جان—چرا ' بشمع دیگران پروانه گشتی—وطن '
 پروانه گشتی وطن ' (مکرّر)

تو عزیزِ منی تو گلِ گلشنی ' بدین خواری چرا افسانه گشتی وطن '

(۲)

خوشا روزی که بودی شاد و خندان—وطن ' شکستی خصم را چنگال و دندان—وطن '
 تو بودی سر بلند افسوس افسوس—وطن ' در افتادی بحالِ مستمندان—وطن '
 در افتادی بحالِ مستمندان وطن ' (مکرّر)

امان امان امان بیداد بیداد بیداد ' ز جور دشمنان ویرانه گشتی وطن '

(۳)

وطن جان ای وطن جان ای وطن جان من ' شفای دل دوی قلب سوزان من '
 جفاکش مادر زار پریشان من ' پرستار من و گهواره جنان من '
 پرستار من و گهواره جنان من ' (مکرر)
 مادر مهربان آشنای روان ' بفرزندان چرا بیگانه گشتی وطن '

(۴)

ز روس و انگلیس آید ستمها بها ' هجوم آرد ز هر سو درد و غمها بها '
 قدم در خاک ما از کین نهادند و باز ' بسی حجت نهند این بد قدمها بها '
 این بد قدمها بها ' (مکرر)
 اگر پیمان کنند چرا کتمان کنند ' ازین پیمان تو بی پیمانه گشتی وطن '
 ویرانه گشتی وطن ' ویرانه گشتی وطن '

The thirteenth poem was recited at the official celebration held on the birthday of Sulṭán Aḥmad Sháh by the Provincial Council of Khurásán in August, 1911, and was afterwards published in the Naw Bahár. It is a qaṣída of twenty-seven verses, composed in the style of the old poet Farrukhí, and begins:

می فروهیل ز کف ای ترك و بیکسونه چنگ ' جامه جنگ فرو پوش که شد نوبت جنگ '
 باده را روز بیفسرد بینه باده ز دست ' چنگ را نوبت بگذشت بینه چنگ ز چنگ '

(45)

The fourteenth poem was published in the Naw Bahár in Ramazán, A.H. 1329 (= August–September, 1911). It comprises eleven verses, and is an imitation of a poem by Minúchihri¹

ای خطه ایران مهن ای وطن من ' ای گشته بمهر تو عین جان و تن من '
 ای عاصمه دینی آباد که شد باز ' آشته کنارت جو دل پر حزن من '

ای باده فدای تو همه جان و تن من ' کز بیخ بگندی ز دل من حزن من '

دور از تو گل و لاله و سرو و سمن نیست¹ ای باغ گل و لاله و سرو و سمن من
 بس خارِ مُصیبت که خلد مرا بر پای⁽¹⁾ بی روی تو ای تازه شگفته چمن من
 ای بار خدای من گر بی تو زیم باز² افرشته من گردد چون اهرمن من
 تا هست کنار تو پُر از لشکر دشمن هرگز نشود خالی از دل من⁽²⁾ محن من
 از رنج تو لاغر شده‌ام چونان کز من تا بر نشود ناله نبینی بدن من⁽²⁾
 دردا و دریغا که چنان گشتی بی برگ³ کز بافته خویش نداری کنن من
 بسیار سخن گفتم در تعزیت تو⁴ آوخ که نگراند کمر را سخن من
 آنگاه نبوشند سخنهاى مرا خلق⁵ کز خون من آغشته شود پهرن من و امروز همی گویم با محنت بسیار
 دردا و دریغا وطن من وطن من

(46)

The fifteenth and last poem in this collection is placed in the mouth of the ex-Sháh Muhammad 'Alí, whose raid into Persia in August, 1911, ended, in spite of the hardly-concealed help of the Russians, in the defeat and death of his most capable General, Arshadu'd-Dawla, at the end of August and beginning of September, and his flight back to Russia soon afterwards. This poem also was published in the Naw Bahár.

The following poem, not included in the above collection, is also by Bahár, and was sent to me separately by a Persian friend. It is, I think, a parody of a well-known ode (ghazal) of Ḥáfiz or some other of the classical poets, and, though couched in the erotic strain usual in this class of poems, is full of political allusions.

دل فریبان که بروسیّه دل جا دارند ' مستدّانه چرا قصد دلِ ما دارند '
 دلبران خودسر و هرجائی و روسی صفتند ' ورنه در خانه غیر از چه سبب جا دارند '
 گاه لطف است و خوشی گاه عتاب است و خطاب ' نا چه ازین همه پولتیک تقاضا دارند '
 خوبرویان اروپا ز چه در مُردنِ ما ' حبله سازند اگر اعجاز مسیحا دارند '
 گرچه در قاعده حسن سیاسات جمال ' مسلک آنست که خوبان اروپا دارند '
 عاشقانرا سرِ آزادی و استقلالست ' کی ز پولتیکِ سرِ زلفِ تو پروا دارند '
 صفِ مژگانِ ترا دستِ سیاسی است دراز ' با ننوذیکه بمعصوره دلها دارند '
 دلِ مسکینِ من از قرضِ یکی بوسه گذشت ' با شروطی که لبانِ تو مهیا دارند '

The Poet Púr-i-Dáwúd

ما بتوضیحِ دو چشمانِ تو قانع نشوم ' ز آنکه با خارجیان الفت و نجوا دارند
 در پناهِ سرِ زلفِ تو بهارستان است ' که در او هیئتِ دل مجلسِ شورا دارند
 حکمِ فرمای که در محکمۀ حسن و جمال ' هر چه آن حکمِ تو باشد همه مجری دارند
 رازدارانِ تو در انجمنِ سرّی دل ' نطقی از رمزِ دهانِ تو تنها دارند
 دل غارت شده در محضرِ عدلیۀ عشق ' منتظّم شد و چشمانِ تو حاشا دارند
 سخن تازه ز طبعِ تو عجب نیست بهار
 که همه مشرقیان منطقی گویا دارند

POEMS BY PÚR-I-DÁWÚD

(48)

The following fine poem by Púr-i-Dáwúd has a less purely Persian vocabulary than he generally affects. It was communicated to me in November, 1913, and has, I think, never before been published.

از آه بختِ کسانم آبِ همه دربارا ' وز اشك كنم دریا روی همه صحارا
 در خیالِ همه یارانِ همراز نمی جویم ' نه زاهدِ روحانی نه شاهدِ زیبارا
 در جُبهۀ دیبا نی فضل و هنرِ مردم ' با علم و شرف پوشم خود جامۀ چوخارا
 در کلبۀ درویشی خوش باشم ار آزادم ' در بند نمی خواهم صد قصرِ معلارا
 جمعی بدرِ مسجدِ خیّلی بسوی فرخار ' خلقی بکشت اندر جمعی است کلیسارا
 گراز ستم گیتی آتشکده شد خاموش ' در کاخِ دل افروزم کانونِ آوستارا
 از مدرسه و از درس کی چاره شود دردم ' ساز و دف و نی خوشتر دل داده و شیدارا
 می گرچه حرام آمد در کیشِ مسلمانی ' در باده کشی پویم آئینِ مسیحارا
 خواهم که زیبا اُفتم مدهوش و خمار و مست ' تا نا شنوم ز ایران این غلغل و آوارا
 ۱۰ از ناحیۀ ایران هر لحظه بگوش آید ' صوتی که بلرزاند این گنبدِ مینارا

صوتی که ازو گردد خود موی همه سوزن' صوتی که ازو بینی خونین دل خارارا'
 گوید بتو ای فرزند اندیش بجال خویش' در یاب ز جهد امروز آسایش فردارا'
 دیبا نتوانی بافت زین پشم که می تاب' زین خار نخواهی چید هرگز گلِ حمرا'
 زنجیر ز من بر گیر آنگاه بچنگ آور' زنجیرِ سرِ زلفِ محبوبِ دلآرا'
 ۱۰ من در تب و تاب و غم تو شاد و خوش و خرم' ننگ است چنین غفلت مانند تو برنارا'
 از خونِ جوانانم شد دشت همه گلگون' باز آ و دمی بنگر گلگشت و تماشارا'
 شد از ستمِ دونان ملکِ جم و کی ویران' پیغوله جفدان بین ابران فلکسارا'
 شد شیرِ کیان پنهان جولانِ شگال آمد' خواری ز عقب آمد کَر و فر دارارا'
 شاهنشاه انوشروان در گور سیه خُسپید' خرس است ابر جایش بین بازی دنیارا'
 ۲۰ گر پور رود روزی از مهر وطن بر دار'
 صد شکر و سپاس آرد مر ایزد یکتارا'

(Translation)

- (1) With sighs I dry up the water of all the sea, and with tears
 I turn into a sea all the face of the plain.
 In all the company of friends I seek no confidant, nor spiritual ascetic, nor beauteous sweetheart.
 The virtue and talent of a man are not in the robe of brocade; for all my learning and nobility I wear a coat of cloth.
 If I be free I can be happy in a dervish's cell, while I desire not a hundred lofty palaces [if I be] in bonds.
- (5) There is a crowd at the door of the Mosque, a troop [moving] towards [the idol-temple of] Farkhâr, a host entering the synagogue, a congregation [filling] the church.
 If the Fire-temple has been extinguished through the tyranny of Fate, I will kindle in the chamber of the heart the altar of the Avesta.

- How can my sorrow be cured by colleges and lectures?
 Music, cymbals and flute are more congenial to the madman who has lost his heart.
- Although wine is forbidden in the Musulmán creed, in the drinking of wine I will pursue the Christian practice.
- I would fain fall down dazed, drunken and overcome by wine, so that I may not hear from Persia this clamour and crying.
- (10) From the direction of Persia every moment there reaches the ear a voice which causes this blue vault [of heaven] to tremble ;
- A voice whereat the very hair becomes like needles ; a voice whereat thou seest the heart of granite filled with blood.
- She cries to thee, "O son, consider thy state! Seek the ease of to-morrow by the efforts of to-day!
- "Out of this wool which thou art twisting thou canst not weave brocade ; from this thorn thou canst not gather the red rose !
- "Loose the chains from me, and only then take in thy hand the chain-like tresses of thy charming sweetheart !
- (15) "I am fevered, tormented and grieved, thou art glad, happy and cheerful ; such heedlessness is a shame in a youth like thee !
- "Through the blood of my young men the ground is all rosy-red ; come back and gaze for a moment on my rose-walks and rose-show !
- "Through the tyranny of evil men the Kingdom of Jamshíd and Kay hath been made desolate : Behold Persia, once exalted to Heaven, become a ruin haunted by owls.
- "The Lion of the Kayánians is hidden ; it is the time of the jackal's prowling ; humiliation hath succeeded the splendour and glory of Darius.
- "King Núshírwán slumbers in the dark tomb, while the Bear stands over his place. Behold the tricks of Fate !"
- (20) If, through love of his native land, Púr-i-Dáwúd should one day mount the scaffold, still will he give a hundred thanks and praises to the One God !

I possess some half dozen other poems by Púr-i-Dáwúq, of which three, one in praise of the Anjuman or Council (in this case, to judge by the context, the National Assembly or Majlis) and two in praise of the old Persian tongue (Pársi-yi-Bástán), are written in that almost pure Persian which this poet, like Shaykh 'Abdu'l-'Alí of Tíhrán, called *Múbád*¹, and one or two others, is wont to cultivate in his writings. One of these is here given as a specimen.

In the following poem, which is entitled "a National Song" and was composed in Paris on the occasion of the European New Year (probably of 1913), the poet has not attempted, and I think wisely, to exclude Arabic words and to write in pure and undiluted Persian.

One more poem by Púr-i-Dáwúd may be quoted. It is entitled "On Worship" (andar Parastish), and describes the different objects of devotion of different classes of men, not without a certain cynicism.

POEMS OF JA'FAR-I-KHĀMNA'Í

(52)

The following poem, which might be entitled "a Persian patriot's nightmare," is by Ja'far-i-Khāmna'í of Tabriz. It was communicated to me by a friend, and I do not know that it has ever been published before.

عجب خوابی پریشان امشبِ مخوس می بینم قضای پُرخطر پیش نظر محسوس می بینم
 فتاده کشتی سیّار استقلالِ خورشیدی بگردابِ حوادثِ ناخُدا مأیوس می بینم
 شه و درباریان در خوابِ غفلت تنگ و دیگر سو وطن بامالِ قهرِ انگلیس و روس می بینم
 دو گرگ آدمی خوار از پی اعدامِ یک گله شده هم عهد و هم پیمان و هم مأنوس می بینم
 ازین سان کین دو کج پالان بها نازند از هرسو بتزدیکی سپاهِ روس را در طوس می بینم
 مرضهائی که بر جسمِ وطن گردیده مستولی بعجز از چاره اش بقراط و جالینوس می بینم
 بدین بد بختی ما در لغت تعبیر وافی نیست چنین لفظی نه در برهان نه در قاموس می بینم
 ز کیف بیرون مان شد ثروت و ماندم در ذلت ز فقر و فاقه ملت را بر ملبوس می بینم
 بگردن طوقِ رقیّت بسر تعلیمی ذلت کند قیدِ اسارت از ادب پابوس می بینم

۱۰ سحر شد کاروان کوچی و ما خوش خفته در غفلت
 بهوش از سکر نائیم از غریب کوس می بینم
 گر از بانگ اذان امروز بیداری نشد مارا
 کند ییدارمان روزِ دگر ناقوس می بینم
 غفلت خفته ایم اندر مفاک محو و اضحلال
 حرامی در کمین با خدعه و سالوس می بینم
 خدایا خود بدادِ دین پاکت رس که در زودی
 صلیب اندر فراز گبید قابوس می بینم
 ز تأثیرِ نفاقِ مسلمین آوخ چسان گزیم
 لوای دین بدستِ مشرکین معکوس می بینم
 هزار افسوس کلکم بشکند محراب و مسجدرا
 ۱۰ بریرِ پای نرسازادگانِ مطسوس می بینم

- (1) "A strangely disordered dream do I see on this ill-starred night ;

I see visible before my sight a fate fraught with peril.
 I see the moving ship of Persian¹ Independence fallen
 Into the whirlpool of misfortunes, and the Captain in despair.
 I see the King and his Courtiers sunk in the sleep of heedlessness,

While on the other hand I see my Country trampled by the wrath of the English and the Russians.

I see two man-eating wolves, with intent to compass the destruction of a flock,

Linked by treaty, allied by promises, and grown familiar with one another.

- (5) In such wise do these two disingenuous allies² attack us on every side

That I see the Russian army at Tús (Mashhad) in the near future.

As for those ills which have invaded the Constitution of our Country,

¹ K'harshidí means "Solar," "of the Sun," and, since the Lion and the Sun are the emblem of Persia, I take it here to mean "Persian"; just as China is called "the Celestial Empire."

² K'aj-páldn means a beast of burden whose pack-saddle is crooked, and is commonly used metaphorically for a shifty, dishonest and rascally fellow, or, to use the English slang equivalent, "a bad hat."

I see even Hippocrates and Galen unable to cure them.
For these misfortunes of ours there is in the dictionary
no adequate term:

No such word do I find either in the Burhán or the *Qámús*¹.
Wealth hath escaped from our hands, and we remain in abasement:

I see the Nation clothed in the garb of poverty and misery.

With the yoke of servitude on the neck, with the rod of abasement overhead,

I see it politely kissing the fetters of its subjection!

(10) The Caravan starts in the morning, while we slumber in happy heedlessness:

I see that not even at the sound of the drum² do we awaken from our intoxication.

If we do not awake to-day at the sound of the Azán,

I see that the Bell will awaken us on another day³.

We slumber heedlessly in the pit of annihilation and selfeffacement,

While I see the robber, with his guile and hypocrisy, lying in ambush.

O God, come Thyself to succour Thy Holy Religion, else speedily

I see the Cross set up over the Cupola of Qábús!

Alas! How can I weep [enough] at the result of Muslim dissensions?

I see the Standard of the Faith reversed by the hands of the infidels!

(15) A thousand times alas! May my pen break! Mosque and Milhráb

I see obliterated under the feet of the Christians!"

¹ The Qámús of al-Firúzábádí is one of the best-known Arabic dictionaries, and the Burhán-i-Qáṭi' one of the most famous Persian lexicons.

² The beating of a drum is employed to warn travellers that the caravan is about to start.

³ The azán is the Muhammadan as the bell is the Christian call to prayer. The meaning is, "if the appeal of Islám cannot arouse us to-day, the victorious bells of Christendom will give us a rude awakening to-morrow."

(53)

The following short poem, also by Ja'far-i-Khámna'í, is interesting on account of its form, which is a departure from the classical arrangement of rhymes, and in this respect resembles No. 14 (pp. 200-4) supra.

(بوطن)

هر روز بیک منظرِ خونین بدر آئی ' هر دم متجلی تو بیک جلوئ جانسوز '
 از سوزِ غمت مرغِ دلم هر شب و هر روز ' با نغمهٔ نو نازه کند نوحه سرائی '
 ای طلعتِ افسرده و ای صورتِ مجروح ' آماجِ سیوفِ ستم آه ای وطنِ زار '
 هر سو نگرم خیمه زده لشکرِ اندوه ' محصورِ عدو مانده تو چون نقطهٔ پرکار '
 محصورِ عدو با خود اگر راست بگویم ' ای شیرِ زبون کرده ترا روبه ترسو '
 شمشیرِ جنا آخته روی تو ز هر سو '
 تا چند بخوابی؟ بگشای چشمِ خود از هم ' بر خیز یکی صولتِ شیرانه نشان ده '
 یا جان بستان یا که درین معرکه جان ده '

(Translation)

In some fresh blood-stained form at each day's dawning,
 In some new garb of grief the whole night long .
 Thou comest, O my Country, and its song
 My heart renews to celebrate thy mourning !

Unhappy Mother, with the wounded face,
 And mournful mien, hemmed in by swords of foes,
 And girt about by hosts of grievous woes,
 Like circles which the compasses do trace.

Yes, girt by foes; for now, the truth to tell,
 O Lion by the cowardly fox abased,
 By cruel swords on every side thou'rt faced.

How long this sleep? Awake, unclosethine eyes!
 Rouse thee for one last Lion-charge, and go
 To yield thy life or else destroy thy foe!

TWO POEMS COMMUNICATED BY ASHRAF-ZĀDA

The two following poems were communicated to me on October 23, 1913, by Mīrzā Maḥmūd Khān Ashraf-zāda, formerly editor of the newspaper Farvardīn (published at Urmiya in Āzarbāyjān), who suffered so cruelly at the hands of the Russians in January, 1912. He quoted them from memory and cannot vouch for their verbal exactitude, while, as will be seen, lines have here and there been forgotten and their places left blank.

(54)

This short poem, dealing with what is known in Persia as Iḥtikār or Anbār-dārī (i.e. making a "corner" in wheat or bread—an abuse which has frequently led to popular disturbances from ancient times), is by Mīrzā Ḥusayn Ṭabīb-zāda, poetically surnamed Kamāl, who was the principal of the Kamāl College (Madrasa-i-Kamāl) at Tabrīz, and afterwards edited a Persian paper of the same name in Egypt, in the second number of which these verses appeared. See supra No. 100 (pp. 60-1) and Nos. 283-4 (p. 128).

قطعه احتکاریه

تا محتکران را بسرِ نان بنان است ' آشوبِ جهان است و خرابیِ زمان است
 آن طالعِ زیبای عدالت بحاق است ' آن طلعتِ نیکوی مساوات نهان است
 ای طفلِ گرسنه مکن این ناله و آلا ' روی تو وسیلی ز کفِ محتکران است
 ای والده بر خاکِ ده آن زینتِ آغوش ' زیرا بشر ارزان ز یکی لقبه نان است
 فرسود قلم بسکه ز نان قصه پیرداخت ' خونین بشد اوراقِ کمال این چه زیان است

(Translation)

So long as the fingers of the bread-cornerers are on the bread
 There is unrest in the world and ruin in the age.
 That fair ascendant star of Justice is eclipsed;
 That beauteous face of Equality is hidden.
 O hungry child, cry not thus, or else
 There will be a slap on thy face from the hands of the bread-cornerers!
 O mother, surrender that ornament of thy embrace to the earth,
 For a human life is cheaper than a mouthful of bread!
 The pen is wearied of talking so much of bread;
 The pages of the Kamál are dyed with blood: what hurt is there in this?

À propos of this holding back of corn from the people it is not out of place to quote the following verse which appeared in a shah-náma secretly published at Tabriz on a similar occasion.

این قطره قطره باران کاید بکشت زاران ' هر قطره اش خدنگی است بر چشم غله داران '
 "These drops of rain which fall on the arable lands, Each drop is an arrow in the eyes of the corn-holders!"

(55)

The following poem, also communicated from memory by Mírzá Maḥmúd Ashraf-záda, is a musammaʿ by Mírzá Muḥammad Šádiq Khán Adibul-Mamalik, which was published in the Adab newspaper at Mashhad. (See Nos. 38-40, pp. 37-9 supra.) Some of the lines and verses which Ashraf-záda had forgotten have been supplied (also from memory) by Mírzá Kázimzáda.

THE LAMENT OF THE KINE

(56)

The following very simple and even uncouth verses, wherein a Persian peasant is supposed to apostrophize his cow, appeared under the heading Adabiyyât-i-Bâbâ Aḥmad ("Bâbâ Aḥmad's Literary Column") in No. 11 of the Chantâ'-i-Pâ-barahna ("Beggars' Wallet"), which bears no date.

 من با تو مُدام در تگایو ' کار از خر و خوردنش زیابو '
 بر خیز بگاو کن حکایت ' از رحمت و رنج بی شکایت '
 ما بهر شیار و شخم کردن ' یابو و آقا برای خوردن ' این گاو ترا بود پرستار ' در کشت و درو معاون و یار '
 این رسم زمانه دو رنگ است '
 يك رنج كش آن یکی زرنگ است '

From a literary point of view these verses have little value, but they are interesting as an attempt to arouse the Persian peasant to a sense of his miserable condition, and as presenting a certain analogy with the opening of the ancient Zoroastrian Gāthās (probably the oldest literary monument of the Iranian people), in which, to quote the words prefixed by Dr L. H. Mills to his translation of Yasna xxix, "the Soul of the Kine, as representing the herds of the holy Iranian people, their only means of honourable livelihood, raises its voice, and, expressing the profoundest needs of an afflicted people, addresses Ahura and His Divine Order, Asha, in bitterness¹." In verses 1-4 the poet addresses the peasant and bids him speak to his cow in the words of verses 5-24. In the last five verses the poet again addresses the peasant as follows:

"O companion of the cow and her friend, arise, for the season of Winter hath passed!

I am ever travelling with thee: the work is the ass's and its food the pony's.

Arise, and tell the cow about uncomplaining trouble and labour. We are for the ploughing and the tilling, the pony and the Master for the eating.

This cow is thy servant, the friendly helper in sowing and reaping. This is the way of inconstant Fortune: one bears the toil and another is clever [enough to enjoy the proceeds]."

¹ Max Müller's Sacred Books of the East Series, vol. xxxi, the Zend Avesta. Part III, by L. H. Mills, p. 3.

I conclude this selection with five epigrams, hitherto, I believe, unpublished. The first, of which the author desires to remain anonymous, is directed against M. Mornard, the Belgian official who replaced Mr Morgan Shuster as Treasurer-General. The low opinion which it expresses of the former may be profitably compared with the high opinion of the latter expressed in No. 33 (pp. 250-2 supra).

(57)

 با طینت اهالی ایران سرشته‌اند
 هستند اگر نفوسِ اروپا چو مرنارد

The Persian nature—so the Franks repeat—
 Is fraught with falsehood, fashioned with deceit:
 Yet if by Mornard we may judge the Franks
 The Persian nature with the Angels ranks!

The following epigram is remarkable amongst the poems cited as being directed against the Constitutionalists, though the author, Maliku'l-Kalām of Kurdistān, poetically surnamed Majdi, whose proper name is 'Abdu'l-Majid, the son of the late Mīrzā Shukru'llāh Fakhrū'l-Kuttāb, subsequently stated that it was only intended to apply to "those robbers who came forward in the garb of Constitutionalists."

Those for Democracy who claim to speak

 E'en from the Despots now assistance seek.

The same poet, in fact, has the two following pieces of verse in favour of the Constitution and against the Autocracy. •

The Kingdom of Persia was like unto a man sick unto death ;
The partisans of Despotism were, in their mischief, the malignant humours.

For the expulsion of these evil humours from the sick man
The National Assembly became as an emetic of antimony.
If these humours should again find their way into the constitution of the patient,
They will roll up the scroll of the sick man's life !

If you look at the deeds of Despotism and Constitutionalism
The differences between Despotism and Constitutionalism are countless.

In the days of Despotism they sought dogs for the chase :
In the days of the Constitution they seek men for work !

I much regret that the limits imposed on the size of this book do not permit me to add to the number of poems here cited. The mass of available material was so great that I have been obliged to limit the selection almost entirely to contemporary political and topical poetry, and of this to admit only what had hitherto remained unpublished, or had been published only in an ephemeral form in the newspapers, and which, for some reason, appeared to me of some especial interest in form or matter.

Amongst the contemporary poems separately published in the form of tracts or pamphlets I should like especially to mention a remarkable tāsdtis (or "six-some") based on a qaṣīda of the celebrated classical poet Khāqānī of Shīrwān by my very accomplished friend Ḥusayn Dānish, son of Mīrzā Hāshim of Iṣfahān, who, long resident at Constantinople in the service of the Turkish Government, is recognized as one of the leading contemporary writers both in Persian and Turkish. This poem, entitled (in Turkish) "the Ruins of Ctesiphon" (Medā'in Kharābalarī), is dedicated to another most learned, accomplished and single-minded friend of mine, Dr Rizā Tevfīq, Deputy for Adrianople in the last Turkish Parliament, who contributes a critical and historical preface. It was published at Constantinople in A.H. 1330 (A.D. 1912), when Persia's fortunes were at their darkest and her foes at their cruellest, as a small tract of 37 pp. at the modest price of three piastres (about 7½d.). In the same year, on March 21, on the occasion of the Persian Naw-rūz, or New Year's Day, the same poet published (also at Constantinople) another fine poem "for Persia" (Īrān ichun), dedicated to the eminent Turkish man of letters Tevfīq Fikret Bey, entitled "A New Year's Present" (Hadiyya-i-Sāl), and comprising 56 couplets. From both of these works I should like to have quoted here, both on account of the beauty and pathos of the verses, and on account of my regard for the author; but both poems should be read in their entirety to be judged fairly, and, moreover, can without difficulty be obtained from Constantinople.

Mention has already been made in Part I of this book of a periodical publication, in magazine form, issued at irregular intervals, beginning on April 20, 1908, entitled Dabīriyya, written by Mīrzā Sayyid 'Abdu'r-Raḥmān Dabīru'l-Mamālik, and containing an extensive selection of the verses (estimated by their author at 35,000) composed by him during the preceding thirty or forty years. Most of these poems refer to the leading Persian statesmen and courtiers of this period, and many of them are satires, which naturally had to remain in manuscript until the greater freedom of the Press inaugurated by the Constitutional Régime permitted their publication. I am indebted to Mr H. L. Rabino for a bound volume containing a good many numbers of this magazine. The poems which it contains vary a good deal in quality and merit, and, though some of them deal with events subsequent to the deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí and the enthronement of his young son Sulṭán Aḥmad, the reigning sovereign, they are on the whole of an old-fashioned type, and the satirical poems incline to that coarseness of language which is characteristic of most of the older hajwiyyát and hasliyyát.

APPENDIX

A Brief Chronology of the Persian Revolution.

From December, 1905 to April, 1912.

CHRONOLOGY OF THE PERSIAN REVOLUTION

For convenience of reference, and for the better understanding of the sequence of events illustrated by the preceding poems, a brief statement of the principal events and epochs of the Persian Revolution, or Constitutional Movement, is here appended. Details of these events down to the Nationalist victory of July, 1909, the capture of Tīhrān, and the deposition of the ex-Shāh Muḥammad 'Alī, will be found in my Persian Revolution, 1905-1909 (Cambridge, 1910). The connected history of the subsequent period, which I hope to embody in another volume, has not yet been written, and must be pieced together from Blue Books and press-cuttings, supplemented by such oral and written evidence as is obtainable. The admirable Persian "History of the Awakening of the Persians" (Tā'rikh-i-Bidāri-yi-Īrānīyān) of the Nāṣimū'l-Islām of Kirmān, of which up to the present time only the Introduction (pp. 272), first volume (pp. 255), and second volume (pp. 240) have been published, does not at present carry the story beyond July, 1906, and so stops short of the granting of the Constitution by Muẓaffarū'd-Dīn Shāh (August 5, 1906) and the opening of the First National Assembly (October 7, 1906). For all events before these dates it is by far the richest source available, and contains the texts of many important documents and masses of detail not to be found elsewhere.

From the earliest historical times until 1906 the government of Persia was, both in theory and in practice, an absolute despotism, of which the general character is well described by Mr R. G. Watson at pp. 12-13 and 15-20 of his admirable History of Persia from the beginning of the Nineteenth Century to the Year 1858. Signs of a new ferment appeared in Persia, as in so many other countries, in the memorable year 1848, at the end of the reign of Muḥammad Shāh and the beginning of that of his successor, Nāyirū'd-Dīn Shāh, when the Bābī insurrection threatened for three or four years the stability of the Qājār Dynasty. This movement, though essentially religious, was not, as the Comte de Gobineau has well indicated, devoid of political significance, and above all showed the Persian character in a new, unexpected and heroic light. It was contemporary with and violently opposed by one of the greatest Ministers whom Persia has produced in recent times, Mīrzā Taqī Khān Amīr-i-Kabīr, whose courage, integrity and far-sighted political vision have led the recent historians of the Constitution to claim him as the fore-runner of the Constitutional Movement, or at any rate as a very wise and sincere patriot. Spiritually this may be true, but historically he belongs entirely to the "Days of Autocracy" (Ayyām-i-Istibḍād), that long period of some 2500 years through which the history of Persia can be clearly and certainly traced, and which by analogy should be called (for I have not actually met with the expression) "the Greater Autocracy" (Istibdād-i-Kabīr), in contradistinction to "the Lesser Autocracy" (Istibdād-i-Ṣaghīr) which lasted from June 23, 1908 to July 16, 1909, and of which we shall shortly speak.

The history of the Constitutional struggle in Persia may be divided into the following periods :

I. The Preparatory Period, or Prodromata of the Revolution.

II. The First Constitutional Period (August 5, 1906–June 23, 1908), or Period of the First Majlis or National Assembly (October 7, 1906–June 23, 1908).

III. The "Lesser Autocracy" (Istibdād-i-Ṣaghīr), during which the Constitution was suspended and the ex-Shāh, Muḥammad 'Alī, re-established despotic rule (June 23, 1908–July 16, 1909).

IV. The Second Constitutional Period (July 16, 1909–December 24, 1911), which was brought to an end by the Russian Ultimatums of November 12 and November 29, the expulsion of Mr W. Morgan Shuster, Treasurer-General, and the invasion of North Persia by the Russians, with the concomitant atrocities committed by them and their myrmidons at Tabriz, Rasht and elsewhere (December, 1911 and January, 1912 onwards).

V. The present anomalous period, which can be described neither as Autocratic nor Constitutional, the Persian Government being terrorized and paralysed by Russia, which is gradually converting all North Persia into what is called in the cant of diplomacy a "Veiled Protectorate" (January 1, 1912 to the date of writing).

Some of the principal events and dates of the first four of these periods (for the last appears to be but a death-agony or mortal lethargy) will now be given.

I. The Preparatory Period.

The beginning of this cannot be exactly fixed, but it may be divided into two parts, one of intellectual preparation and propaganda, and one of actual revolt against the prevailing intolerable conditions. The intellectual preparation was chiefly the work of two men, Sayyid Jamālū'd-Dīn al-Afghānī (born 1838, died 1897) and Prince Malkom Khān Nāẓimū'd-Dawla (born 1833, died 1908), and their disciples. The manifold political activities of the former, which are fully discussed in the first chapter of my Persian Revolution, began, so far as the Near East is concerned, about 1870, when he visited Egypt and Constantinople for the first time. In Persia his direct activity was greatest during the years 1886–1890, when he was expelled ignominiously; but his indirect influence survived his death in 1897, and was the chief factor in the revolt against the Tobacco Régie (May, 1890–January, 1892) and the assassination of Nāṣirū'd-Dīn Shāh (May 1, 1896) by Mirzā Rīzā of Kirmān, one of the Sayyid's disciples. Prince Malkom Khan's monthly paper, the Qānūn ("Law"), which all students of the subject agree in regarding as one of the most potent literary factors in bringing about the Constitutional Movement, first appeared on February 25, 1890, and seems to have continued publication for about three years and a half, forty-one monthly numbers having been issued in all. The successful revolt against the Tobacco Concession in 1891 was a momentous epoch in the history of Persia, and may fairly be regarded as the starting-point of the Revolution, of which, however, the immediate prodromata began in December, 1905. The chief of these events, with their dates, down to the granting of the Constitution on August 5, 1906, are as follows:

Dec. 11, 1905. Merchants and Sayyids bastinadoed by 'Alá'u'd-Dawla, with the approval of 'Aynu'd-Dawla, on account of the rise in the price of sugar. Bazaars closed and assembly at Masjidi-Sháh.

Dec. 13, 1905. Some two thousand mullás, students and merchants, headed by Sayyid Muḥammad Ṭabāṭabā'i and Sayyid 'Abdu'lláh Bahbahání, leave Ṭihrán as a protest and take sanctuary at the Shrine of Sháh 'Abdu'l-Azím. This is known as the Hijrat-i-Suḡhrá or "Lesser Exodus" (هجرت صغرى).

1906

Jan. 12, 1906. After prolonged negotiations with the Sháh and his Court and Ministers, the fugitives (muhájirín) return to Ṭihrán on receiving from the Sháh an autograph rescript (dast-khaft), which was publicly read in the Mosque on the same day, promising the establishment of a "House of Justice" (Adálat-khána), the dismissal of the obnoxious Ministers 'Aynu'd-Dawla and 'Alá'u'd-Dawla, and other demands of the people as voiced by their spiritual leaders the mullás. On this day, according to the "History of the Awakening of the Persians," the cry of "Long live the Persian Nation!" (Zinda bád Millat-i-Írán!) was first heard. On the following day Ṭihrán was illuminated as a sign of joy.

June 17, 1906. Mírzá Hasan Rushdiyya, Majdu'l-Islám of Kirmán and Mírzá Áqá of Isfahán were exiled to Kalát.

June 21, 1906. During a successful attempt made by the people to rescue one of their leaders, who had been arrested by the soldiers, some fifteen persons, including two Sayyids named Ḥusayn and 'Abdu'l-Majíd, were shot dead. The increasing discontent of the people, who saw themselves cheated of the promised reforms, was met by increasing severity on the part of the Government.

July 6, 1906. Sayyid Muḥammad Ṭabāṭabā'i preached to a vast crowd, denouncing the existing tyranny and misgovernment and urging the absolute necessity of a "House of Justice."

July, 1906. The leading ecclesiastics, accompanied by a vast concourse of students, merchants and others, left Ṭihrán for the holy city of 'Qum, where they took sanctuary. This is what is known as the Hijrat-i-Kubrâ, or "Greater Exodus" (هجرت كبرى). About the same time a number of merchants, bankers, tradesmen and others, with the permission of the British Chargé d'Affaires, Mr Grant Duff, took refuge in the grounds of the British Legation at Tīhrán. The numbers increased daily, until they finally reached some 13,000 or 14,000 souls.

Aug. 5, 1906. Muzaffaru'd-Dīn Sháh finally gave way, granted a Constitution and Parliament, dismissed the 'Ayru'd-Dawla, and promised monetary compensation to the relatives of the murdered Sayyids. This event, celebrated a few days later with great rejoicings as "the National Victory" (Fath-i-Millī), marks the beginning of the Constitutional Epoch. According to the Muḥammadan Calendar it fell on the 14th of Jumáda ii, A.H. 1324, and its first anniversary was celebrated with great splendour and enthusiasm on the same date of the following Muḥammadan year, corresponding with July 25, 1907, under the title of "the National Festival" (Jashn-i-Millī).

II. The First Constitutional Period.

(Mashrúta-i-Awwal), Aug. 5, 1906-June 23, 1908.

Aug. 19, 1906. Solemn official opening of the new House of Parliament in presence of the high ecclesiastical authorities, who were entertained as the Sháh's guests for three days.

Sept. 9, 1906. Electoral Law promulgated.

Sept. 18-27, 1906. A number of citizens of Tabríz took refuge at the British Consulate there as a protest against the tyranny of Muḥammad 'Alī Mírzá, the Crown Prince, afterwards Sháh.

Oct. 7, 1906. The first Majlis, or National Assembly was opened under the presidency of San'ú'd-Dawla.

Nov. 23, 1906. Proposed joint Anglo-Russian Loan of £400,000 rejected by the Majlis.

Nov. 25, 1906. The newspaper Majlis first appeared.

Dec. 27, 1906. The newspaper Nidá-yi-Wáfan first appeared.

Dec. 30, 1906. The Fundamental Laws were ratified by Muzaffaru'd-Dīn Sháh and promulgated, and the form of the Persian Constitution was thus fixed and defined.

1907

Jan. 8, 1907. Death of Muzaffaru'd-Dīn Sháh.

Jan. 19, 1907. Coronation of his son Muḥammad 'Alī, of which the Majlis received no official notification, and to which none of its Members were invited.

Feb. 7, 1907. Arrival at Tīhrán of the Tabríz Deputies, including Sayyid Taqí-záda, who received a great ovation.

Feb. 10, 1907. The Sháh was compelled by the Majlis to dismiss M. Naus, the unpopular Belgian Chief of the Customs.

March 17, 1907. The Mushíru'd-Dawla resigned the Premiership.

April 26, 1907. The Amínu's-Sultán, or Atábak-i-A'zam, returned to Persia after three and a half years' exile to assume, at the invitation of the Sháh, the position of Premier.

April 29, 1907. The Tíhrán Hablu'l-Matín newspaper founded.

May, 1907. Plot contrived by Rahím Khán and his son to raise a disturbance in Tabriz and murder leading Constitutionalists. It was believed to have been instigated by the Sháh.

May 26, 1907. This being the eve of the Sháh's birthday, and Tíhrán decorated and prepared for illumination, the people pulled down the decorations and would not allow them to be replaced until the Sháh handed over Rahím Khán to the Ministry of Justice to stand his trial for conspiracy.

May 30, 1907. The weekly newspaper Sár-i-Isráfil first appeared.

June, 1907. Rebellion of the Sháh's brother Sálaru'd-Dawla at Hamadán. He was defeated on the historic field of Niháwand, and surrendered, on his safety being guaranteed, to the Sháh's representative on June 22.

July 25, 1907. Celebration of the "National Festival" (Jashn-i-Millí) on the first anniversary (according to the Muḥammadan Calendar) of the granting of the Constitution.

Aug. 31, 1907. The Anglo-Russian Agreement was signed. The Aminu's-Sultán, or Atábak-i-A'zam, was shot by 'Abbás Áqá, a money-changer of Tabriz, as he was leaving the National Assembly, and died half an hour later. The assassin committed suicide.

Sept. 4, 1907. Sir Cecil Spring Rice's celebrated Memorandum (Yád-dásh), designed to allay the anxieties of the Persians as to the scope and aim of the Anglo-Russian Agreement, was communicated to the Persian Foreign Minister, and was published ten days later in the Tíhrán Hablu'l-Matín (No. 115).

Sept. 10, 1907. Ihtishámu's-Saltána elected President of the Assembly.

Sept. 13, 1907. Death of Naṣru'lláh Khán Mushíru'd-Dawla. Sa'du'd-Dawla made Foreign Minister.

Oct. 1, 1907. The Princes of the Blood and Nobles of the Court attended the National Assembly and swore an oath of allegiance to the Constitution.

Oct. 2, 1907. Sa'du'd-Dawla resigned, and a new Cabinet was formed under the presidency of the Náṣiru'l-Mulk (the present Regent). This Cabinet resigned on the 14th of December, 1907.

Oct. 6, 1907. The fortieth day (chilla) after the death of 'Abbás Áqá, who killed the Aminu's-Sultán, was celebrated with great enthusiasm and circumstance by a large number of his admirers.

Nov. 6, 1907. The newspaper Rúhu'l-Qudus ("the Holy Spirit") published a violent and threatening article addressed to the Sháh, and was suppressed by the National Assembly in consequence.

Nov. 12, 1907. The Sháh visited the National Assembly in state, and again swore fidelity to the Constitution.

Dec. 15, 1907. Beginning of the "Abortive Coup d'État" (called by the Persians Wāq'ā-i-Maydān-i-Tūp-khāna, "the Event of the Artillery Square," which place served as the rallying-point of the Shah's hired ruffians). Arrest and threatened destruction by the Shāh of the Nāṣirū'l-Mulk, who was saved by the intervention of the British Legation, and left Persia next day for Europe. Complete triumph of the Assembly and collapse of the Shāh on Dec. 22. A new Cabinet was formed under Nizāmu's-Saltāna. The Zillū's-Sultān was ordered to leave Tīhrān.

Feb. 1908. An attempt was made on the Shāh's life by means of a bomb, which killed one of his attendants and wrecked an automobile. The thrower of the bomb was never identified.

April, 1908. The Ihtishāmu's-Saltāna resigned the Presidency of the National Assembly, and was succeeded by Mumtāzu'd-Dawla. Several prominent reactionaries who had taken part in the Abortive Coup d'État of the preceding December, or in the murder of the Zoroastrian Arbāb Firidūn, were exiled to Kalāt, or bastinadoed, or both. Amongst these were Sanī-i-Haẓrat (afterwards hanged on July 29, 1909) and Muqtadīr-i-Nizām.

May, 1908. Increasing tension between the Shāh and the National Assembly.

June 2, 1908. Intervention, with implied threats, of the Russian Minister M. de Hartwig and the British Chargé d'Affaires Mr Marling on behalf of the Shāh.

June 3, 1908. Flight of the Shāh, escorted by Persian Cossacks under the command of the Russian Colonel Liakhoff, from Tīhrān to his adjacent garden, the Bāgh-i-Shāh.

June 5, 1908. At the invitation of the Shāh, a deputation of notables waited on him at the Bāgh-i-Shāh, but were treacherously arrested.

June 11, 1908. The Shāh proclaimed martial law and threatened to bombard the Masjud-i-Sipahsālār unless the people there assembled dispersed.

June 12, 1908. The Shāh demanded the expulsion of eight popular leaders, control of the Press, and disarmament of the National Volunteers.

June 23, 1908. The Bombardment of the Majlis (Tūp-bandī-yi-Majlis), Coup d'État (Zarba-i-Hukūmat), or Reactionary Triumph (Waq'ā-i-Irtijā'īyya), carried out by the instrumentality of Colonel Liakhoff and the other Russian officers of the Persian Cossack Brigade. A number of leaders of the popular party were arrested and carried captive to Bāgh-i-Shāh. Hājji Mīrzā Ibrāhīm Āqā, Deputy for Tabriz, was killed.

June 24, 1908. Mīrzā Jahāngīr Khān of Shirāz, editor of the Šūr-i-Isrāfīl, and the Maliku'l-Mutakallimīn, a prominent orator, were strangled in the Bāgh-i-Shāh. Some of the Nationalists whose lives were in danger took refuge in the British Legation. Many houses of persons obnoxious to the Sháh, including those of his uncle the Zillu's-Sultán, and his cousin Prince Jalálu'd-Dawla, were destroyed and looted. Colonel Liakhoff was appointed military governor of Tíhrán.

III. "The Lesser Tyranny" or "Autocracy" (Istibdád-i-Saghír).

During this period, which lasted from the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, and the destruction of the First National Assembly until the Nationalist victory and deposition of Muḥammad 'Alí on July 16, 1909, the Constitution was suspended and Reaction was dominant in Tíhrán. Tabriz, however, rallied gallantly to the Constitutional Cause, under the leadership of Sattár Khán and Báqir Khán, expelled the Reactionaries, and sustained a siege of nine months, which was brought to an end on April 29, 1909, by the entrance of Russian troops under General Znarsky. Meanwhile its resistance had given time and encouragement to the Nationalists, who were at first bewildered and discouraged by the Coup d'État, to rally, and two armies were gradually formed, one at Rasht under the nominal leadership of the Sipahdár, another consisting of the Bakhtiýári tribesmen under the leadership of their chief Sardár-i-As'ad, and these two forces gradually converged until they effected a junction at Karach to the west of Tíhrán on July 8, 1909. After indecisive skirmishes at Sháhábád and Bádámak, a body of the Nationalists, eluding the vigilance of the Royalist troops and the Cossack Brigade, slipped through the lines of their opponents and entered Tíhrán on July 13. Fighting continued in the capital for four days, until finally, on Friday, July 16, the ex-Sháh took refuge in the Russian Legation, which act was considered as tantamount to abdication, and Colonel Liakhoff and the Cossack Brigade surrendered. The ex-Sháh's son, Sultán Aḥmad, aged only twelve years, was proclaimed King, and the aged 'Azuhl-i-Mulk' Regent; the Constitution was re-established, and steps were taken as soon as possible to convene a new Majlis or National Assembly. The principal events of this period of thirteen months, with their dates, are as follows:

August 4, 1908. The defenders of Tabriz are greatly encouraged by news of the successful Revolution in Turkey.

August 20, 1908. 'Aynü'd-Dawla and the Sipahdár arrive before Tabriz to prosecute the siege.

Sept. 16, 1908. The "Race-course Incident" at Tíhrán, where Indian savvards of the British Legation guard are attacked by Persian Cossacks. Colonel Liakhoff is compelled to apologize, and the incident is hushed up.

Oct. 1, 1908. Sir George Barclay arrives at Tíhrán as British Minister.

Oct. 5, 1908. Defeat of Royalists at Tabriz.

Oct. 11, 1908. Four hundred Persian Cossacks under the command of the Russian Captain Ushakoff leave Tíhrán to take part in the siege of Tabriz.

Oct. 12, 1908. Further Nationalist success at Tabriz.

Oct. 17, 1908. Russia threatens to intervene at Tabriz, but Sir Edward Grey informs her that such intervention "will create a very bad impression" in England, and she desists.

Oct. 30, 1908. Formation of the Persia Committee in London.

Nov. 7, 1908. Fictitious demonstration against the revival of the Constitution at the Bāgh-i-Shāh.

November (middle). M. de Hartwig, the Russian Minister, leaves Tihrán for good.

Nov. 19, 1908. The Shāh issues a proclamation declaring that he will not restore the old or grant any new Constitution.

December (middle). Expulsion of M. Panoff, the Bulgarian revolutionary and correspondent of the Russian paper Ryech, from Tihrán by the Russian Legation.

1909

Jan. 5, 1909. Samsāmi's-Saltāna at the head of a Bakhti'yāri force takes possession of Isfahān, expels the Shāh's representative, and declares for the Constitution.

January (end). Arrival of Mr W. A. Moore as correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, Daily News and Daily Chronicle at Tabriz.

Feb. 8, 1909. Rasht is seized by the Nationalists, the Shāh's governor killed, and the Constitution proclaimed.

Feb. 11, 1909. The last road open into Tabriz, that from Julfā, is occupied by the Royalists, and the blockade of the city completed.

Feb. 22, 1909. Sattār Khān vainly endeavours to re-open the Julfā Road.

March 7, 1909. Sattār Khān's "distinguished personal courage" praised by Mr Wratishlaw, the British Consul at Tabriz.

April 20, 1909. With Sir Edward Grey's approval, it was decided to send Russian troops to raise the siege of starving Tabriz, open the roads, and bring in supplies.

April 21, 1909. A last attempt was made by the besieged to break out of Tabriz to obtain provisions. The sortie was led by Mr W. A. Moore and Mr Baskerville, a young American. The latter was killed.

April 29, 1909. Arrival of the Russian force under General Znarsky at Tabriz.

May 5, 1909. The Constitutionalist army of Rasht occupied Qazwīn.

May 6, 1909. Persian Cossacks commanded by the Russian Captain Zapolski were sent out to guard the Karach bridge, and the Nationalists were advised by the Russian Legation, with threats, to desist from their advance.

May 17, 1909. The Sipahdār formulates the four demands of the Constitutionlists.

May 22, 1909. Yūsuf of Hukmābād (who was afterwards, in Jan. 1912, most cruelly put to death and his body cut in two and hung up in the street by Shujá'u'd-Dawla, the Russian protégé) was arrested by the Russians and his house blown up with dynamite at Tabriz.

May (latter part). Sattár Khán, Báqir Khán, Taqí-záda, and other leading Constitutionalists take refuge in the Turkish Consulate at Tabriz as a protest against the high-handed actions of the Russians.

June 17, 1909. The Bakhtiýáris begin their march on Tíhrán.

June 23, 1909. The advance guard of the Bakhtiýáris reaches Qum.

June 27, 1909. Further attempt on the part of the British Minister and the Russian Chargé d'Affaires to check the Bakhtiýári advance.

June 30, 1909. Russian expeditionary force assembled at Báku.

July 4, 1909. Skirmish at Sháhábád. Eight demands formulated by the Sipahdár.

July 4-6, 1909. Armistice of two days.

July 8, 1909. Two or three thousand Russian troops disembarked at Anzali.

July 11, 1909. Russian troops reach Qazwín. Skirmish at Bádámak.

July 12, 1909. Fighting renewed at Bádámak.

July 13, 1909. Tíhrán entered by part of the Nationalist forces, headed by Bakhtiýáris. After four days' fighting (July 13-16) during which some 500 men were killed (no European being hurt) Muḥammad 'Alí took refuge in the Russian Legation and abdicated. Colonel Liakhoff and the Cossack Brigade surrendered. This event is known as Fath-i-Milli ("the National Victory," فتح ملی) with which the Third Period, called "the Lesser Tyranny" (Istibdád-i-Şaghír) concludes.

IV. The Second Constitutional Period (Mashrúta-i-Thání), beginning with the accession of Sultán Aḥmad Sháh, and ending with the dissolution of the Second National Assembly and the Russian aggressions of Dec. 1911 and Jan. 1912¹.

July 18, 1909. The quondam Crown Prince (Walí-'ahd), Sultán Aḥmad, was proclaimed Sháh, entered Tíhrán, where he was enthusiastically received, on July 20, held his first reception (darbár) on July 21, and was formally recognized by Russia and England on the same or the following day.

July 26, 1909. The ex-Sháh was offered a pension of £5000 a year on condition of his leaving Persia at once. Russia threatens a punitive expedition against the Sháhseven tribesmen, and increases the number of her troops at Qazwín to 2300 men. A special Court-martial (Diwán-i-Háríb) was instituted to try political offenders at Tíhrán.

¹ As my Persian Revolution of 1905-1909, though recording the opening of the Second National Assembly on Nov 15, 1909, gives a continued narrative of events only to the Conquest of Tíhrán in July, 1909, I have made the chronology of this period very much fuller than the previous ones, though it is covered by Mr Morgan Shuster's admirable work the Strangling of Persia (published in 1912). Mr Shuster's narrative, however, only becomes full and continuous from the date of his arrival in Persia (May 11, 1911).

July 29, 1909. Execution of Mufákhirü'l-Mulk (former Head of the Police at Tíhrán) and Saní-i-Hazrat.

July 30, 1909. Colonel Liakhoff recalled to Russia. He left Tíhrán on August 4.

July 31, 1909. Execution of the Ajúdán-báshí, who commanded the artillery to fire on the Majlis on June 23, 1908; and of Shaykh Faẓl'ulláh, on the charge of complicity in the murder of Mírzá Muṣṭafá, son of Mírzá Ḥasan Ashtiyání, and one of the students of the German College.

Aug. 4, 1909. Ex-Sháh's pension fixed at £15,000 a year.

Aug. 5, 1909. The Zillü's-Sultán, uncle of the ex-Sháh, reached Anzali from Vienna, where he was detained, and not allowed to leave again for Europe until he paid a forfeit of £60,000, which he only consented to do on August 23.

Aug. 8, 1909. Raḥím Khán plunders an Armenian village in N.W. Persia and massacres the inhabitants. Taqí-záda arrives at Tíhrán from Tabriz. The Reactionary Mír Hášhim is captured.

Aug. 9, 1909. Mír Hášhim and his brother are hanged.

Aug. 13, 1909. Trial of the editor of the Tíhrán Hablü'l-Matín, Sayyid Ḥasan of Káshán (see p. 74 supra), for publishing an article alleged to be derogatory of Islám. He was sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

Aug. 17, 1909. The extraordinary National Council (Majlis-i-'Áli) consisting of some 300 or 400 members, which was formed on the capture of Tíhrán, is supplemented by a Directory (Hay'at-i-Mudira) of twenty persons, including both the Sipahdár and the Sardár-i-As'ad. The elections "in the first degree" for the new National Assembly were concluded at Tíhrán. A box containing 60,000 gold túmáns was discovered at the Ministry of Finance. The debts of the ex-Sháh to the Russian Bank and other creditors were estimated at £400,000.

Aug. 18, 1909. Rebellions in N.W. Persia, headed by Raḥím Khán and the Sháhseven tribesmen, who threaten Ardabíl, Iqbálu's-Saltána at Mákú, and Mullá Qurbán 'Alí at Zanján.

Aug. 19, 1909. Proposed tax on alcohol, opium and salt (known as Dá'ira-i-thalátha) to yield £300,000 a year. Fifteen deputies elected for Tíhrán, including Ḥusayn-qulí Khán Narwáb, Saní'u'd-Dawla, 'Abdu'l-Ḥusayn Khán of Káshán entitled Waḥidu'l-Mulk, and Taqí-záda.

Aug. 22, 1909. Messrs Alan Wright and James, of the Imperial Bank of Persia, kidnapped by brigands near Kírnán, but released on Aug. 26.

Aug. 29, 1909. The notorious brigand Raḥím Khán was captured by the Russians, but released again by them on Sept. 18, q.v.

Aug. 31, 1909. General amnesty proclaimed by Persian Government. The ex-Sháh appeals to the Tsar for support. The Russian Legation opposes the dismissal of M. Smirnoff, the young Sháh's tutor. Fight between Kurds and Russians at Urmíya.

Sept. 1, 1909. Amír Bahádúr Jang, Sa'du'd-Dawla and Mushirü's-Saltana are exiled and excluded from the amnesty. Growing distrust of the Sipahdár. National volunteers placed under command of Taqí-záda's cousin 'Alí Muḥammad Khán (afterwards assassinated on Aug. 2, 1910, q.v.).

Sept. 7, 1909. Signature by Persian, Russian and British representatives of the Protocol regulating the ex-Sháh's place of banishment, future conduct and pension (finally fixed at 100,000 *túmán*s or £16,666 a year). French expert called in to value Crown Jewels.

Sept. 9, 1909. Departure of ex-Sháh Muḥammad 'Alí from Tíhrán.

Sept. 13, 1909. The young Sháh holds a darbár to celebrate his twelfth birthday. The Directory (Hay'at-i-Mudira) is increased from 20 to 40 members.

Sept. 15, 1909. Russo-Persian "incident" at Píla-suwár (Belya-suvarski).

Sept. 18, 1909. Raḥim Khán released by the Russians on payment of £T.20 000 and 180 camels.

Sept. 23, 1909. Motor-car service established between Julfá on the Araxes and Tabriz.

Sept. 24, 1909. Arrival of the new Russian Minister, M. Poklevski-Koziell, at Tíhrán.

Sept. 26, 1909. The Zillü's-Sultán is allowed to return to Europe on payment of 100,000 *túmán*s (£16,666) and the promise to pay double this sum within four months. 'Alá'u's-Saltana, formerly Persian Minister in London, is made Foreign Minister.

Sept. 28, 1909. The ex-Sháh reaches Rasht. The Sipahdár is made Premier.

Oct. 5, 1909. The ex-Sháh reaches Odessa, his place of exile.

Oct. 16, 1909. One battery and two companies of Russian troops withdrawn from Tabriz. Three days later General Znarsky, who was in command of this force, and one thousand Russian troops were stated to have been withdrawn from Tabriz.

Oct. 19, 1909. Ardabíl threatened by Raḥim Khán.

Oct. 26, 1909. The Persian Government proposes to send an expedition of 100 Persian Cossacks, 300 infantry and 2 guns to Ardabíl.

Oct. 28, 1909. The Náṣiru'l-Mulk (actually the Regent) returns from Europe to Tíhrán.

Nov. 1, 1909. Announcement that the Russian force at Qazwin will be reduced to 50 men, and that 450 more will be distributed between Rasht and Anzali.

Nov. 2, 1909. Reported fall of Ardabíl. Fresh troops sent from Russia.

Nov. 5, 1909. A second detachment of Russian troops sent to Ardabíl.

Nov. 7, 1909. Withdrawal of Russian force from Qazwín postponed. The Times praises the Persian relief-force destined for Ardabíl, on which some £25,000 had been expended, and regrets that Russia will not give them the chance of restoring order there by themselves.

Nov. 9, 1909. Raḥím Khán threatens to march on Tíhrán, destroy the Constitution, and restore the ex-Sháh.

Nov. 15, 1909. Opening of the Second National Assembly under the presidency of the Mustasháru'd-Dawla, with the Mumtázu'd-Dawla and Sayyid Naṣru'lláh as Vice-presidents.

Nov. 16, 1909. Raḥím Khán retires from Ardabíl. Two thousand more Russian troops embark at Báku for Persia.

Nov. 23, 1909. The Persian Government protests against the high-handed action of the Russians at Ardabíl.

Nov. 24, 1909. 'Azudu'l-Mulk confirmed in Regency. M. Passek, Russian Consul at Bushire, attacked by brigands near Shíráz. The Persian Government apologizes for this occurrence on Dec. 1.

Nov. 26, 1909. Rashidu'l-Mulk made Governor of Ardabíl.

Dec. 7, 1909. The Persian Government agrees in principle to a foreign (i.e. Anglo-Russian) loan and to the employment of foreign advisers, but objects to Russian officers in the Gendarmerie.

Dec. 13, 1909. The Persian Government applies to England and Russia for a loan of £500,000. (See Feb. 16, 1910, infra.)

Dec. 31, 1909. The Persian expedition under Yeprem Khán the Armenian obtains a victory over Raḥím Khán.

1910

Jan. 20, 1910. Three more detachments of Russian troops sent to Ahar.

Jan. 24, 1910. Raḥím Khán, hard pressed by the Persian Government troops, has no way of escape save into Russian territory. On Feb. 4 he crosses the Russian frontier unhindered, and on Feb. 6 reaches Elizavetpol. The Persian Government demands his extradition in conformity with the Treaty of Turkmáncháy, but its request is ignored by Russia.

Jan. 27, 1910. Muwaqqaru's-Saltana is hanged.

Feb. 4, 1910. 'Alá'u's-Saltana resigns the position of Foreign Minister.

Feb. 11, 1910. The people of Varámín, incited by Shaykh Maḥmúd, a Russian protégé, hoist Russian flags over their houses.

Feb. 16, 1910. The Russian and British Ministers formally communicate to Thiqatu'l-Mulk, the Acting Minister for Foreign Affairs, the conditions demanded by them for a loan of £400,000. These include "privileged rights" in their respective "Spheres of Influence" to appoint military instructors and build railways. (See Dec. 13, 1909, supra.)

Feb. 20, 1910. Persian merchants beg their Government not to accept the proposed loan on the conditions indicated above.

Feb. 28, 1910. Russo-Persian dispute at Langarúd as to the fishery concession (Shilât) in the Caspian provinces granted to the Russian Lianosoff (or Lianazoff) in Şafar, A.H. 1324 (= April, 1906), for a period of twenty years. Persia has to give way on March 5.

March 1, 1910. The Sipahdâr and Sardâr-i-As'ad tender their resignation on account of the continued presence of Russian troops on Persian soil. (See under April 20, 1910, infra.)

March 16, 1910. A French expert, M. Falconburg, arrives in Tihrán to value the Crown Jewels, at a fee of £1000 for 8 days' work, but this period proving insufficient it was afterwards extended. Rumours of a French loan to Persia. The Persian New Year's Day (Nawrûz) was not observed, as a sign of mourning for the continued presence of foreign troops on Persian soil.

March 17, 1910. M. Bizot, the French financial adviser, left Tihrán on three months' leave of absence.

March 20, 1910. Mu'âwinu'd-Dawla is appointed Foreign Minister. Sattâr Khân and Bâqir Khân leave Tabríz under Russian pressure and come to Tihrán.

March 27, 1910. Some 400 fresh Russian soldiers sent to Tabríz.

March 30, 1910. Herr R. Said-Ruete, representing the Deutsche Bank, in Tihrán. He left for Berlin on May 17.

April 8, 1910. Expiry of Persia's undertaking to Russia (in the Convention of 1900) not to build railways.

April 10, 1910. Persia rejects the proposed Anglo-Russian loan on account of the dangerous political conditions attached to it. The total value of the Persian Crown Jewels was stated to be £750,000, but this was mere rumour, for the actual estimate of M. Falconburg was, I believe, only known to two representatives of Persia, one of whom, Petros Andreassian, the Armenian, was subsequently hanged by the Russians at Tabríz in Jan. 1912. The other, from whom I learned these particulars, was one of my oldest Persian friends, who held many high positions in the Government, and whose word I trust implicitly.

April 17, 1910. Mr Bill, a member of the Indian Civil Service, who had been acting as British Consul at Shiráz, and who vehemently advocated British occupation of the Southern provinces, was attacked at Yazdikhwást. Three days later he reached Işfahán safely. It subsequently transpired that Mr Bill had taken the initiative in the conflict.

April 20, 1910. The Sipahdâr and Sardâr-i-As'ad consent to resume office (see under March 1, 1910, supra) provided the Şani'u'd-Dawla, "who is not a persona grata with the Legislators," is excluded. The Cabinet crisis ends on May 1.

May 6, 1910. Death of King Edward the Seventh. Reported confederation of tribes in South Persia to maintain Persian independence.

May 25, 1910. Rumours of a projected German loan to Persia.

May 27, 1910. Violent scene in the National Assembly on account of the suppression of the daily paper Sharq.

May 29, 1910. Zanján attacked by Dáráb Mírzá, a Persian prince who had become naturalized as a Russian subject and held a commission in the Labinsky Cossack regiment at this time occupying Qazwín. He obtained leave of absence to go to Russia, but instead rallied round him disaffected persons, obtained for them "letters of protection" (ta'mín-náma) signed by the Russian Colonel Rakuza, and with their aid endeavoured to overthrow the Constitutional Government at Zanján. The Persian Government send a small force against him commanded by 'Alí Khán; the Russians also sent a force of Cossacks, which, while returning to Qazwín with Dáráb Mírzá, fell in and fought with the Persian force and killed its leader 'Alí Khán. The incident was a typical and disgraceful example of Russian intrigue, but both in the Blue Book for this period and in the debate in the House of Commons on July 1, 1910, its real nature (clearly exposed in original documents in my possession) was concealed. Internal loan of £5,000,000 authorized by Persian Government. Persian women sell their jewels to provide money for the State.

June 4, 1910. Káshán captured by the outlaw Ná'ib Husayn.

June 7, 1910. Persian Government demands full statement of its debts to Russia.

June 12, 1910. Sir Charles (now Lord) Hardinge appointed Viceroy of India. and Sir Arthur Nicholson, British Ambassador at St Petersburg, appointed to succeed him as Permanent Under-Secretary at the British Foreign Office. Both appointments warmly approved by Russia, whose approval is reported by the Times.

June 13, 1910. Announcement that no loan will be made by Germany to Persia. Russia objects to the exemption from taxation of silver destined for the Persian Mint.

June (middle), 1910. Aggressive actions of the Russians at Tabríz, including arrest of Persian police, invasion of Thiqat'u'l-Islám's house in search of Russian deserter, and demand for dismissal of Mukhbiru's-Saltána the Governor.—Arrival at Tíhrán of Mr W. A. Moore in connection with the projected Seligmann loan to Persia.

July 1, 1910. Triumphal entry into Tíhrán of Yeprem Khán and his troops after suppressing the marauding tribesmen who threatened Ardabil.

July 3, 1910. Heated debate in the Majlis between Taqí-záda and his party (the Democrats) and the Ecclesiastical party. Taqí-záda is "given permission to retire" for three months. He left Tíhrán on July 30.

July 4, 1910. Zaká'u'l-Mulk becomes President of the Majlis.

July 15, 1910. Russian bombardment of a Persian village on the Caspian shore near Gyumush-tepé.—Assassination at Tīhrán of Sayyid 'Abdu'lláh Bahbahání.

July 16, 1910. Attempted boycott of Russian goods by Persians.

July 26, 1910. New Cabinet formed, comprising Mustawfīl-Mamálík (Premier), Farmán-farmá (Interior), Husayn-qulí Khán Nawwáb (Foreign Affairs), Qiwámu's-Saltána (War), Dabiru'l-Mulk (Justice), Asadu'lláh Mírzá (Post Office and Telegraphs), and Hakimu'l-Mulk (Finance).

Aug. 2, 1910. Assassination by Nawrúzóff, Karím and Mahdí-qulí of 'Alí Muḥammad Khán, a close friend of Taqí-záda's, and Sayyid 'Abdu'r-Razzáq Khán, in retaliation, as it was alleged, for Sayyid 'Abdu'lláh Bahbahání's murder on July 15. (See Aug. 17, infra.)

Aug. 3, 1910. State of siege proclaimed in Tīhrán for three months.

Aug. 4, 1910. National Volunteers (fidd'ís) ordered to surrender their arms within 48 hours.

Aug. 5, 1910. Manifesto issued by the Sipahdár, Sardár-i-As'ad, Šamšámu's-Saltána, Sattár Khán and Bâqir Khán declaring that they will sink all personal aims and work together for the good of the country. Fidd'ís surrendering arms in return for money payments.

Aug. 7, 1910. Severe fighting took place at the Atábak's Park between Fidd'ís who refused to surrender their arms and the Government troops. The former were eventually overcome, with a loss of 30 killed and 300 prisoners. Mu'izzu's-Sultán, who took so prominent a part in the Rasht insurrection, escaped. Both Sattár Khán and Bâqir Khán were wounded. Mediation was attempted by the German Minister, Baron Quadt, and the Turkish Ambassador, but was ineffectual.

Aug. 10, 1910. Zarghāmu's-Saltána and his Bakhtiyári followers were disarmed at Sháh 'Abdu'l-'Azím.

Aug. 14, 1910. The Istiqlál-i-Írán ("Independence of Persia") is the only paper appearing in Tīhrán since the Coup d'État. Two thousand tumáns reward (£400) is offered for such information as may lead to the arrest of Sayyid 'Abdu'lláh's murderers. Proposals for a strong army and the appointment of foreign advisers.

Aug. 17, 1910. Russia obliges the Persian Government to surrender to them Nawrúzóff of Nakhjuwán, a Russian subject suspected of having taken part in the assassination of 'Alí Muḥammad Khán. (See Aug. 2, supra.)

Aug. 18, 1910. Sir George Barclay returns from leave to Tīhrán. Pensions are accorded by the Persian Government to Sattár Khán and Bâqir Khán.

Aug. 19, 1910. Persian Foreign Minister (Husayn-qulí Khán) makes a fresh appeal to Russia to withdraw her troops from Persia.

Aug. 21, 1910. Russia protests against "Turkish violations of Persian territory."

Aug. 25, 1910. Russia demands concessions as the price of the withdrawal of her troops from Persia. Even the Times (Sept. 24, 1910) protests against such a demand. (See Oct. 25, infra.)

Sept. 6, 1910. The Majlis decides to appoint American advisers in preference to French.

Sept. 12, 1910. Revolt in Mázandarán headed by Rashídu's-Sultán, Amír-i-Mukarram and Isma'íl Khán. (See Oct. 12, infra.)

Sept. 18, 1910. The Farmán-farmá resigns the Ministry of the Interior.

Sept. 22, 1910. Death of the Regent, the aged 'Azudu'l-Mulk.'

Sept. 23, 1910. Mírzá Abu'l-Qásim Khán Náshiru'l-Mulk elected Regent by 40 votes as against 29 votes given to the rival candidate Mustawfi'l-Mamálík.

Sept. 25, 1910. Persian Government troops worsted in an affray with Sháhseven tribesmen.

Sept. 28, 1910. Russian Government proposes to send M. Izvolsky, who has ceased to be Minister for Foreign Affairs, as Ambassador to Paris. A violent attack on him appeared in the Novoe Vremya about Oct. 4.

Oct. 9, 1910. Disturbances in South Persia. Yazdikhwást raided by Kúhgaylú tribesmen. 'Aynu'd-Dawla nominated Governor of Fárs.

Oct. 12, 1910. Rashídu's-Sultán reported as overcome by Government troops and Ardabíl tranquil. Private loans to Persian Government obstructed by Russian and British Governments.

Oct. 15, 1910. Russia prevents the Persian Crown Jewels being pawned, and announces that her troops at Qazwín shall not be withdrawn, but shall go into winter quarters. "Restiveness of English banking and commercial circles" at Russia's attitude.

Oct. 16, 1910. British Note (widely described as "Ultimatum") to Persia on the disturbed condition of South Persia and interruption of the traffic on the Southern roads.

Oct. 17, 1910. Fighting with Ná'ib Husayn at Káshán. British "Ultimatum" published at Tíhrán. M. Pokhitanoff appointed Russian Consul at Tíhrán. (He took up his appointment on Dec. 27, 1910, the day on which Husayn-quli Khán resigned the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.)

Oct. 18-19, 1910. The British "Ultimatum" arouses so much excitement and indignation in various quarters, especially in Germany, Turkey and India, that the British Foreign Office issues a communiqué minimizing its importance, while the Government of India disclaims all responsibility for the measures proposed in it.

Oct. 20, 1910. Turkish alarm at British "Ultimatum," which is described in the Vienna Press as "the début of Sir Arthur Nicholson, an energetic and unscrupulous politician." The German papers say that "the meeting between the Tsar and the Kaiser [at Potsdam] will greatly influence the Persian situation." (See under Nov. 5, infra.) Concentration of Turkish troops on Persian frontier. Lord Hardinge's farewell speech on the eve of his departure for India.

Oct. 22, 1910. Persian reply to British Note presented. Persia asks for Italian military instructors. (These were refused on Dec. 29. On Jan. 3, 1911, Sweden consented to lend officers for this purpose.) Treasonable correspondence between Shaykh Maḥmūd of Varāmīn, in refuge at the Russian Legation, and Rashidu's-Sultān, in rebellion in Mázandarān, intercepted by the Persian Government.

Oct. 23, 1910. Great protest meeting of Turks and Persians at Constantinople, where Russia and England and their policy towards Persia are violently attacked. On Oct. 27 Mr FitzMaurice, First Dragoman of the British Embassy at Constantinople, protests to Ṭal'at Bey against the language used on this occasion.

Oct. 25, 1910. Persia offers the concessions demanded by Russia in return for the immediate withdrawal of her troops from Persian soil. (See Aug. 25, supra.)

Oct. 28, 1910. Protest of Peace Association in London against the British "Ultimatum." British Consols fall below 80, partly in consequence of the Persian imbroglio.

Oct. 29, 1910. The Persian Government, having intercepted correspondence between the ex-Shāh and the Turkmāns proving that he was inciting them to espouse his cause, proposes to the Legations to stop his pension in accordance with Article 11 of the Protocol of Sept. 7, 1909. The Legations forbid this (apparently without condescending to examine the evidence), and send ghulāms to "shadow" Husayn-qulī Khān, the Persian Foreign Minister, until the ex-Shāh's allowance is paid, which is done, under protest, two days later. The Persian Minister in London formally protests against this insult to Husayn-qulī Khān (which is feebly defended by Sir Edward Grey) on Nov. 4.

Nov. 5, 1910. Meeting at Potsdam between the Tsar and the Kaiser. The text of the Agreement then arrived at was published in England on Jan. 5, 1911. Great disquietude is shown by the French at Russo-German relations, especially à propos of Herr von Bethmann-Hollweg's speech of Dec. 11 on this subject.

Nov. 8, 1910. The ex-Shāh, having surreptitiously left Odessa, the place of his banishment, without (as it was pretended) the knowledge of the Russian Government, arrived at Vienna. M. Sazonoff, the new Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, returned to St Petersburg from Berlin.

Nov. 10, 1910. Proposals for Trans-Persian railway mooted.

Nov. 13, 1910. Resignation of Yeprem Khān. Seligmann loan to Persia finally stopped by Russia and England about this date.

Nov. 16, 1910. M. Poklevski Koziell, the Russian Minister at Tīhrān, demands a formal apology from Husayn-qulī Khān Nawwāb, the Persian Minister for Foreign Affairs, for alleged insults offered to Āqā Ḥasan, the Russian Consular Agent at Kāshān.

Nov. 17, 1910. British reply to Persian Note of Oct. 22. Five hundred more Russian troops reach Julfá on the Araxes en route for Salmás.

Nov. 22, 1910 Dignified appeal issued by Mujtahids of Najaf. Protest of Calcutta Persian colony against British Note.

Dec. 2, 1910. M. Sazonoff made Russian Minister for Foreign Affairs, with M. Neratoff as Assistant.

Dec. 8, 1910. Proposed loan of £1,250,000 at 5% issued by Imperial Bank of Persia at 87½ opposed by Majlis.—Sir George Buchanan, the new Ambassador of Great Britain to Russia, reaches St Petersburg.

Dec. 23, 1910. The ex-Sháh at Rome.

Dec. 27, 1910. Resignation of Husayn-qulí Khán Nawwáb of the Persian Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Dec. 28, 1910. Persian reply to British Note of Nov. 17. The All-India Muslim League protests against British policy in Persia. The new Regent, Násiru'l-Mulk, who had been expected in Persia since Oct. 19, is still at Vienna and refuses to proceed.

Dec. 29, 1910. Italy refuses to lend officers for the training and organization of the Persian Gendarmerie. Sweden is approached.

1911

Jan. 3, 1911. Muhtashamu's-Saltana made Minister for Foreign Affairs. Sweden consents to lend officers for Gendarmerie.

Jan. 6, 1911. The ex-Sháh, with Amír Bahádur Jang, arrived at Berlin from Brussels, having visited Meran, Rome, Nice, Paris and Vienna, and held consultations and conversations with his exiled partisans in those places.

Jan. 12, 1911. Sir Arthur Nicholson is stated to have told the Turkish Ambassador in London that "Turkish policy in Persia was a menace to England."

Jan. 16, 1911. Násiru'l-Mulk, the Regent, left Vienna for Persia.

Jan. 17, 1911. Rumoured undertaking of Turkey to help Persia. Conciliatory attitude of Persia towards Russia, and talk of withdrawal of Russian troops from Qazwin.

Jan. 18, 1911. Manifesto of Persian Mujtahids at Najaf, and boycott of Russian goods advocated by them.

Jan. 23, 1911. Násiru'l-Mulk, the Regent, reaches Bákú.—Raḥim Khán returns to Tabriz from Russia.

Jan. 24, 1911. American financial experts promised to Persia.

Jan. 29, 1911. Násiru'l-Mulk reaches Rasht, but is delayed there by a snow-storm.

Feb. 1, 1911. The Mu'tamad-i-Kháqán, Governor of Isfahán, and his cousin 'Abdu'r-Raḥim Khán are shot by 'Abbás, an ex-officer of police, the former being severely wounded, the latter killed. 'Abbás takes refuge with the Russian Consul, M. Bogozhavlenski, who refuses to give him up. (See under May 19, infra.)

Feb. 2, 1911. Five American finance experts appointed to serve the Persian Government at salaries ranging from £600 to £2000 a year. (See under May 11, infra.)

Feb. 6, 1911. Šanī' u'd-Dawla, the Persian Minister of Finance, shot dead by a Georgian named Ivan and two confederates. The assassins are arrested after one of them and four of the Persian Police have been wounded in the struggle. The Russian Legation demands and obtains the surrender of the assassins, who are Russian subjects. Anti-Russian feeling strongly excited. (See under May 9, infra.)

Feb. 8, 1911. Nāširu'l-Mulk, the Regent, arrives in Tīhrán.

Feb. 11, 1911. M. Bogozhavlenski, the Russian Consul at Iṣfahán, is found drowned in a tank in the Consulate garden. It was supposed to be a case of suicide.

Feb. 12, 1911. Russians at Ardabil undertake primitive expedition against Galish tribesmen.

Feb. 13, 1911. Nāširu'l-Mulk, the Regent, makes a strong speech to the Deputies, demanding their loyal support, which they promise him.

Feb. 15-22, 1911. Cossacks sack the village of Varmúni near Ástará and kill some fifty persons, including women and children. An additional Russian battalion sent from Bákú, of whom 600 had already reached Ástará.

Feb. 20, 1911. Assassins of Šanī' u'd-Dawla condemned by Russian Government to fourteen years' banishment to Siberia.

Feb. 23, 1911. The Sipahdár is entrusted with the formation of a Cabinet. Brawl in Tīhrán between two parties of armed men, believed to be Russian subjects. Two, supposed to be relations of one of Šanī' u'd-Dawla's assassins, are killed.

Feb. 28, 1911. 'Alí Beg, a young Reactionary who was notorious in connection with the Coup d'État of June 23, 1908, shot himself in the Square Montholon, Paris, in consequence of a quarrel with his mistress.

March 2, 1911. Messrs Kay and Haycock robbed near Iṣfahán.

March 4, 1911. The Regent's address to the Persian Nation on the occasion of his taking the oath.

March 8, 1911. New Cabinet formed, consisting of the Sipahdár (War), Muhtashamu's-Saltāna (Foreign Affairs), Mustasháru'd-Dawla (Interior), 'Alá'u's-Sultāna (Education), Mu'áwini'd-Dawla (Commerce), Mumtázu'd-Dawla (Finance), Mushíru'd-Dawla (Justice).—Disarmament of persons not authorized to bear arms by Yeprem Khán.

March 13-15, 1911. Qazwín is evacuated by the bulk of Russian troops stationed there, except 80 Cossacks.

'April 6, 1911.' British Consulate at Kirmánsháh attacked by robbers.—Debate in Majlis on powers demanded by Cabinet.

April 12, 1911. Improved state of Shīrāz roads under Nizāmu's-Saltāna's government of Fārs.

April 17, 1911. Arrest of Qiwāmis by Nizāmu's-Saltāna at Shīrāz. (See under May 8, infra.)

April 24, 1911. Proposed Persian loan of £1,250,000 discussed in Majlis; defeated on April 27, finally passed on May 2.

April 27, 1911. Proposed British railway from the Persian Gulf to Khurramābād.

May 8, 1911. Nāṣiru'd-Dawla, one of the Qiwāmis, is murdered.

May 9, 1911. Alleged suicide of one of Sanī'u'd-Dawla's assassins on the Caspian steamer carrying him to Russia.

May 11, 1911. Mr W. Morgan Shuster and the other American Financial Advisers reach Anzālī.

May 15, 1911. Mr Kingston, a representative of Messrs Burroughs and Welcome, is robbed near Kāshān.

May 18, 1911. Hostile demonstrations before the British Consulate at Shīrāz.

May 19, 1911. 'Abbās, the assassin who attempted to kill the Mu'tamad-i-Khāqān and succeeded in killing his cousin at Iṣfahān on Feb. 1, is found guilty and deported to Russia.—The Russian Legation demands the deportation of Amin Rasūl-zāda, the editor of the important Persian daily Irān-i-Naw.

May 30, 1911. It is proposed in the Majlis and unanimously agreed on June 13 to invest Mr W. Morgan Shuster, the new American Treasurer-General, with very extensive powers. The Sardār-i-As'ad leaves Ṭīhrān for Europe.

June 15, 1911. The Sipāhdār leaves Ṭīhrān in a huff, bidding his coachman drive "to Firangistān"; but is induced to return on July 4.

July 9, 1911. The command of the new Treasury Gendarmerie which it is proposed to organize is offered to Captain C. B. Stokes, whose appointment as Military Attaché to the British Legation at Ṭīhrān is on the point of expiring. Praise of this move by Mr W. A. Moore, who has now become Times correspondent in the Persian capital.

July 16, 1911. The ex-Shāh's brother Sālāru'd-Dawla seizes Hamadān and proclaims the ex-Shāh Muḥammad 'Alī as king.

July 19, 1911. The ex-Shāh, accompanied by some of his followers, re-appears in Persia, having passed through Russia, as it is alleged, with a false beard and under a false name, unknown to the Russian Government, carrying with him a quantity of arms and ammunition, labelled "Mineral Waters," and accompanied by a Russian officer named Khabayeff, specially attached to him.—Russia objects to Captain Stokes's appointment.

July 19-21, 1911. The Persian Government takes energetic steps to deal with the ex-Shāh's raid, and protests to the Russian and British Legations at this flagrant violation of the Protocol of Sept. 7, 1909.

The Legations reply on Aug. 2 to the effect that it is no concern of theirs, but is a matter affecting Persia only.

July 25, 1911. The Sipahdár is removed from the Cabinet, and retires to Zarganda, the village in which is situated the Russian Legation. Mr Morgan Shuster advises the Persian Government as to steps to be taken against the ex-Sháh.

July 27, 1911. The Russian Consul at Tabriz, accompanied by 300 Russian troops and Cossacks, forcibly releases Rashidu'l-Mulk, the former Governor of Ardabil, imprisoned on suspicion of treason, from the custody of the Deputy-Governor of Tabriz, and conveys him to the Russian Consulate.—Sháhrúd is looted by the ex-Sháh's Turkmán allies.

July 28, 1911. The captain and mate of the Russian steamer Christophoros are dismissed from their command for communicating to the Press the fact that the ex-Sháh crossed the Caspian to Persia in their vessel.

July 29, 1911. Russia again protests against Captain Stokes's appointment, which is still warmly supported by M Jean Herbet of l'Action and le Siècle (who had been in Persia for some months to study the situation) in a series of four telegrams, despatched on July 29–Aug. 4, intended for publication in the British Press¹, but refused by the chief agencies on grounds of political expediency.—The Majlis voted the acceptance of the contract with Capt. C. B. Stokes by 63 votes out of 72, and decided by 59 votes out of 70 to put a price of 100,000 túmáns on the ex-Sháh's head and 25,000 túmáns each on the heads of his brothers Shu'd'ús-Saltána and Sálaru'd-Dawla.

July 31, 1911. Russia demands that the Customs' receipts be paid to M. Momard and not to Mr Shuster, between whom an acute conflict arises. The French and Italian Legations support Russia, and the German Legation is also said to be opposed to Mr Shuster, who is violently and coarsely attacked by the Novoe Vremya, which declares (Aug. 4) that, "in the absence of a miracle, the ex-Sháh will be at Tíhrán in five days."

Aug. 4, 1911. The Times says that "neither the British nor the Indian Government has any power to prevent Captain Stokes accepting the appointment" offered him by the Persian Government.—British Note advising the Persian Government not to persist in the appointment.—Alleged agreement between the Russian Government and the ex-Sháh whereby the latter consents, in case of success, to cede to Russia Ázarbáyján and the Persian shore of the Caspian Sea.

Aug. 9, 1911. The Persia Committee revived in London.

Aug. 7–12, 1911. Renewed violent attack by the Novoe Vremya on "Stokes and Company," accompanied by expressions of surprise at the "apparent helplessness" of the British Foreign Office.

Aug. 12, 1911. Defeat of ex-Sháh's forces by Bakhtiyáris at Firúz-kúh and death of Fashidu'l-Mulk.

¹ Published in the Manchester Guardian of Aug. 8, 1911.

Aug. 21, 1911. The British Foreign Office informs the Persian Legation that Captain Stokes's resignation from the Indian Army will not be accepted.

Aug. 22, 1911. Defeat of ex-Sháh's army at Sawád-kúh.

Aug. 31, 1911. Third victory of Persian Government troops at Damáwand.—Yeprem Khán ill.—Loyalty of Ziyá'u'l-Mulk and Amir-i-Mufakkkham suspected.

Sept. 5-6, 1911. Arshad'u'd-Dawla, the ex-Sháh's best and bravest General, is captured and shot.

Sept. 7, 1911. The ex-Sháh takes refuge on a Russian vessel on the Caspian Sea.

Sept. 11, 1911. Rahím Khán is put to death at Tabríz by order of the Anjuman or Provincial Assembly. An understanding is arrived at between Mr Shuster and M. Mornard.

Sept. 12, 1911. The ex-Sháh arrives, a fugitive, at Gyumush-tepé with seven of his followers.

Sept. 18, 1911. Reported destruction of 120 Turkmáns forming part of Arshad'u'd-Dawla's army at Sháhrúd.

Sept. 20, 1911. Seven additional Swedish officers appointed to the Persian Gendarmerie. Mr New's appointment as Persian Treasury officer cancelled by the Majlis in consequence of the British Government's objection to the appointment of Captain Stokes, but finally ratified at Mr Shuster's request on Oct. 4.

Sept. 22, 1911. Ná'ib Husayn occupies Káshán.

Sept. 25, 1911. Sáláru'd-Dawla defeated by Persian Government troops at Sáwa, and again two days later at Nawbarán.

Sept. 27, 1911. Italian Ultimatum to Turkey. (It was stated in the Nation, with a great show of probability, that Italy was acting in collusion with Russia, Russia's object being to involve the Turks in a war which would prevent them from coming to Persia's aid or opposing the projected Russian invasion of N.W. Persia.)

Oct. 3, 1911. Decision of Indian Government to send Indian troops to S. Persia.

Oct. 6, 1911. Hamadán taken by Persian Government troops and Sáláru'd-Dawla put to flight.

Oct. 7, 1911. Conciliatory attitude of Persian Government towards Russia.

Oct. 9, 1911. The property of the ex-Sháh's brother Shu'd'u's-Saltana being confiscated by the Persian Government, and Treasury Gendarmes placed in possession by order of Mr Morgan Shuster the Treasurer-General, the Russian Consul M. Pokhitanoff sends a superior force of Cossacks to expel them. Next day a large force of Gendarmes expels the Cossacks and again takes possession. Thereupon M. Pokhitanoff comes there in person, insults the Gendarmes, and does his best to provoke an "incident."

Oct. 16, 1911. Ná'ib Husayn expelled from Káshán. Miss Ross robbed near Shiráz.

Oct. 17, 1911. Russia definitely refuses to withdraw her objection to the appointment of Captain Stokes. Capture of ex-Sháh's diary.

Oct. 18, 1911. Times attacks Mr Shuster in a leader. The ex-Sháh reaches 'Ishqábád (Askabad) in Russian territory.

Oct. 19, 1911. Persian Government protests against the sending of Indian troops to South Persia.

Oct. 20, 1911. Mr Shuster telegraphs to the Times that he is sending a reply to their leader of Oct. 18.

Oct. 22, 1911. Russia objects to the appointment of 20 additional Swedish officers.

Oct. 23-27, 1911. Italian massacre of 4000 Arabs, including women and children, at Tripoli.

Oct. 24, 1911. The British Government notifies Persia of the sailing of the Indian troops, of whom the first detachment land at Bushire on Oct. 27. On the same day 200 additional Russian troops are landed at Anzálí, and it is stated that 1700 more will follow, while 1900 will advance from Julfá to Tabriz.

Oct. 29, 1911. The ex-Sháh is reported as having returned from 'Ishqábád to Gyumush-tepé.

Nov. 5, 1911. First Russian Ultimatum, demanding an apology from the Persian Government for alleged insult to the Russian Consul, M. Pokhitanoff, on Oct. 9. The Times of this date censures Pokhitanoff's conduct.

Nov. 7, 1911. The Swedish Government is reported to have yielded to Russia's objection of Oct. 22 to the lending of more Swedish officers to the Persian Government. (But see under Nov. 17 infra.)

Nov. 9, 1911. Mr Morgan Shuster's reply of Oct. 20 to the Times leader of Oct. 18 is published in the Times.

Nov. 11, 1911. Captain Stokes is ordered by the British Government to return to India. Two more squadrons of Central Indian horse arrive at Bushire.

Nov. 12, 1911. Russian Note to Persian Government repeating the demand for an apology of Nov. 5.

Nov. 13, 1911. The first two squadrons of Indian troops reach Shiráz.

Nov. 15, 1911. Lord Curzon's sympathetic and eloquent speech at the Persia Society's Dinner in London.—Russian troops are ready to enter Persia.

Nov. 16, 1911. The Viceroy of the Caucasus is instructed to send 4000 more Russian troops into Persia. At Maláyir 3000 Persian Government troops are held in readiness to act against Sáláru'd-Dawla.

Nov. 17, 1911. Seven more Swedish officers are selected for service in Persia.—Violence of the Novoe Vremya against Mr Shuster.—Violent attack by the Outlook (which, having been strongly pro-Russian, executed an amazing volta face on Nov. 11) on Sir Edward Grey, whom it describes as “the painted lath at the Foreign Office.”

Nov. 19, 1911. Letter from Mr Shuster in the New York Sun denouncing Sir George Barclay's duplicity.—Defeat of Sáláru'd-Dawla, with loss of 500 men, at Burújird.—Russia breaks off diplomatic relations with Persia, who appeals to England for mediation.

Nov. 20, 1911. Persia is given to understand by the British Minister that if she submits to the Ultimatum the Russian troops will not advance.

Nov. 23, 1911. The Treasury Gendarmes are withdrawn from the house of Shu'd'u's-Saltana, the Persian Foreign Minister goes to the Russian Legation and offers an apology, and Persia thus complies with the terms of the First Russian Ultimatum. According to the Times, “Sir George Barclay assisted the reconciliation by convincing the Persians that the Russian troops would be withdrawn if an acceptable apology was tendered.” The number of Russian troops in Persia is now estimated at 12,000. Russian Note to the Powers. Wuthúqu'd-Dawla, Foreign Minister; Šamsámu's-Saltana, Premier; Mushíru'd-Dawla, Education; Mu'azidu's-Saltana, Posts and Telegraphs. To these were subsequently added Sardár-i-Muhtasham, War; Mustasháru's-Saltana, Justice; and Zaká'u'l-Mulk, Finance.—Three more battalions of Russian troops disembark at Anzali.

Nov. 25, 1911. High-handed behaviour of Russian Consul at Rasht.—Russian Legation accuses Mr Shuster of circulating Persian translation of his letter to the Times. Mr Shuster (Nov. 28) disclaims all responsibility for this.

Nov. 27, 1911. Debate in Commons and (Nov. 28) in Lords on Persian Question. The Novoe Vremya foreshadows fresh demands on Russia's part.

Nov. 29, 1911. Second Russian Ultimatum presented to Persian Government.

Nov. 30, 1911. Second Ultimatum rejected. Bazaars closed, great excitement, offers of help to Persia from Armenian Dashnaktsiýún. Plots against Mr Shuster's life discovered.

Dec. 1, 1911. Complaints from Tabriz that Russia is openly supporting the Reactionary Šamad Khán Shujá'u'd-Dawla.—Russian troops ordered to advance.

Dec. 2, 1911. Assassination of Alá'u'd-Dawla, who is suspected of intriguing with the Sipahdár to effect restoration of ex-Sháh. Anti-Russian demonstrations.—Wuthúqu'd-Dawla resigns the Ministry for Foreign Affairs.—Bakhtiyáris said to have been “squared” by Russia.

Dec. 3, 1911. Russian troops advancing on Tíhrán.—Yeprem Khán is said to favour armed resistance. Popular demonstrations and processions crying “Marg yá Istiglál” (“Death or Independence!”). Mr Shuster releases Captain Stokes from his engagement and cancels the engagements of Messrs Lecoffre, Haycock and Schindler. The Sardár— i-As'ad, returning from Europe, lands at Rasht, where the Russians disarm the local militia and seize the telegraph.

Dec. 4-6, 1911. Telegrams of protest against Russia's action from Mass Meeting at Tabriz, from the President of the Majlis, Mu'tamanu'l-Mulk, from the Persian women (addressed to the Women's Suffrage Societies), and from the Persia Defence Society, Calcutta. Popular feeling runs high against England, who is considered to have betrayed the Persians.—M. Sazonoff in Paris.—Wuthuqu'd-Dawla resumes office (Dec. 5) of Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Dec. 7, 1911. Lord Curzon's eloquent speech on Persia in House of Lords. Lord Morley's reply.—Russia's aggressions in Mongolia and attempts to obtain from Turkey the opening of the Dardanelles. Dispute between the United States and Russia about status of American Jews and their passports.

Dec. 11, 1911. Conference of the Sardār-i-As'ad with British and Russian Ministers at the British Legation.—The Mujtahids of Najaf and Karbalā prepare for a jihād.—Feeling runs high in Tīhrān.—“Russia,” according to the Times, “regards the existence of the Majlis as incompatible with her interests.” 4000 Turkish troops reported at Salmās.

Dec. 12, 1911. Sudden death of Mullā Muḥammad Kāzīm, the chief Constitutionalist Mujtahid at Najaf, on the eve of his departure for Persia.—The Majlis still stands firm against acceptance of the Second Russian Ultimatum, and refuses to recognize the new Cabinet (see under Nov. 23, supra). Russia sends 800 troops and 10 guns to Khúy.

Dec. 13, 1911. General Gabieff and 4000 Russian troops concentrate at Qazwīn.

Dec. 14, 1911. Boycott of British goods at Shīrāz.—Resolution of Manchester Chamber of Commerce.—Debate in House of Commons.

Dec. 17, 1911. Šamad Khān Mumtāzu's-Saltāna, the Persian Minister at Paris, said to be working for “a conciliatory settlement of the Russo-Persian conflict.”

Dec. 18, 1911. Sollum in Cyrenaica ceded to England (or nominally to Egypt) by Turkey.—The Majlis rejects the Cabinet's proposed acceptance of the Second Russian Ultimatum.

Dec. 20, 1911. The Cabinet refuses to resign.

Dec. 21, 1911. By a vote of 39 to 19 the Majlis agrees to appoint a Commission of five Deputies to deal, conjointly with the Cabinet, with the Russian Ultimatum.—Fighting between the Russian troops and the Persians breaks out simultaneously at Tabriz, Rasht, and Anzālī.—Telegraphic communication with Persia interrupted.

Dec. 23, 1911. Persia accepts and submits to the Russian Ultimatum. Political meetings prohibited in Tīhrān, and most of the newspapers stopped on Dec. 26. Orders sent to the people of Tabriz, Rasht, etc., to stop fighting. Mr Shuster is notified of his dismissal. Telegraphic communication with Tabriz interrupted. Fresh Russian reinforcements ordered thither.

Dec. 24, 1911. Further severe fighting at Tabriz, which is heavily bombarded by the Russians. The Russian Consul at Rasht assumes control of the town. The Novoe Vremya demands "merciless retribution" and "extermination of the fidā'is," and says that "true humanity requires cruelty."—The Regent, on the advice of the Cabinet, dissolves the Majlis. Telegraphic communication with Persia only possible by Suez, and entirely interrupted between Tīhrān and Tabriz.

Dec. 26, 1911. The Bahāristān, where the National Assembly was wont to sit, is closed and guarded by troops, and the newspapers are suppressed.

Dec. 27, 1911. Attack on a body of Indian troops escorting Mr W. A. Smart to Shirāz. Mr Smart, first reported as killed, was wounded and fell into the hands of the tribesmen, who, on recognizing him, treated him with much kindness and hospitality.—The Tīhrān-Tabriz telegraph worked for a short time to-day.

Dec. 28, 1911. Amānu'llāh Mīrzā, Acting Governor of Tabriz, pursued by Russian hatred on account of telegrams sent by him denouncing Russian cruelties, takes refuge in the British Consulate.—Šamad Khān Shujā'u'd-Dawla, the notorious Reactionary and partisan of the ex-Shāh, prepares, with Russian approval, to enter Tabriz and assume governorship.—The Bakhtiyāri Amīr-i-Mujāhid said to be a candidate for the post of Treasurer-General vacated by Mr Shuster.

Dec. 29, 1911. General clamour in Imperialist Press in Great Britain and India for British expedition to South Persia.—The Russian and British Legations support the candidature of M. Mornard for the post of Treasurer-General, to the great dissatisfaction of Persian and non-official English elements.

Dec. 30, 1911. Press Association telegram from Tabriz saying that "had the fidā'is continued to fight a day longer, the Russians [i.e. those already in the city before the arrival of their reinforcements] would have been overpowered."—Mr Smart reached Kāzarūn safely.

It is unnecessary to continue this chronology here over the two years (1912 and 1913) which have since elapsed, since this book deals only with events and things belonging to the Four Periods enumerated above, and the second Constitutional Period properly ends with the forcible closure of the Majlis on December 24, 1911. The horrors which followed the Russian invasion of Azarbāyjān, especially at Tabriz, and inaugurated the gloomy year of 1912 are briefly described in a pamphlet entitled The Reign of Terror in Tabriz: England's Responsibility which I published in October, 1912, and I am preparing a larger volume containing much fuller details derived from all available sources. On January 1, 1912, which coincided with the 'Ashūrā or 10th of Muḥarram (the most solemn day of mourning amongst the Shī'a Muḥammadans), A.H. 1330, the Russians began a whole series of executions of leading citizens and patriots by publicly hanging on a gallows gaily decorated with the Russian colours eight persons, of whom the most notable were the venerable and learned ecclesiastic Thiqat'u'l-Islām, chief mujtahid of Azarbāyjān; Ziyā'u'l-'Ulamā; Sādiq'u'l-Mulk, a young officer ; and Shaykh Salim. Amongst other notable persons hanged by them were the philanthropist Hájji 'Alí Dawá-farúsh ("the Druggist"), the poet Mírzá Aḥmad Suhaylī, and two nephews of Sattār Khan on or about Jan. 6 ; and the much-respected and trusted Armenian Petros Andreassian some days later. In most cases the houses of the victims were blown up with dynamite by the Russians, who installed as Governor Šamad Khān Shujá'u'd-Dawla, with the support of Mr Shipley, the British Consul at Tabríz, and the concurrence of the British Foreign Office. This miscreant tortured, killed and extorted money by methods summarily described in the pamphlet above mentioned. The executions continued in Tabríz at any rate until August, 1912, and similar deeds were done throughout Ázarbáyján. At Rasht the printing-presses were destroyed, the newspapers (some of the best in Persia) were stopped, and a few people were hanged. The unprovoked bombardment and plunder by the Russians of the sacred shrine of the Imám Rizá at Mashhad on March 29, 1912, on which occasion many innocent people, both inhabitants and pilgrims, were killed, was the culmination of these horrors, and produced an indescribably painful impression throughout the Muslim World.

Since the closure of the Second National Assembly at the end of 1911, that is to say for more than two years, rumours have several times arisen that fresh elections were to be held and a new Majlis convened. These elections are now actually taking place, except in Ázarbáyján, and it is probable that this year may witness the inauguration of a Third National Assembly, which, however, welcome as it will be to Persia and her friends, will have to face with diminished strength tasks even more arduous and problems even more difficult than those which confronted its two predecessors. For on the one hand many of the most single-minded, able and resolute patriots have been slain or are in exile or in hiding, while full advantage has been taken by Russia during this two years' interregnum (when Persian Cabinet Ministers have hardly been able to hold office, much less act, without the sanction of the Russian and British Legations) to extort concessions of the most far-reaching character as to the making of railways, the exploitation of minerals and fisheries, and other matters, and to saddle the unhappy country with fresh burdens of debt at usurious rates of interest.

Bad as the situation is, however, it is impossible to deny that it might have been worse ; Tīhrán has not been occupied by the Russians nor been the scene of horrors such as those perpetrated at Tabríz ; the Royal Pretenders Muḥammad 'Alí, Shu'á'u'-Salṭana and Sáláru'd-Dawla have for the present ceased to trouble, and have disappeared, it may be hoped for ever, from the political horizon ; and the work effected by the new Gendarmerie under the Swedish officers in suppressing brigandage and securing the safety of the roads deserves the fullest recognition and the highest praise. For so much salvage from the general wreck we must be thankful, and for the fact that, however dark the horizon and ominous the outlook, Persia, in name at least, still remains an independent and undivided country.

This Index comprises names mentioned in the Translator's Preface, the Author's Introduction, and the text of the Persian poems contained in Part II, as well as those occurring in the translated portion (Part I) of the book. The prefix Abū ("Father of —"), when it occurs in proper names, is sometimes ignored in the alphabetical arrangement, so that, for example, Abū'z-Ziyā may be found either under Z, or A. Titles, as opposed to names, of persons, as well as titles of books and newspapers, are printed in italics. The abbreviation n. after the number of a page indicates a foot-note: thus "17 n." means "p. 17, ad calc.," while "17 and n." means that the name in question is mentioned on p. 17 and also in a foot-note on that page.

دقیقت مستشرقین و منتقین ادبیات فارسی را جلب نموده و ملت ایران را نیز از صمیم قلب تهنیت میگویم که چنین نوعروس بکر معرفت را بمنصه ظهور جلوه آورده است و از خداوند خواهانم که امثال ایشان را بیفزاید درینجا لازم می بینم که تأسیسات خود را از اینکه نتوانستم همه آثار منظومات شعرای این دور اخیر را جمع آوری کنم اظهار بدارم و همچنین فریضه ذمه خود میدانم که تشکرات صمیمی خود را بدوستان دور و نزدیک که در جمع و ارسال این اشعار معاونت و بذل همت کرده اند تقدیم نمایم و از ادبا و شعرا و معارف خواهان و منتسبین ادبیات فارسی تنی می نمایم که هرچه از اشعار وطنی و سیاسی و تاریخی و غزلیات و غیرها تا کنون بنظم آورده اند یا شنیده اند اگر برای ایشان زحمت نیست مرحمت فرموده آنها را بعنوان مخلص بفرستند تا شاید جلد دویسی ازین دوره ادبیات جدید به مرتب ساخته برسم ارمغان بنظر مطالعه طالبان علم و ادب برسانم چه این کار را برای خود افتخار و شرف بزرگ میدانم عنوان این جانب از قرار ذیل است:

ادوارد برون معلم السنه شرقیه در دار الفنون کیمبرج (انگلستان)

فی غرة ربيع الاول ۱۳۳۲هـ

EDWARD G. BROWNE,
Pembroke College, Cambridge, England.

January 29, 1914.

از فواید کثیرهٔ این انقلاب سیاسی همین بس که چنین ادبیات بکری بوجود آورده است که در سایه آن يك خلق جدید و يك مستقبل پُر امید ظهور خواهد یافت

ثانیاً از حیث اسلوب نیز این ادبیات جدیده يك نازگی و اهمیت مخصوصی دارد و آن این است که در اغلب اشعاری که درین دور جدید سروده اند حقیقت را برای اینکه همه کس بتواند فهم نماید در یاس هزل و مزاح جلوه داده اند و یا با یکی از پرده های موسیقی هم آهنگ ساخته اند تا باسانی قبول عامه بهم رساند

بدیهی است که شخص هر قدر دارای اخلاق حمیده و نهذیب نفس باشد باز وی را شنیدن عیوب خود بی پرده چندان خوش آیند نخواهد بود و حقیقت گوئی در وی تأثیری چندان نخواهد کرد ولی در شکل هزل و مزاح آنرا بپیل و رغبت خواهد خواند و البته بی تأثیر هم نخواهد ماند

شعراى این دوره که این اسلوب مرغوب را پیش گرفته اند بمنزله طیب حاذقی می باشند که مزاج مریض خود را بدست آورده و موافق آن ادویه تلخ را با شیرینی آمیخته بهریض میخوراند و یا مانند واعظ که درجهٔ ادراک مستمع را درك کرده بقدر فهم او بسادگی تمام مقاصد خود را ادا می نماید و عامه ملت خوانده و بحقیقت مسائل سیاسی و وطنی و معاشی واقف شوند چنانکه غزلیات و قصائد عارف و اشرف گیلانی و دخو (میرزا علی اکبر خان دهخدا) و ملك الشعراء بهار و غیرهم در سایهٔ این اسلوب مرغوب از قراری که می نویسند امروز در نزد خاص و عام مشهور است و در محافل میخوانند و با آلات موسیقی می نوازند

این جانب بترتیب این نمونهٔ مختصر از ادبیات وطنی و سیاسی فارسی نظر

همانا امواجی است که از قعر دریا و از طبقات باین آن بالا می آید همین طور است در انقلابات سیاسی انقلابی که ثمره خوب میدهد انقلابی است که در سایه جنبش طبقه عامه ملت بظهور رسد و الا انقلابی خواهد بود نارس و ناهنگام و سطحی که مانند امواج سطحی دریا هرگز آن قوت را نخواهد داشت که بنای استبداد و خرافات تراکمه چندین قرن را از بیخ براندازد

ازین رو طبقه عامه ملت بیشتر از طبقات دیگر باید منظور نظر ارباب سخن و واعظین و مخصوصاً شعرا و ادبا باشند و من چنین تصور میکنم که در عالم ملتی نیست که بقدر ملت ایران محذوب شعر باشد و شعر در طبیعت ایرانی جاذبه مخصوصی دارد که کمتر نظیر آن در سایر اقوام دیده شده است ازین نقطه نظر شعرائی که اصلاح حال طبقه عامه ملت را در نظر دارند مرجع بر دیگران می باشند و میان ایشان و سائرین که جز مدح و اخذ صله هنری دیگر ندارند همان فرق است که میان زاهد خود پرست و عالم دانش پرور چنانکه شیخ سعدی علیه الرحمة می فرماید

گفتم میان عالم و عابد چه فرق بود تا اختیار کردی از آن این فریق را
گفت آن گلیم خویش بدر می برد ز موج وین جهد می کند که بگردد غریق را
و ما می بنیم که ادبا و شعرای عصر حاضر بی بدین نکته برده اند یعنی ابکار معانی را از آن دایره محدوده بیرون آورده و خوان الوان نظم را پیش خاص و عام گسترده طبقه عامه را از آن برخوردار کرده اند و اغلب موضوعات این ادبیات را از وقایع یومیه و راجع بمسائل معاشی و اجتماعی گرفته اند که هر يك از افراد ملت میتواند بدون صعوبت درک نماید و اگر همین اشعار را که از ابتدای انقلاب ایران تا امروز استاد شده جمع آوری کنند تقریباً تاریخ منظوم انقلاب را تشکیل خواهد داد

از بخیری بخیران معذورند' ذوقی است درین باده که مستان دادند
اینك نمونه از ادبیات وطنی و سیاسی را که آنرا ثمره انقلاب اخیر ایران
باید شمرد برای اثبات عقیده خود بنظر ارباب تنبع می رسانم تا همچون
مشکی که بخودی خود بوید آنچه را که من هنوز نگفته در دل دارم بزبان
خود بگویم

این نمونه ادبیات جدیده بخوبی ثابت می کند که روح شعر و طبع سخن
پروری در ایران معدوم نشده سهل است که بواسطه سوق این انقلاب اخیر
رونق تازه یافته و تأثیر بزرگی در آئینه این ملت بظهور خواهد آورد
اگر درست دقت کنیم خواهیم دید که این اشعار جدیده دارای دو صفت
ممتاز است که در ادبیات قدیمه موجود نوده و بهمان سبب شاید
تأثیراتش در طبقه عامه بیشتر باشد

اولاً از حیث موضوع: موضوع اشعار قدما تقریباً عبارت بود از
مدایح پادشاهان و بزرگان و غزلیات و اخلاق و فلسفه و تصوف و آنچه
راجع باوضاع و احوال معاشیه برشته نظم در آورده اند هسه کم است اگرچه
همین ادبیات مدار افتخار ابدی ایران بوده و زبان فارسی را تا امروز نگاه
داشته است ولی از جهت تأثیر خارجی در اوضاع اجتماعی مردم گویا
چندان ثمر نداده است زیرا که دائره انتشار آن محدود و تقریباً منحصر
بطبقه عالیه و عالمه ملت بوده و فوایدش تعمیم نداشته است

تجارب تاریخی و جریان اوضاع اجتماعی ملل درین قرون اخیره بخوبی
نشان میدهد که مؤثر حقیقی در گردانیدن جرخ حیات اجتماعی يك ملت
عامه یعنی طبقات اواسط و ادانی آن ملت است و چنانکه امواجی که روی
دریا را تلاطم آورده و بزرگترین کشتیها را بازیچه طوفان خود میسازد

تمنای مخصوص از قارئین ایرانی

مقصود اصلی از جمع و نشر این اشعار آن است که برای برخی از منتعین ادبیات ایران که اغلب منکر وجود روح ادبی در ایران کنونی بوده و وجود شعر و شاعری را در این قرون اخیر در آن سرزمین معدوم می پندارند ثابت نمائیم که آن طبع گهربار ایرانی که اشعار آبدار قدیمه را بوجود آورده نمرده است

هنوز گویندگان هستند اندر عراق که قوت ناطقه مدد از ایشان برد بلکه از زیر آن همه ابرهای تاریک که صفحات این مملکت را فرا گرفته باز آن روح فنا ناپذیر مانند آفتابی که زیر ابر نهفته پس از جندی با یک پرتو عالمروزی دیگر جلوه گر گشته است

اغلب مستشرقین که زحمات تنوع ادبیات جدیدۀ ایران را بخود نداده اند چنین تصوّر می کنند که طوطی شکر گفتار طبع شعرا و ادبای اعصار گذشته ایران افرو نطق فرو مانده و چندین قرن است که درین چمن خزان دیده بلبل بترنم نیامده و شاید هم هیچ نخواهد آمد ولی این جانب که از سی و سه سال بدین طرف عمر خود را صرف تحصیل این زبان کرده و بواسطه کثرت معاشرت با آقایان ایرانی تا اندازه با اشعار و ادبیات جدیده مربوط شده و چاشنی آنرا چشیده با این عقیده اشتراک ندارم و قول آنرا دور از انصاف و حقیقت میدانم و کسانی که بر حسب عدم اطلاع چنین عقیده اظهار میدارند معذور میدانم و عدم الوجدان لیس دلیلاً علی عدم الوجود را
